Zachary Park continues to grow

At Monday night’s Macon County Commission meeting, the board firmed up its agreement to purchase about two acres next to Zachary Park.

A 1.986-acre parcel owned by Lucille Zachary Potts, which is next to the 1.761-acre parcel for which the county paid $50,000 in earned money in October, abuts Zachary Park property.

Acquisition of property adjoining the park makes expansion possible for both parking and additional fields. During games, a lack of parking is causing safety problems on Buck Creek where vehicles often line the road.

The Potts parcel has been divided into two sections — one in

Auditors pronounced Macon County fiscally strong saying the county’s much discussed fund balance serves as a measure of the county’s stability.

“No news is good news,” said representatives of Martin Stames & Assoc., CPA, P.A., of Hickory, N.C., Monday night’s MC Commission meeting. “There are no unqualified opinions; no findings or questioned costs; no material internal control weaknesses identified; and the county staff was cooperative.”

The general fund represents the county’s primary operating costs.

In 2006-2007 the general fund was $42,359,043 with expenditures at $36,746,857. The difference is the much debated fund balance whose figures fluctuate from the beginning of the fiscal year — July 1 — to audit time at the end of the year — June 30.

The fund balance, which is broken into three categories — reserved, unreserved designated and unreserved undesignated — is the money left over after expenditures are paid from revenues.

The reserved fund balance has strings attached to it: the reserved designated has “internal” strings attached to it and the unreserved undesignated has no strings and is available.

Speaking as the outgoing County Manager, Greenwood offered words of advice concerning the county’s fiscal future.

“Macon County is one of the County to fund upgrades

Bond passage or not, the county is still committed to senior services and education.

At Monday night’s Macon County Commission meeting, board members heard from Cecil Groves, president of Southwestern Community College (SCC) and Jane Kinsey, DDS Director, about needed expansions.

SCC

Master Plan Facility expansion of the SCC campus on Siler Road involves matching funds between the state and county which won’t be fully realized until a statewide higher education bond referendum passes with funds seen in 2010.

Over the years, the county has put $1.5 million in its “matching bond bank” by financing some of SCC’s Macon campus expansion.

Ultimately, the county must put $3 million in the “matching bond bank” before SCC is granted funds.

However, since attendance at SCC’s Macon campus is growing faster than expected, SCC can’t wait until 2010 to expand.

“We need more space within 12 months,” said Groves. “Hope fully by the fall of 2008.”

Instead of “wasting” money on temporary modular units which can’t be counted toward a bond match, Groves suggested a permanent structure which could
Other performing arts entities need money, too

Dear Editor,

Returning home after an extended absence, I was reading Highlands’ Newspaper to catch up on the election results and other November news of the town. Reading the Forum, I was disappointed to learn of the financial problems of the Instant Theatre Company (ITC). I do hope that a way can be found for it to survive. The town is fortunate to have three theater groups offering a variety of entertainment. Although, I sometimes hear people remark about competition among the groups, they really are not competitors in that the offerings of the groups are quite different and the schedules and length of runs are such that most of the time those who are so interested can see performances of the current productions at all three.

However, I do wish to point out that the article may mislead your readers about the stage costs of other groups when you say “The Instant Theatre is the only theater in town that has to pay rent, utilities and everything else associated with maintaining a theater…” I have worked with the Highlands Community Players (HCP) in a number of capacities and know that they pay considerable rent and ticket fees to the Performing Arts Center (PAC). Upon my inquiries, I learned that during the past season HCP paid PAC $12,200 for the stage, rehearsal space and ticket fees. (The rental cost would have been higher except that rehearsals for the August show were held at another location to accommodate Chamber Music scheduling.) Granted that this is only about half of the amount you indicate that ITC must raise to continue operations, nevertheless it is substantial especially when one considers that HCP produces four shows plus a Christmas reading for a total of only 32 performances annually.

Future spending despite ‘no’ vote?

Dear Editor,

Do we need to remind our commissioners that we, the electorate are the ruling body, and they are our representatives in our system of government? So why do I make this point?

I make this point because prior to the recent elections we were informed that, “regardless of the outcome of the elections” by this, the sovereign electorate, “you would spend the money on the proposed referendum anyway.” Gentlemen, that is troubling to me because, in my opinion, you have announced that you plan to ignore the will and voice of the “electorate,” the people who have said NO to the plan.

There is also a larger issue. There is a page on the web entitled “Slash Dot” which is designed especially for the younger generation. They ask questions on their site and request responses. Recently they posted, “Would you trade your vote for a million dollars?” One of the answers was “Yes, I would trade my vote for an i-pod because my vote doesn’t mean anything anyway.” That was a good example of most of the replies. I wonder where this cynical notion has come from and how many of the electors feel this way, but especially most of the younger generation? Could it be that the electorate is watching elected officials, like ours, breach the will of the electorate or just ignore the voters completely?

This is not an isolated example. I raise this issue because most of the young voters I talk to feel exactly like the voters in the above sample.

Gentlemen, this is a serious matter. If we continue down this path will we soon have an apathetic voting electorate becoming a “mob” who will want to take things into their own hands? Therefore, I urge you to do three things. One publicly announce that you made a hasty decision on proceeding with construction which will incur major debt, against the will of the voters, and will take steps to seek the counsel of the electorate. Two: appoint a “Citizens’ Steering Committee,” with the primary responsibility of giving financial advice on any major expenses (school construction?). Three: In light of current economic times revise your “wish list of new construction” so that we will not have a tax increase.

Military letter campaign in the works

Dear Editor,

The first grade class at Highlands School is inviting all Kindergarten through 12th-grade students, staff, and members of the community to write to soldiers connected to the school and community. We are compiling names, pictures of soldiers and their mailing addresses to be placed on the bulletin board in the lobby of the school. The community is welcome to bring or send these in, as well.

There are three boxes in the main hallway labeled for “Iraq,” “Afghanistan,” and “Walter Reed Hospital.”

Our goal is to receive 1,000 letters in the next three weeks. Each Friday during December, the letters will be mailed to a soldier. The soldier will be asked to pass the letters out to other soldiers in his/her unit.

Donations of boxes of Christmas cards would be helpful for this project, even though handwritten letters and hand-drawn pictures are especially welcomed!

The final deadline for this project will be Friday, Dec. 21, the last day before the holidays begin for our students and staff.

The contact person for this project is Mrs. Donna Sizemore, First Grade Teacher. Email: donna.sizemore@mcsk12.org

Help the needy right here in Highlands

Dear Editor,

After the very successful Instant Theatre Company’s White Elephant Sale, we decided to give the unsold, useful items to the needy of our community. I took a truckload of dishes, glasses, bedding, heaters, and more to the Highlands Emergency Council. What I found there broke my heart. I discovered a small group of dedicated volunteers trying to take care of the poor in Highlands.

Help the needy is a family of three making just a little more than $12,000 a year, which is considered poverty level in this county, and living in Highlands. This family makes too much money to qualify for government assistance. You get sick, or lose your job at the end of the season, while your cost of living continues to rise, and soon you have to choose: do we eat or do we heat or which medicine stays at the pharmacy?

The Emergency Council takes care of about 72 families in the Highlands area every month. The Emergency Council is not allowed to solicit funds, or to advertise, or hold its own benefits to raise money. Because of these restrictions, I, personally, did not have any idea how much the Emergency Council needs our help. When adults and children are hungry, they are fed by the Emergency Council.

Ray Bryson

Ray Bryson, age 97, of River Road, Franklin, NC died Thursday, December 6, 2007 at a local hospital. He was a native of Macon County, the son of the late Charlie and Maggie Gregory Bryson. He was a farmer and attended the First Assembly of God Church. He is survived by his wife of 74 years, Amelia Wright Bryson; his daughter, Alice Louise Davis and her husband Roger of Franklin, NC; three sons, James Ray Bryson and his wife, Pat of Inman, SC, Charles Frank Bryson and his wife Frances and Ralph Leslie Bryson and his wife Linda all of Franklin, NC. Thirteen grandchildren, nineteen great-grandchildren and three great-great grandchildren also survive. He was preceded in death by two brothers, Lease and Fred Bryson.

Funeral services were held Sunday, December 9 at 2 p.m. in the Chapel of Bryant Funeral Home with Rev. Tom Grubb and Rev. Alton Dendy officiating. Burial will be held at Salem Cemetery. His grandsons will serve as pallbearers.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be made to the Salem Cemetery Fund, c/o Becky Bryson, 525 Bryson Branch Road, Franklin, NC 28734. Bryant Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Halley Ann Talley McCall

Halley Ann Talley McCall, age 61, of Dillard Road, Highlands, NC died Sunday, December 9, 2007 at a Highlands-Cashiers Hospital. She was a native of Macon County, the daughter of the late Sadie Marie Talley. She was married to Leon McCall who passed away May 29, 2005. She was a homemaker and was of the Baptist faith.

She is survived by her three daughters, Julie Reed of Clayton, GA, Laura McCall of Highlands, NC and Jane McCall of Franklin, NC; her son, Ricky McCall of Highlands, NC and her sister, Agnes Nix of Clayton, GA. Eight grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services were held Wednesday, December 12 at 2 p.m. in the Chapel of Bryant Funeral Home in Highlands with Rev. Alton Dendy officiating. Burial will be in the Miller Cemetery. Stanley Reed, Gary McClure, Junior Reed, Jerry McCall, Doyle Wayne McCall and Daniel McCall will serve as pallbearers.

Bryant Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.
If there's any benefit to aging, it's that people become wiser. Notice I didn't say smarter. For geezers, years and years of life experiences have taught them many things that can't be learned from reading a book, attending school, going to seminars or even life lab classes, whatever that is.

For a geezer cop like myself who has seen too much of a sordid life, the wisdom is different from your everyday, run-of-the-mill geezer type wisdom. Calling mountain folks stupid is not part of that wisdom and I am surprised so many do it.

In Oriental countries, people recognize the benefits of the aged and place great value on their wisdom. They honor them and seek out their advice. In the United States, we lock them up in nursing homes long before we have to so they won’t bother us. Is that why we keep making the same dumb mistakes over and over again?

How we measure intelligence, wisdom and smarts in this country is confusing. I guess it depends on whose standards are used. It took me a while to realize being well educated has nothing to do with being smart or wise. It definitely has nothing to do with common sense.

I've only known three policemen in my lifetime that had a PhD from a legitimate college. (By the way, there's a lot of fake PhDs out there.) All three of them didn't have enough common sense to stay alive and fortunately were taken off the street so they wouldn't catch pneumonia from standing in the rain. (Gobble, gobble) All of them were highly intelligent but were no match for the street savvy of an uneducated low life scummy street junkie with a six-inch knife. So if the standard to measure intelligence versus stupid was to see who could stay alive the longest on the backstreets of Miami, was it the PhD or the junkie? More study is needed.

Early in life, long before I became wiser than I currently am, I became aware of the "pigeonhole" syndrome. People "pigeonhole" others based on little or no information. You probably did it unconsciously this week. Here's how it works. After learning a small amount of information about a person you barely know, you evaluate them and place them in your own personal "pigeonhole."

For example, I have learned when intelligent people want to refer to mountain folks as stupid, they disguise their remarks by saying they lack vision and quickly stuff them in the "lack vision" pigeonhole.

Walk into any uppity northeast college and ask the students what they think about people born and raised in the Appalachian Mountains. Stupid, uneducated, incest retarded and closed-minded are a few of the pigeonholed answers you will probably get. Some will say mountain folks lack vision and you know what that means.

To test my own theory on this, I found a real live bona fide mountain man, born and raised right here in Highlands. He has a four-year college degree and over a million bucks in his portfolio. I consider him an intelligent, successful mountain man.

I invited him to Fifth and Pine and had him look out over the beautiful Pine Street Park project. "Tell me what you see," I demanded. After much deliberation, he responded, "I see a vacant lot filled with dog poop." I shook my head in despair. "Try to have more vision…. oops, I mean look beyond the dog poop."

Not wanting to be wrong again, he stared a long time before responding again. "Beyond the dog poop, I see propane tanks and merchants' garbage cans?"

"Pul-leeese, this is important. Try one last time. Have more vision….oops, sorry again. Try and look beyond all that."

Finally, the mountain man smiled and said, "I see you have dog poop all over your shoes. For a flatlander, you sure don't have much vision, do you?"

Some people shouldn’t have kids. It’s fortunate when they realize it before it’s too late. They feel about children much as they do about dog droppings: but the latter is easier to escape than kids with parents like me.

I think kids belong at Christmas parties, which may explain why I receive few invitations and accept even fewer. There has been a general perception that children are unwelcome at our tennis club, so we had never attended a party there. A member once asked that the kids’ clinic be scheduled at a time when he was not playing. He found their presence distracting. Honest! He really did. This wasn’t the U.S. Open. It wasn’t even the club championship. It was Friday afternoon doubles. Lizzie and some other moms, operating under the belief that there is strength in numbers, decided to test the theory. We were sure that they wouldn’t expel all of us.

We put the kids at a large table at the end of the room so that they could play together. I was a little slow to recognize the pity in the voice of a woman who commented, “It’s good that you put the children at a big table at the end of the room.” I didn’t realize that she was expressing gratitude for what she assumed was our compassionate sequestration of the kids.

“Yes,” I agreed, “they have more fun being together.” It wasn’t until she added, in an obviously sympathetic tone, “It must be so difficult, especially during the holidays, to find people who will stay with them, so that parents can go out and have a good time.” I explained that Lizzie’s mom lives in town and is delighted to spend time with Bull. Helen bore six children and has already been exposed to the joy, love, enthusiasm, and sense of wonder that infects kids. In fact, those who know Helen have noted that she contracted a chronic, incurable case. I don’t think most guests objected to the children’s presence. At least they didn’t express displeasure. Many, I suspect, actually enjoyed having them in attendance. There I go again, assuming that everyone loves dog poop as much as I. Santa came and distributed presents but it was only at the last minute that someone noticed that some of the adult gifts might be inappropriate for the kids. Santa rearranged his bags and the kids received kid appropriate gifts and the adults got what they wanted, except for refuge from kids.

A few years ago a parishioner at our church complained that children occupied seats that should have been reserved for adults but our Christmas service. Times have changed. We have opened our arms and our doors to kids. These days our sanctuary is filled with children, with their smiles and giggles, and yes, their sometimes distracting coughs and sniffles, chatter and tears. Those are the sights and sounds of the future. Children are the future. The world will soon rest in their hands. It is they who will deal with the mess we have left.

As I listen to Bull and his buddies talk about the things that are important to them, I cannot help believing that they will be better stewards, that his generation will recognize the evil of greed, of racism, of pollution, of the waste of precious limited resources, of unrestrained consumption, and of intolerance. I hope, and I believe, that the idealism of these kids may just save our world.

“Suffer the little children to come unto me,” (Mark 10:13-14).
Highlands goes down with a fight

During the Highlands vs. Andrews Homecoming game, Friday, Nov. 30, it was a close call with Highlands losing 55 to Andrews’ 58. Highest scorer was Ezra Herz with 19 points followed by Andrew Billingsley with 13, Michael Baty with 8, Michael Shearl with 7, Jake Jeffington with 6 and Adam Hedden with 2 points.

In the Dec. 6 issue of Highlands’ Newspaper, the school submitted the wrong stats for the Boys Varsity game.

Dec. 8 game

Highlands Girls’ Varsity played a tough game against Rabun County, Saturday, Dec. 8 losing 18 to 62. The three scorers from Highlands were Taylor Buras with 7, Bobbi Joe Talley with 6 and Brie Schmitt with 5 points.

Dec. 11 game

Highlands Boys’ lost 34 to 74. For the third game in a row, Ezra Herz has been top scorer for the last few games. Against Rabun County he scored 20 points followed by Michael Baty with 7, 2 each for Jake Jeffington, Mikey Lica, and Andrew Billingsley and 1 for Adam Hedden.

On Dec. 11, Highlands played Nantahla at home.

Varsity Girls lost 31 to 51. High scorers were Taylor Buras and Marlee McCall with 8 points each followed by Brie Schmitt with 5; Bobbi Joe Talley with 3; 2 each for Courtney Rogers, Susan Johnson, and Jessica Gagne, and Kate-Marie Parks with 1 point.

The next games are:

- Fri., Dec. 14, 8 p.m. at Cherokee
- Mon., Dec. 17, 8 p.m. at Hayesville
- Thurs. Dec. 20, 8 p.m. at Franklin

The county’s budget for 2007-2008 was $43,990,854 with the minimum 25% fund balance set at $10,997,713. The Unreserved Undesignated Fund Balance as of June 30, 2007 – the end of the last fiscal year – was $15,407,847. Even though the $64 million bond package failed, the commission intends to fund needed capital projects. At Monday’s meeting, the current year’s budget was reconciled Dec. 5, “to show what you actually do have in the unreserved undesignated fund,” said Greenwood. The county’s budget for 2007-2008 was $43,990,854 with the minimum 25% fund balance set at $10,997,713. The Unreserved Undesignated Fund Balance as of June 30, 2007 - the end of the last fiscal year was $15,407,847.

Less appropriations needed to balance the 07/08 budget: less additional appropriations since July 1, 2007 including the SCC addition at the Industrial Park, the Animal Shelter and others, the total appropriations from the 07/08 fund balance to date is $3,729,580. That left an unreserved undesignated balance of $11,679,287 as of 12/1/07 with just $680,574 over the 25% cap.

When the $710,000 for land acquisition is taken into consideration, the fund balance is $11,398,713.

Reflections from Turtle Pond

The implications of ‘oneness’

Last week I wrote about how I have learned to experience gratitude in my life. One of the main underpinnings of my worldview is a belief in the Oneness of everything, and I asserted that this conviction was essential to my experience of gratitude.

I thought I’d talk a little more about Oneness this week.

First, what do I mean by Oneness? Last week I wrote, “I believe the universe is the manifest expression of an underlying unity, the One. Every “thing”—eminently including myself—may appear to be separate but that is an illusion; underneath the surface appearance there is only the One.”

Someone asked me if by “Oneness” I meant God. The answer is yes and no. From a Judeo-Christian perspective, “God” has the meaning of a separate entity distinct in all ways from “His” creation. This is exactly what I reject when I say Oneness.

I do believe that there is a transcendent truth beyond what we can see. I think of this as God in that it is the all-encompassing sum of what is. I think there is only God; there is nothing that is not God. There is only One. This doesn’t mean that God equals the universe, it just means that the universe is not something other than or separate from God.

As I have said before, panentheism seems to be the best word for my understanding of God. I like this definition from wikipedia.com: “Panentheism is essentially a unifying combination of theism (God is the supreme being) and pantheism (God is everything). While pantheism says that God and the universe are coextensive, panentheism claims that God is greater than the universe and that the universe is contained within God.”

God is unlimited; the realm of form — the universe — is limited. God is immortal; in the realm of form there is life and death. God is all-knowing; in the realm of form there is limited knowing. The universe exists as a field of experience for God to experience the full range of limitation from the most mundane to the most holy to the most sublime. (Check out the book I wrote with my husband Arthur, The Game of God, available at the Hudson Library or at bookstores; www.gameofgod.com).

All the multifarious experiences going on right now in the entire universe, and throughout all time, are being experienced by God disguised as the multiplicity of forms we see all around us. I think of the universe as a huge jigsaw puzzle, every life form one tiny piece, and the picture formed by all the pieces put together is the complete experience of what it is to be limited.

We learn to distinguish reality by looking at boundaries, so when we see the pieces of the puzzle we see only the edges, the boundaries that define each piece, and completely miss the fact that they all interlock, that the deeper truth is they are all part of One Whole.

What are the implications of this profound underlying unity? If every person is part of the Whole, then every person has a unique role to play in the expression of the One in form.

Last week I talked about how a concert violinist was “playing that part for me.” That’s a happy example. The baby who dies at three months from “sudden infant death syndrome.” The woman crippled for life by a degenerative muscle disease. The man who gets hooked on heroin and dies before he reaches the age of 30. All of these are pieces of the universe puzzle, are parts to be played. The serial killer and murderous tyrant are “playing their parts” also.

And I am really grateful that I’m not the one who has to play those parts! This perspective also opens up a whole new way to feel compassion. Ted Bundy and Adolph Hitler were the vehicles to play these particular parts of the puzzle, and they were condemned to suffer for being the people who played those parts. (And just for the record, I am not advocating that these people should be allowed to “play their parts” without interference by society!)

If you question why God might want to experience being a serial killer, then ask yourself why the movie “Texas Chainsaw Massacre” has produced so many sequels. Movies and books are ways for us to vicariously experience parts we are not willing to live out ourselves.

Another implication: there is no intrinsic evil in anything or anybody. “Evil” by definition is something that is completely outside of God, and once again there is no such place. There is no way to be “outside” of God. There is only God.

Another implication: everything is perfect exactly the way it is. So relax.
Last Friday the Highlands-Cashiers Hospital announced the successful recruitment of the second general surgeon in the last month. Dr. Gus Dozier has already started on a half time basis, and it was critical that another surgeon also be recruited as soon as possible. Thus Dr. William Noell will start his practice of surgery in Highlands in early January. Both Dr. Dozier and Dr. Noell are highly experienced, well known, and highly regarded general surgeons. Dr. Dozier has practiced for many years quite successfully in Atlanta and Dr. Noell has been in Sylva for the past 18 years. The importance of this liaison cannot be overestimated. This means that beginning in January the Highlands-Cashiers Hospital will have full-time emergency surgical coverage year round and the people in our area will have the ability to choose between two highly qualified and experienced surgeons.

The administrative staff, the medical staff and the board’s physician recruiting committee are to be commended for their exhaustive search which included going through almost 60 applications in the process of hiring these two fine surgeons who have reputations which the people of the Highlands-Cashiers area demand and indeed deserve. As a surgeon myself, I can say both of these surgeons have impressive backgrounds and we welcome them to the area. The Board of Directors of the hospital is grateful to all those people who have had enough patience to wait for excellence in a very difficult time for the hospital and supported our efforts through the process without complaint or harassment.

There has been some discussion in town regarding the Christmas decorations, particularly the tree on Methodist church property. The Methodist church tree decoration decisions are purely the prerogative of the trustees of the Methodist church and the town thanks them for their efforts. That tree looks much better than the over decorating which was done last year and we should be proud of the way it has been handled by the church and the decorating committee. In addition to that the tree behind Town Hall and at Harris Lake have also been decorated beautifully and appropriately this year at the request of the people of Highlands and they look great.

And the way each business establishment has decorated has added greatly to the town center decorations this year. I thank everyone for a wonderful effort in what should be this joyful time of the year. And, please, folks, let us do be joyful during this season of both fun, worship and frolicking and enjoy each other and the beauty around us. No grinches allowed!

The ecumenical Christmas Chorale performances this past weekend at the Methodist church was outstanding. It is a wonderful example of how our churches always work together in worship, excellence and fun. This free program directed by Nancy Bonner was a wonderful example of dedicated people working together through many months of hard work to put together an incredible program of beautiful music.

Finally, the owner of Wild Tyme restaurant, Nancy Bruns, made an impassioned plea to the town board this past Wednesday to solve the restaurant parking controversy. It is truly time to put this issue to rest. Her idea of dual-use parking in the B-2 zoning areas is a suggestion which should be given strong consideration by the Planning Board and the Town Board. We certainly do not want well established popular restaurants to have to close because of antiquated regulations. But we also must be fair to all restaurants in all that we do. Let us hope this problem is solved before our busy season begins next year.
November 15 has come and gone. It was the first anniversary of my move here to Highlands, and it seems like a lifetime ago. This column was a crazy idea which came into my head in those ten minutes before you fall asleep at night. Both John and I are thrilled and amazed at how warmly it has been received.

In the many articles which have been half of the “His and Hers” column, I have introduced you to a number of characters, and I am delighted that so many of you have asked what has become of them. I thought I’d take this occasion to catch you up on their news.

Alas, the gas station which I mentioned in my first column, Bagel Withdrawal, has changed hands, and their Krispy Kreme display is gone. Honestly, I didn’t go there as often as some folks might think, but I do miss them, and, yes, I know you can get nice, big boxes of these wonderful donuts at several other places, but, dear readers, they are ALL THE SAME. If you want one apple and spice, and one blueberry, you are out of luck.

My beloved Norfolk Island pine tree, Oscar, which I did so much to bring here, is not doing well. After flourishing outside for months, Oscar took a turn for the worse during the drought. I put him outside, hoping that morning dew would at least help a bit. As you may recall, our spring went dry, and we were without running water for at least four weeks. And before the drought, one of our cats, Orion, was missing. Now, I know you can get nice, big boxes of these wonderful donuts at several other places, but, dear readers, they are ALL THE SAME. If you want one apple and spice, and one blueberry, you are out of luck.

I put him outside, hoping that morning dew would at least help a bit. As you may recall, our spring went dry, and we were without running water for at least four weeks. And before the drought, one of our cats, Orion, was missing. Now, I know you can get nice, big boxes of these wonderful donuts at several other places, but, dear readers, they are ALL THE SAME. If you want one apple and spice, and one blueberry, you are out of luck.

My beloved Norfolk Island pine tree, Oscar, which I did so much to bring here, is not doing well. After flourishing outside for months, Oscar took a turn for the worse during the drought. We have discussed in previous columns the wacky schedule race to be first, or at least early, in the caucus/primary race. It seemed like it was way premature when we wrote it and now it is nearly upon us. This shrinking time span occurred as a result of 1, time marching on, and 2, the various states moving the date forward.

The Iowa caucuses will be held on January 3, 2008, giving participants just enough time to cure their hangovers and find their way to the caucus sites. The end result of the caucus activity is to pick delegates to the succeeding conventions ending up at their Party’s national conventions. The delegates are generally pledged to support a particular candidate but aren’t bound to vote for that candidate.

New Hampshire’s primaries will be held on Jan. 8th. Even though Michigan has primaries before South Carolina, and has a lot more electoral votes, very little campaign activity seems to be taking place there, and it is receiving little news coverage South Carolina, whose primaries take place on Jan. 26th, is considered a good indication of the way black voters will go, and their heavy concentration of retired military is thought to be a meaningful indicator.

Then Florida, then Super Duper Tuesday, Feb. 5th, which will decide 40% of the electoral votes.

So, who’s on first? On the Dem’s side, as of this writing, nationwide Hillary still leads Obama 42% to 23% and Edwards with 13%. The others seem to be out of it. In Iowa, however, Clinton and Edwards had exchanged the lead all summer and most of the fall, but recently Obama has pulled marginally ahead and now leads Hillary. Hubby Bill briefly came to her “rescue” but sounded so much like it was he that was running that Hillary sent him home and trotted out Barbara Streisand to rally the troops. Babas in Iowa? Meanwhile, Barak has Oprah supporting him and appearing with him at rallies in Iowa, New Hampshire and South Carolina. I can’t see this move doing anything but good for Obama.

In New Hampshire Hillary still leads, but since Nov. 1st her count is falling and Obama’s is rising. If closure continues at its present rate by primary time it should be a toss-up. Hillary leads big in Michigan and should maintain it (can we say union votes?)—likewise in Florida unless something monumental happens.

Any domestic animal running at-large and being a nuisance without a collar or microchip will be declared a stray and will be seized by an animal control officer to be held for a period of time to be designated by commissioners.

Initially, a holding time of 72 hours was discussed, after which an animal would be put down, but Sheriff Holland suggested another plan.

“The majority of the committee agreed that 72 hours isn’t long enough and suggested a maximum time length not be determined,” he said. “State law determines the minimum time of 72 hours but after that the length of time could be space driven.”

He said if the facility is built to hold 20 animals but only has five in residence then those five could be held for as long as needed. If no one claims the animals, the Animal Control and Care Unit could work with established groups in the county to adopt the animals.

Holland said the purpose of the ordinance is to make irresponsible pet owners responsible. “Animals aren’t the problem, it’s people who are irresponsible,” he said.

He also said a funded spay and neuter program coupled with the ordinance will eliminate the stray problem in the county.

Of the 11,908 calls to the Sheriff’s Department from Jan. 1, 2007 to date, 1,000 have been animal related calls.

Though the sheriff was on the study committee, the Sheriff’s Dept. will not be part of the Animal Control and Care Unit. It will be a separate county department.

The cost for the building is estimated at $350,000 and has been allocated from the 2007-2008 unreserved fund balance. Once the county adopts an ordinance, the county’s municipalities can accept the county’s ordinance for application within their corporate and ETJ limits.

“Once that point a working agreement between the towns and the county can be worked out,” said County Attorney Lesley Moxley.

Commissioner Brian McClellan said it might be possible for the county to recoup some of its costs through the relationship with the municipalities.

Emma Harris raised $565 for the Methodist Children’s Home with the quilt made by her grandmother. This brings the total amount raised to $1,075 which will be delivered to the home this holiday season. Sharon Harris won the quilt. Emma would like to thank everyone who so generously supported her effort.
FAILURE can lead to greatness

Many of you have heard the stories before -- stories of people who seemed destined for a life of anonymity only to rise up from the bottom and succeed in life. Beethoven's music teacher once told him he would never succeed. Thomas Edison was always labeled a problem child throughout elementary school. Henry Ford's first two attempts to jump-start the automobile industry were flops. We read these anecdotes, and we applaud those who have managed to climb to the tops of society yet we fear the concept that allowed these people to become the household names that we know and revere.

The word fail has become one of the four-letter words that is unacceptable in today's society, particularly in the world of youth sports. I have countless stories of parents who push their children to the point of abuse simply because it is unacceptable for their child to fail. Fail to be the superstar, fail to be a starter, fail to play big minutes -- all are cause for consternation among the parents of today's children. And while it happens on the court and in the playing fields, it also happens in the classroom. Children who do not make straight As are held in contempt by their parents, as are the teachers who refuse to give high grades for anything but high level work. We have created a culture that does not understand the value of failure -- particularly in sports.

In the past, when children were learning how to ride the proverbial bicycle they had to fall down many times to learn how to get up, dust themselves off and try again. Now when children fall down, it is because the bicycle was defective, or the street wasn't straight or because the sun got in their eyes. Perhaps the child had attention deficit disorder and couldn't concentrate long enough to ride the bike, or maybe they just need to quit riding bikes altogether and focus on a more inclusive sport, like walking or chewing gum. (but not at the same time)

At this point you are asking yourself -- so what is the answer to this problem? Isn't encouraging success a good thing? For many of the best people in the world failure is not an option. But (and I hate to break this to some people) failure is the only option in many situations.

Babe Ruth struck out 1,330 times in his career. Michael Jordan missed more game-winning shots than he ever made. Two hall-of-fame basketball coaches named Dean Smith and Mike Krzyzewski were both hung in effigy on their respective college campuses early in their careers. The best coach in the NFL right now was benched in the Cleveland Browns. All of these people had failure as a part of their lives, but refused to be satisfied with it. That is the crux of this argument for those of us that work with kids each and every day. We must teach that it is perfectly acceptable to try and fail, because people do it every day. The key for our children is to learn perseverance in the face of failure and always search for success, regardless of your position in life.

The irony in this column is that I am one of those people who has always been afraid of failure. It's difficult to admit sometimes, but for me failure has not been an option. However, as I reflect back, I have learned the most from failure, and it has helped me immensely as a person to learn how to pick yourself up and try again. It is my hope that we as a society learn the lessons of those heroes of ours who were not infallible, but they were also never satisfied. As the great John F. Kennedy once said, "Those who dare to fail miserably can achieve greatly."

Initially be used for classrooms and laboratories and later as a student center once state bond money comes in.

"Given projected enrollment growth numbers, especially in college transfer courses, and additional medical/technical courses, and enrollment in the Early College High School, additional classrooms and laboratory instructional spaces is needed," he said.

He suggested a metal frame building whose exterior could be made to look like the other buildings on the campus but whose interior would be one big room to be fashioned as needed.

The projected cost of the building is $800,000. The only commissioner against the idea was Brian McClellan. "I'm not for this at this time," he said.

But Commissioner Ronnie Beale said as the county grows courses and degrees offered at the SCC campus will be a benefit to the people of Macon County. Groves said students are asking for more medical and technical courses.

"The money spent toward the construction could go toward the required match for later while providing a facility that looks like the rest of the campus," he said.

The board agreed 4 to 1 in concept but wants to see specific figures, plans and a timeline associated with the project before allocating the funds.

Senior Services

Over the years, the county's senior services department was consolidated with DDI which in a year's time saved the county $280,000 – a 400% decrease in county costs from fiscal year 2005-2006 compared to fiscal year 2006-2007. A savings that will be recurring from here on out, said Jane Kimsey.

tion for the 5-6 school is subtracted, the unreserved fund balance drops to $29,426 below the 25% cap. "If it drops to 16% it will be harder for us to get the deals and interest rates we get," said Evelyn Southard, finance director.

Greenwood said without the bond, the county will have to incrementally self-finance to fund capital projects and the 25% cap is crucial.

"The 25% fund balance is designed to optimize the county's position and the nature of its financing as far as the Local Government Commission (LGC) is concerned," he said. "Macon County is a small county by North Carolina standards and it needs a higher margin than larger counties.

The minimum unreserved fund balance allowed by the LGC is 8% which is considered to be enough to fund a county for one month should a catastrophe halt revenues.

Less than a five weeks after Highlands-Cashiers Hospital successfully recruited a general surgeon back to its roster of physicians, another general surgeon has announced plans to relocate his practice to the area in conjunction with the hospital.

Well-known Sylva general surgeon Dr. William J. Noell, FACS, will become part of Mountain Medical and Surgical Group in Highlands on Jan. 7, 2008. Joining surgeon Dr. F. Augustus Dozier, FACS, Dr. Dozier began practicing at the hospital Nov. 5, spending every other week here. Noell, who is also board-certified, will provide coverage during the weeks when Dozier is back in Atlanta.

That will mean that with the start of the new year, Highlands-Cashiers Hospital will have full-time emergency surgical coverage year-round.

“Everyone here is overjoyed at this development,” said hospital President and CEO Ken Shull. “This is going to make our general surgery program stronger than ever before.”

Shull said the arrangement works well for both Dr. Dozier and Dr. Noell, and it means the hospital will now be able to provide emergency surgical coverage for a full 52 weeks a year, something that was not possible if the hospital had only one full-time surgeon. The most weeks that could effectively be covered by a single surgeon would be 39 or 40, he said.

“Not only will area patients be able to choose between two different general surgeons, this means that when it comes to emergencies, area residents will have access to a board-certified, experienced general surgeon around the clock, seven days per week, all year around. That will answer some of the concerns that we’ve heard in recent months,” said Shull. “We couldn’t be more pleased.”

Dr. Noell has practiced in Sylva since 1989, and already has a number of patients who reside in this area — including several employees of the hospital here.

“Dr. Noell has a superb reputation and I’m thrilled to be associated with him,” said Dozier this week. “The combination of our skills will enable us to provide a very full range of general surgical and laparoscopic services here at the hospital.”

Dr. Noell has already been credentialed by hospital’s medical staff and was approved by a unanimous vote of the hospital’s board of directors on Thursday.

“Both of these surgeons are very highly qualified and have great reputations. And they are both very personable, as well. I think the hospital and our communities are very fortunate,” said Board Chairman Bud Smith later. “After everything we’ve been through in the last two years, it’s great that things are really beginning to work out for the hospital and its medical community.”

A native of Arkansas, Dr. Noell earned his medical degree from the University of Arkansas College of Medicine in Little Rock, AR in 1982, and performed his residency in family practice at Halifax Hospital Medical Center in Daytona, Beach, Fl. In 1984 he became an intern in general surgery at Sinai Hospital of Detroit in Detroit, MI, and went on to complete his residency in general surgery at that same institution. Upon coming to Sylva out of residency, he joined the staff at Harris Regional Hospital (now part of West Care Health Systems).

During his career there, he has served as chief of the medical staff, chief of surgery and chairman of Medical Management. From 1995 through 1997, he was a member of the medical staff of Highlands-Cashiers Hospital, with courtesy privileges, which he also maintained at Angel Community Hospital (now Angel Medical Center) until 2000. He is a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons, a member of the American Association of Physicians and Surgeons, and certified by the American Board of Surgery.

The offices of Mountain Medical & Surgical are located in Suite 104 on Level 1 of the Jane Woodruff Clinic on the campus of Highlands-Cashiers Hospital. Appointments can be made by calling (828) 526-2371.

Burning ban back in effect

The Macon County Fire Marshal’s office has prohibited burning due to local conditions which make fires hazardous.

Open burning is prohibited until adequate rainfall lessens the hazards associated with burning.

This is in conjunction with a statewide burning ban due to severe drought conditions, lack of rainfall, low relative humidity and breezy conditions.

Bolivia mission volunteers sought

The Highlands Bolivian Mission is looking for volunteers to come to Montero, Bolivia between the middle of February to the middle of April. It is suggested that the volunteer come for a period of at least 10 days and be healthy enough to endure hot, humid conditions. There are several jobs that do not involve hard, physical work, but the mission plans to build four houses and help build a church. Less strenuous jobs include working at medical and dental clinics, the foster home, hospital work, and feeding projects. Spanish is not required, but it is helpful. The cost of the mission is $1,500 and that cost includes the travel, room and board. Yellow fever injection is required within the last 10 years, and a visa and passport are needed. Please call 526-3605 and talk to Dr. John if you have an interest. If you are a youth, call Mike Harris at 526-3376.

In the 10 years of the mission, over one million dollars of medical equipment has been donated, many houses built, and many lives have been changed, on both sides of the equator.

Less strenuous jobs include working at medical and dental clinics, the foster home, hospital work, and feeding projects. Spanish is not required, but it is helpful. The cost of the mission is $1,500 and that cost includes the travel, room and board. Yellow fever injection is required within the last 10 years, and a visa and passport are needed. Please call 526-3605 and talk to Dr. John if you have an interest. If you are a youth, call Mike Harris at 526-3376.

In the 10 years of the mission, over one million dollars of medical equipment has been donated, many houses built, and many lives have been changed, on both sides of the equator.

Council; when they are cold, the Emergency council pays for their fuel or electric bill.
When a house burns down they help with furnishings. They maintain a food pantry, an inventory of used furniture, household goods and appliances, a clothes closet, and a linen room. The Emergency Council also assists with medical and funeral expenses. The town gives the Emergency Council their building and pays for their electric. There are a few people, not enough, who sponsor families that need help. Last year the Highlands Emergency Council subsisted on less than $10,000. I asked how they were able to operate on that amount and was told, "That's all there was, so we just made do with that amount." One volunteer paid for the week's shopping at the government food bank in Franklin herself because there was no money left. While she was buying the food, a man from Franklin followed her around saying she shouldn't be there because there are no poor people in Highlands.

Well, there are. What can we do to help? Personally, I took the Emergency Council a telephone with an answering service that they said they very much needed. I went to Reeves Hardware and with the help and generosity of manager Joe Luke delivered six heaters to the Emergency Council. I'm also going to offer a challenge to our community. Join me in sending just $100, or more if you can afford it, before Christmas this year to help the needy in our back yard. The Highlands Emergency Council needs every family, full-time or part-time residents, and every business to do this. Please help them to help others. Send your tax-deductible contribution to Highlands Emergency Council, PO Box 974, Highlands, NC 28741. If you can't afford to send money, go over to their building at 71 Poplar Street between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Monday through Friday and see how you could help.

Here is the list the volunteers gave me of needs: (1) Fuel money (specify for fuel), (2) Help with picking people up, (3) The loan of a truck for hauling, (4) People able to assist with lifting heavy items, (5) People to help in the warehouse to arrange and maintain a workable area, (6) Assistance in packing the government commodities, twice each month, and assistance with lifting the heavy cases of food, which must then be opened and placed in forty-eight bags, or boxes, ready to distribute, (6) Supplies: Heavy brown paper bags with handles to use for commodities, copy paper, stamps, staples, tape, pens, and copier ink cartridges. (7) Sponsorship for families, food, fuel, etc. (8) Gifts for children, and some senior citizens, during November and December each year.

Wishing you a good old fashioned holiday season!

The Highlands Historical Society is grateful

Last weekend a house built in the mid-1920s in Highlands was the site of beautifully decorated rooms that were enjoyed by over 160 people. The Highlands Historical Society wants to thank each and every person who paid $15 to view the Joe Webb-built house now owned by Tommy and Vickie Chambers, as well as each of the merchants and individuals who decorated the rooms. Those decorators included Mary Berry, Deborah Gibson and Liz View, as well as staff members from Basketcase, Bedroom and Bath Design, The Chambers Agency, Cosper’s Flowers and The Dry Sink.

We are grateful, too, to Alan Marsh and the 12 people who agreed to drive their own vehicles to shuttle patrons from the Civic Center to the Showhouse and back. Vickie Chambers herself recruited docents for the event, LaDonna Keener printed our tickets and Ran Shaffner printed beautiful brochures. We thank each of them, as well as Country Club Properties, Cybero’s Bookshop and Macon Bank, each of whom agreed to handle advance ticket sales.

One never knows what may be found on a homestead that is more than 80 years old, and the Christmas Showhouse was no exception. Jim Whitehurst volunteered to clean up and clear out the trail leading to two old springhouses, and in the process discovered a natural rock patio at the site of the springs which still flow clear cold water.

The funds earned by the Christmas Showhouse will be used along with donations and grants to pay off the mortgage on the Prince House and to operate the Historical Museum and Archives. Thanks to everyone who helped!

The Highlands Area Chamber of Commerce and Visitor Center would like to recognize everyone who has created such a charming and delightful holiday season for Highlands. Starting with the beauty of the Tree Lighting on Nov. 24 through the annual Highlands Christmas Parade on Dec. 1.

The Tree Lighting, as always, was a treat. We truly appreciate Santa Claus, Mrs. Claus, Rudolph, the Snow Princess and the Toy Soldier visiting all the way from the North Pole.

Special thanks to Marianne Vines and the Tree Lighting Committee, Mary Beth Brody and the Carolers, Chuck Cooper, Buck Trott, Jane Chalker, The Town of Highlands, Highlands Police, Fire and Rescue personnel, Rotary Club of Highlands, the Highlands School Interact Club, the Highlander Newspaper, the Highlands United Methodist Church, Bill Nellis, Karla Bunnell and everyone that worked long and hard to bake over 2,000 cookies!

We are pleased to announce that after purchasing the lights for this year’s event, The Highlands Visitor Center has donated them to the Town of Highlands for future tree lightings.

We hit the button and let it wail for a minute or two, our truck, which is parked right next to the trash bin, just about a hors d’oeuvre size.

Jon was freaked out and I was wishing I had one of my Dad’s old shotguns in the cabin, just in case if Mr. or Mrs. Bear might decide to come calling through the sliding glass door. I called 9-1-1 and they showed up. After about an hour we realized that we had to take the dog out, but neither of us was too enthusiastic about the idea, especially the dog, which is just about a hoss d’ouvre size.

We’re used to raccoons and possums raiding our trash at our house in Charlotte, but a few well-placed bungee cords took care of them. Our bin up here has a locking lid, and it’s big and heavy — how could anything get in there?

The only window that overlooks the drive where the trash bin is located is over the kitchen sink. Try not to think too hard about a plump preacher crawling up onto a very slippery granite countertop to get a peak at the alleged bear.

For a nano-second, I thought he was pulling my leg, but a second glance at his face assured me that this was the real deal.

Now my husband is a city boy and I’m a city girl, though I’ve had brief stints living in the mountains and working for the park service down in the flatlands.

All dignity forgotten, I clambered up and almost fell into a sink full of dishes.

It wasn’t just a bear, it was a HUGE, FULL-GROWN BLACK BEAR!

I very nearly fell off the counter. Just at that moment, the outdoor lights that were triggered by the bear’s initial approach, went out. Frustrated, all I could see was a hullin black shape, about the size of a Volkswagen Beetle, with its rump in the air, head hidden in the bin. Finally, Mr. or Mrs. Bear moved enough to re-trigger the lights.

I held my breath. It was beautiful. It was big. Really, really big. It gave me a scathing eye-ball as I gawked at it out the window and made several interesting noises.

Remember the big, heavy bin? Well it was flipped out into the driveway and open, as if it were a toy. Garbage was scattered everywhere, but pickin’s must have been slim because the bear gave me another scathing eye-ball and leisurely wandered off, dragging a last sack of goodies up into the woods for, one presumes, a midnight snack.

After the bear departed, we were both, as we say in the south, “in a state.”

Jon was freaked out and I was wishing I had one of my Dad’s old shotguns in the cabin, just in case if Mr. or Mrs. Bear might decide to come calling through the sliding glass door. I called 9-1-1 and they did everything but laugh. Needless to say, no one showed up. After about and hour we realized that we had to take the dog out, but neither of us was too enthusiastic about the idea, especially the dog, which is just about a hoss d’ouvre size.

Blandly, we remembered the panic button on our truck, which is parked right next to the trash bin. We hit the button and let it wail for a minute or two, just in case...

to the delight of our neighbors, and then cautiously dragged the reluctant canine out for her nightly constitutional, hoping that the noise had scared off our furry visitor. I’ve never seen a dog take care of business that fast. One whiff of bear and she was ready to go back in — fine with us!

Sleep didn’t come easily to the Howell’s Nest that night. Both Jon and I lay awake and kept saying “Did you see the SIZE off that bear!?!?”

The dog paced the house nervously and wouldn’t settle in her bed. I can’t blame her.

Bears are omnivorous, which means they’ll eat anything they can get their paws on, including house pets. I would think.

A couple of days later I got a call from a fellow at the Wildlife Commission. “All right” I thought, “now we’ll see some action.” We played phone tag for a week or two and finally spoke person to person. I felt guilty about ratting the bear, but we live next to the hospital and an old folks home. I thought, “Isn’t it just a little bit dangerous to have a huge bear wandering around?” If I thought that a team of burly naturalists was going to appear, trap and relocate our furry friend I was sadly mistaken. Instead the man on the phone told us where to get a trash can that might be a bit more bear resistant. (notice the man didn’t say bear proof!)

The web site I Googled told me much more about black bears than I ever wanted to know. Black bears are survivors. They are omnivorous, and tremendously strong. An adult bear can kill an elk with one blow of their paw. One of my parishioners told me that a bear bent the steel pole of their bird-feeder clean in two. They can run up to 30-miles per hour and can climb trees better than Tarzan. This got me to thinking.

If anyone should be trapped and relocated, it’s us. We’re encroaching on the bears’ habitat. Bears were a part of the landscape here long before humans started developing the land on the Highlands plateau. We’ve destroyed or altered their foraging grounds to the point where they have to find “alternative” means of nourishment, i.e. our trash bins. Do they “bear” us a grudge?

No, if given a choice, they would rather avoid human contact altogether. All they want is to survive.

The more I thought about all this, the more I realized that I was the Grinch here, not the bear. Mr. or Mrs. Bear is my neighbor, just like the nice couple next door. We are supposed to love our neighbors, or at least, respect their right to exist. One of my commentary publications wrote, “Harmony is intentional unity sustained through an ongoing drift toward grace.” We Lutherans are big into grace. We believe that we are justified, or, “made right” by the grace of God, through faith, as a gift. We are about to celebrate the greatest gift of all, the birth of Christ, who came, not to condemn the world, but to save it.

The reading from Isaiah for last week is one of my favorites:

“The wolf shall live with the lamb, the leopard shall lie down with the kid, and the calf and the lion and the fatling together, and a little child shall lead them.

The cow and the bear shall graze, their young shall lie down together, and the lion shall eat straw like the ox.

The nursing child shall play over the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall put its hand on the adder’s den.

They will not hurt or destroy on all my holy mountain; for the earth will be full of the knowledge of the LORD as the waters cover the sea.

On that day the root of Jesse shall stand as a signal to the peoples, the nations shall inquire of Him, and His dwelling shall be glorious.” Isaiah 11:6 -10.

Some day the Peaceable Kingdom will come to fruition, but in the meantime, it is up to us to live in harmony, grace and peace with our fellow creatures, whether it’s your next door neighbor or the neighborhood bear.

Have a “Beary” Merry Christmas!

Includes a home and another which is vacant. The Potts property had been under contract to the county and commissioners planned to close by Oct. 31, but an agreement on usage slowed things up a bit.

Monday night the deal was sealed when the parcel was split so Potts could retain use of her house for a while. “She can retain use of her home for up to two years,” said County Commissioner Brian McClellan. “The county has a contract to purchase it within two years therefore it will own the land so that the county has no liability.”

However, the two-year option is just on the piece that contains the house. The other parcel will become the county’s at the time of closing.

The .667-acre tract containing the home is under contract for $225,000 and the vacant 1.326 acres was purchased for $250,000.

The county currently owns 4.80 acres - previously two lots split by Aunt Dora Drive - upon which the current Zachary Park now resides.

At its October meeting, the board agreed to purchase Mattie Zachary Crawford’s 1.761 acres for its appraised value of $167,040. So far that deal isn’t complete, but in October earnest money was allocated. The Potts and Crawford property will add 3.754 acres to the park.

The Zachary siblings, five sisters and a brother, made Zachary Park on Buck Creek possible several years ago when they sold the family homeplace to the county. They said they wanted the children of Highlands and Macon County to have a place to play. Their property represented one of the few relatively flat pieces of property in the Highlands area suitable for sports fields.
Come have Christmas Dinner at the Log Cabin Restaurant for a good cause

Hurry! It is time to reserve your seats for the Annual Highlands Christmas Dinner! The dinner is at the Log Cabin Restaurant on December 25th from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. The cost is only $29.95 for a scrumptious meal prepared by some of Highlands' premier chefs (Marty Rosenfeld, Donna Woods, Renee and Jim Ramsdell, and Debbie Grossman) Select wines are provided by Mindy and Wolfgang Green.

The cost of the dinner is worth the mouth-watering desert alone (Jan Zehr)! But for those of you who don't solely survive on their sweet tooth, there will be a bountiful buffet of turkey, gravy, ham, stuffing, sweet potatoes, mashed potatoes, green beans, corn, cranberry relish, apple-date delight, and warm rolls. These traditional foods will be especially delectable because they are prepared with extra ingredients of love and sprinkled by fairy dust from Santa's Elves who will make sure the buffet is never bare.

The Annual Christmas dinner is being sponsored by H.A.N.D.S. and all proceeds benefit the Literacy Council of Highlands and Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Highlands. Don't procrastinate—215 friends and neighbors have all ready reserved their seats for this joyous event! Let us prepare your meal, set your table, serve your dinner, and best of all, wash your dishes while at the same time giving you the opportunity to support this magical village we all call home.

Come join 215 of your friends and neighbors who have all ready reserved their place at our table. Call Farrel Zehr for reservations today! 828-342-7586

Choir readies church for Oratorio on Dec. 16th

Episcopal Church choir members help ready the sanctuary for the Sunday, Dec. 16 performance of Saint Saen's Christmas Oratorio at 4 p.m.

The altar as well as the rest of the church's dias furniture has been moved to make room for this spectacular presentation which will be directed by Fletcher Wolfe and accompanied by Robert Henry.

The beautiful music of this Christmas Story involves six soloists as well as the entire church choir. Darrel McGhee, well known African America tenor from Atlanta, will sing the role of the narrator and other soloists from Piedmont College and Western Carolina University will be joined by Highlanders Molly McKim, soprano and Jody Zahner, alto.

This performance is free and open to the public and a reception will follow the concert. Based on last year's response to their productions, interested listeners should come early as seating is limited to 200 persons in the main sanctuary.

You are encouraged to begin your Christmas season with this meaningful and spiritual experience.

Through the efforts of the Christmas Parade committee, Mountaintop Rotary, everyone who supplied and drove vehicles for the participants, the Highlands Police, Fire and Rescue personnel and our judges (Thomas Craig, Kay Craig and Zeke Sossoman), the Tree Lighting was followed up by the most successful Highlands Christmas Parade ever - 72 entries in this year’s event.

There were our Grand Marshals - The Laurel Magazine and Marianne & Gordy Vines. They were followed by people (and animals) walking, riding, singing and dancing.

Highlands’ School was well represented by the marching band, pep squad, middle school athletic teams, The Girls' Clubhouse and the Homecoming Court.

And our humorous highlight of this year's parade? - a self-propelled port-a-pottie.

Thanks to donations, ITC ready for 2008

With deep gratitude the Instant Theatre Company announces it has made its fundraising goal and exceeded it. And donations are still coming in at this writing.

The “I’m Dreaming of a White Elephant Christmas” Sale brought in $10,344.75. We extend a rousing heartfelt thank you to the individuals and businesses who supported the sale with donations of a wide variety of items. We cannot list all the individuals who donated their “white elephants” to the sale because many people left their items on our porch with no name attached.

All of you know who you are, however, and we are so very grateful for your support. The businesses who donated to the sale are Brick Oven Pizza and Movie Stop, Carolina Eyes, CK Swan, CoolCatHotDogs.com, Custom House, Cyrano’s Bookshop, Don Leon’s Cafe and Deli, Drakes Diamond Gallery Inc, Dry Sink, Fresers Eteary, Highlands Emporium, Highlands News, Highlands Plaza Inc., House of Wong, Images Unlimited, Innisfree Victorian Inn, Jolies of Highlands, Julianas’s, Kent Ltd., Let Holly do the Cooking, McCulley’s Cashmere, Meadows Mountain Realty, Mirror Lake Antiques, Mountain Heritage, Mountainique, Nellis Communities, Old Rangoon, On the Veranda, Pizza Place, Rosenthal Furs Inc., Shiraz Oriental Rug Gallery, Spoiled Rotten, Starpony Electronics, Stone Lantern, Summit One Gallery, T.J. Bailey, Vivace, WHLC FM 104.5, Wild Thyme Gourmet, Wolfgang’s Restaurant & Bistro and artists Rosemary Stiefel and Julian Davis.

The ITC received donations and pledges from generous individuals who let us know that they want the company to continue bringing diverse, quality entertainment to our community. The best way we can show our gratitude is to bring the community our best season ever.

To open the 2008 season, we present “ITC LIVE,” an all new improv show and more, which will open Friday, February 1 and play every Friday and Saturday night through Saturday, Feb. 23. Plans are in the works this coming year for full-length plays, concerts, dances, staged readings, movies, and the return of the Highlands Cashiers now offers septic tank pumping, drain field cleaning and septic field location. Think your drainfield needs replacing? The majority of drainfield problems occur due to build up in the drain lines. Roto-Rooter can clean lines, saving you thousands of dollars when compared to replacing lines.

Perhaps the most heartening response I’ve gotten to any column, however, is the one I wrote about women, and their obsession with age and weight. Ladies came off the scales and out of the closet to reveal these details about themselves. What a treat to finally see women getting real about this issue. In the year I’ve lived in Highlands, I’ve been amazed at how many gorgeous women live in this town. They come in all shapes and sizes, and I only wish they knew how beautiful they really are. The bottom line (as you intended) is that you don’t have to be 25, and a dress size 4 to be attractive.

I have no pretentions of being the Erma Bombeck of Western North Carolina, but if I can entertain my readers, it’s all I’ve ever wanted to do. I’ve never felt that I had the next Great American Novel somewhere in me, unlike many fellow members of the Highlands Writers Group, whose talent truly humbles me. “The most I’ve had is just a talent to amuse,” Noel Coward wrote for the 1929 musical revue “Bitter Sweet.” I hope to keep on doing just that, for as long as you’ll read me. If you have a comment or question, don’t hesitate to write. Or better still, introduce yourself to me at the postoffice, grocery, or hardware store. I am a huge fan of my readers.

About the Author: Michelle A. Mead is a writer and translator who grew up in Wayneboro, Virginia, before wasting her youth and good looks in Baltimore, Sydney, Paris, and New York. She lives on top of a mountain near Highlands, with two cats, a lawyer, and a recuperating tree named Oscar. Michelle likes to sing and write a little. She’s a member of the Writers-in-the-Round which will have a reading this Saturday at the Instant Theatre and will sing in the Saint-Saens Christmas Oratorio this Sunday at the Episcopal Church.

PseudoCube©
#BZ2C – Level of Difficulty – Easy

The cube has 27 consecutive numbers in it, arranged in three layers with 9 numbers each. These numbers are arranged in a special pattern: For each layer, the sum of the three numbers in each row, column or diagonal, is 3 times its center number. Eight diagonals connect all 3 layers by running through the center numbers. One of the diagonals is shown with circles.

The Challenge:
Start with the three center numbers for each layer and the other numbers given. Now pour a cup of coffee, pick up a pencil and eraser and try to figure out where the other numbers belong. Good Luck!

The first correct solution emailed earns a coupon for a FREE cup of coffee from Buck's Coffee Cafe on Main Street.

Object: Assign 9 different letters to each cell of 9 columns and 9 rows. In addition, nine 3 x 3 cells in the layout have the same nine different letters (this is similar to Sudoku but uses nine letters instead of nine numbers). A ‘mystery word or phrase’ using all nine different letters is designated by circled squares (other short words appear when solving, for which a list of meanings is provided). Every puzzle has a different ‘mystery word or phrase’ (no spaces).

How to Solve: Determine the nine different letters among those given. Try to solve the mystery word using the clue given and write it in. Other small words will appear in the puzzle. As in conventional crossword puzzles, a list of meanings for these ACROSS/ DOWN words is given and number positions shown. Doing them will speed up your solution to the puzzle. Using your powers of induction, inference and insight, place missing letters in all blank squares according to the rules noted above. Focus attention where the least number of letters are needed to complete a line, column or 3 x 3 cell.

“You need to maintain a backup position to continue incremental financing of capital projects. It may cost more and take longer while also maintaining the 25% unreserved fund balance, but the county will always end up with the same cash increase at the end of the year so the fund is replenished.”

Even with the lowest property tax rates in the state, its proceeds are the main revenue stream for the county — 51% of the county’s revenues.

The 2007 property tax revenues increased $613,690 over 2006 as did sales tax revenue — $600,059 over 2006.

Southard said community confusion concerning unreserved undesignated fund balances lies in the time of year.

“During an end-of-year audit, that 34% is actual expenditures versus the amount in the budget which is a projection,” she said. “We need $44 million budget to maintain a 25% unreserved fund balance of $11 million.”
