PB discusses attendance and surety bond

The Planning Board OK'd the subdivision of a piece of property in town, but most discussion involved attendance and surety bond amendment to the sedimentation & erosion control ordinance.

The attendance of member John Underwood, who is often unable to stay for entire meetings due to his commitment to boy scouts, spurred conversation about attendance in general.

Members of the Planning Board can't miss three meetings in a row or four for the entire year. Though Underwood rarely misses a meeting, he rarely stays for the final vote which concerns some members.

"When he's here, he makes good contributions to the meeting, but then he usually can't stay for the vote," said Cooley. "I need to know if this is OK with the board."

Some members said they didn't care, but others said the absence of his vote is felt.

The board instructed newly elected Chairman Thomas Craig to address the Town Board, which is the next step in changing policy or member-makeup. Mike Bryson was elected Vice Chairman at Monday’s June 28 meeting.

On the Catholic dilemma

Dear Editor,

My cousin, Patti Hampton, mailed me a copy of the June 10, 2010 Highlands’ Newspaper with the excellent article by columnist Fred Woolridge. He tells it like it is.

I am a “cradle” Catholic, and like him I am not going to leave our church because of the behavior of people (virtually all men) who are supposed to be our leaders. I have chosen to excommunicate them. However, I welcome any one of them back to our church if they repent and follow the instructions Jesus gives.

You are probably aware that some people who will read this article will very possibly be “triggered” to remember abuse they suffered earlier in their life, or know someone who was abused. You might refer such people to a world-wide helping organization called SNAP (Survivors Network of those Abused by Priests; www.snapnetwork.org). SNAP has broadened its outreach to offer help to people who were/are abused by religious authorities of any faith. Keep up your good work.

A difference of opinion

Dear Editor,

The sad thing about Fr. Murphy’s recent “Spiritually Speaking” article “Christianity and Culture” is that he has bought into the very thing he defends against.

He has bought into the deepest level of culture which at its worst polarizes ideas and people into two distinct sides, and then demonizes the other side. The Anglican Church, since its inception in the 1540s was founded in a culture dominated by this type of polarization. The Anglican Church, of which the Episcopal Church is a member, has always been defined by holding two sides together and chartering a third way – the via media.

The Episcopal Church is leading culture to a traditional, reasoned, scriptural definition of community that seeks Christ in all persons, respects the dignity of every human being, and preaches the Good News of Christ in word and deed.

However, I must agree with Fr. Murphy on two points. The Episcopal Church tends to be an echo chamber and its clergy are followers. When you walk into an Episcopal Church you will hear the core of scripture echoing in words and deeds, such as, Matthew 25:45, Mark 9:37, Luke 11:2, John 19:12, 1 Cor. 12:25, Galatians 3:28. And as clergy we are followers of the one who spoke these words while being silenced by the religious authority that used cultural language to divide their community: “Forgive them, for they know not what they do.”

Respectfully,
The Rev. Brian Sullivan, Rector of the Episcopal Church of the Incarnation

Some constructive criticism

Dear Editors,

I was visiting your area while taking a workshop at Highlands Biological Research Station and enjoyed reading your paper. However, in the interest of scientific and historical literacy, I would like to make a few comments on articles in your June 24 paper.

In her “History Lesson for July 4,” Gladys Calloway provides a quote from the Mayflower Compact as a reason for Columbus coming to the New World. Columbus arrived south of Florida in 1492. The Mayflower Compact was written at Plymouth Rock in 1620. Later she refers to a 1776 statement by the first US Supreme Court Chief Justice. There was no Supreme Court (or Chief Justice) until after the Constitution written in 1787 and ratified in 1789 took effect and our first president was elected! (The first Chief Justice would have been John Jay in 1789.)

In his “Itsy Bitsy Spider” article Fred Woolridge refers to the spotted owl in Miami. I believe he means the burrowing owl found only in southern Florida. Spotted owls are found only in the Pacific Northwest.

And finally, Grant Connette in his fine article about the age of the Appalachians refers to granite as metamorphic rock. Granite is igneous rock, although schist and gneiss are metamorphized granite.

Thanks for helping us keep the facts straight - printed words can last a long time!

“Was it good for you?”

omen .... some times they ask the dumbest questions. This would also include my!! I missed “Was it good for you?” she asked. “Ha, and ridiculous question. I mean, what’s not to like? There I was lying flat on my back in total ecstasy, my eyes glazed, and she asked “Was it good for you?” How could it possibly have not been good for me?

But wait, I’m ahead of my story. It all started right after dinner. She got that little twinkle in her eyes that I’ve seen many times. Then she smiled that evil smile I’ve also seen many times. She asked, “Wanna get some sugar, big guy?”

Adrenaline poured through me. I was so excited. “I’m up for it, sweet baby,” I responded. We quickly cleared the dishes from the table and headed for the bedroom to prepare. We didn’t do this so often as we used to now that we’re older than dirt. Maybe once a month, maybenot. Still, when it does happen …., there’s always fireworks, horns and whistles for both of us.

We sat on the bed and smiled at each other, then, as though we had rehearsed it a thousand times, we put on our sneakers. Excitement filled the air. Now it was decision time. Do we go to SweeTreats or Kilwin’s for our fix? We’ve both places so we flipped a coin. SweeTreats won. We’ll do Kilwin’s next time.

The walk from our house to the store seemed to take forever. I was lusting down while pigging out on chocolate yogurt. “With a surety bond, if a developer goes bankrupt and doesn’t have the money to fix...” said Cooley. “It’s a fail-safe thing.”

The walk home is always grueling because it’s uphill most of the way. And because we know there are hundreds and hundreds of calories coursing through our systems, we never drive to town to consume our sweets. Calories in …... calories out is our motto. Of course we’re not kidding ourselves. We’ve done it a thousand times, and it’s not good. We realize we don’t dispose of near enough calories on our walk home to burn calories we’ve gulped down while pigging out on chocolate yogurt.

Still, it’s always worth it.

The walk home was uneventful. The sun was setting and we knew that’s when the bears start to roam. And we’ve got bears on our lonely road to home. Having yogurt breath added extra danger to our trip. I envisioned a bear holding me down and licking the inside of my mouth. Yuck! We also discussed the attacks from bears, snakes, or raccoons. Maybe they don’t like chocolate yogurt. Who knows?

The next morning while having coffee, the li’l missus smiled, put her hand on my arm and asked, “Well, was it?”

“Was it what?” I asked.

“You know,” she responded. “Was it good for you?”

I smiled and shot back, “Most definitely … I just love chocolate yogurt.”

The board is looking at bonds from other municipalities and will decide what amount should be affixed to the bond or whether a “letter of credit” from a bank is good enough.

The board voted unanimously to allow Dwight Bryant of 260 Franklin Road, to subdivide his 1.6 acres zoned B4. A four-bedroom home is planned on the property where Bryant Art Glass is located.

The View from Here

On memorializing a snake...

Marley is doing well following his snake bite a week ago. Several readers asked about him. There was a report in the neighborhood that it was I, who was bitten, and another that someone had killed a large rattler near the spot where Marley was bitten. It turns out that a resident had run over a rattlesnake and that another person had “finished him off.” That event took place two days before Marley was bitten.

Bull, who had Marley on lead at the time of attack, mentioned that he had heard rattling just before Marley yelped and retreated from the tall grass. Bull is a pretty savvy mountain kid, so I’ll take him at his word. We found a dead rattler this morning. He was a little guy. The span between his fangs measures just less than one half inch. Puncture wounds are still visible on Marley’s muzzle, and measure a full seven eighths inch. I guess Marley was lucky to survive with nothing more than a sizable yet, well, bit.

I brought the dead snake home with the idea of mummifying it. In my understanding, the hot, dry conditions can lead to natural mummification. Then again, freeze dried mummies also occur. We have a largely useless kitchen appliance, a Brisker, which is intended to keep chips crispy. It occupies considerable counter space and consumes an unknown amount of electricity, but our chips are crisp. I thought it might be an ideal mummification chamber with conditions which would promote desiccation rather than purification. No one wants a putrefied snake in their heirloom Tupperware. What was I thinking? I’m so much better on weekdays.

One of the things about getting older is that you take a little time to reflect back upon the things that you have been on this earth and the experiences you have had.

This week, having reached the milestone of 3-0, I went back in the old memory banks and came up with a few observations on the past 30 years.

Top 5 sporting memories in my lifetime

5. U.S. beats Algeria in extra time—the reaction in the Rib Shack was tremendous and it was great to have everyone in America cheering for the same team.

4. Boise State defeats Oklahoma—one of those games where everyone was talking about it the next morning. Three trick plays to finish off the Sooners.

3. Duke defeats UNLV 79-77 in 1991. My parents wouldn’t let me stay up to watch the game since I was only 10, but in the morning the “Easter Bunny” left me a present in my basket that said simply “Duke 79, UNLV 77.” I’ll never forget that score, and it was an awesome present for a kid learning to love sports.

2. Saints win the Super Bowl. Growing up a Saints fan was never easy, but it was all worth it this February when Drew Brees and company won the Super Bowl.

1. Duke 104-Kentucky 103...the shot. What made it even sweeter was that my uncle called to gloat about Duke’s loss and was stunned when he realized he had celebrated prematurely. Great shot by a clutch player.

5 observations on getting older

1. When I was a kid and played in those lazy river pools I used to wonder why adults just wanted to lay in the tube and float slowly...now I wonder why those blessed kids can’t quit playing and just relax

2. When you get older everyone younger than you makes fun of you and calls you old, and everyone older than you tells you not to lament because you are still young—quite a set of mixed messages.

A new approach to eye care

At Blue Laser Group we combine 25 years of experience with truly remarkable technology, delivering the very best in eye care. We provide comprehensive care including routine eye exams, advanced diagnostics for the treatment of eye diseases and surgical eye care including laser vision correction (LASIK).

Laser technology is used in nearly every aspect of care at the Blue Laser Group. Diagnostic lasers allow us to identify macular degeneration, glaucoma and other eye diseases producing early diagnosis and treatment. Treatment lasers, typically described as virtually painless, can be used in many cases to prevent, damage and restore sight. Laser treatment for glaucoma can eliminate the need for expensive, irritating eye drops for some patients and laser vision correction (LASIK) gives patients the opportunity to say “goodbye” to glasses and contact lenses.

As a Board Certified Ophthalmologist I hold degrees and certificates from the University of Memphis, the University of Tennessee, the University of Arkansas, the University of Texas and the Harvard Medical School. I was a past Clinical Instructor at the University of Texas before entering private practice and also one of 50 original doctors in the country to serve on the CRSS study gaining FDA approval for the LASIK procedure. I performed one of the first LASIK procedures in the Southeast in 1996 and also performed the first corneal transplant in Athens.

I have been involved in nearly every aspect of eye care over the last 25 years offering innovative solutions to patient’s eye care needs. This summer when you make the decision to have LASIK with the Blue Laser Group we have an amazing offer. We are going to give you your MONEY BACK for your last pair of glasses and donate them to charity, because you will never wear that pair of glasses again. We will even GIVE you a pair of designer sunglasses. Call us for a FREE consultation at 888-2DR-BLUE.

I don’t want you to miss this view.

Suffering from glaucoma, macular degeneration, diabetic retinopathy or any vision impairment is bad for anyone. For people who live in a place as beautiful as our region, there’s even more to miss.

Dr. Richard Blue brings over 25 years of experience and truly remarkable technology to his Highlands practice to provide innovative solutions to his patients’ eye care needs.

So there’s no need to drive to Atlanta or Asheville for your eye care with the Blue Laser Group right in your backyard. We wouldn’t want you to miss the view.

At Highlands-Cashiers Hospital our goal is to help people recover, restore function and achieve their best possible potential after an illness, injury or surgery. Accomplishing this may require transitional care through our skilled rehabilitation services. Whether it is for just a few days, or for several weeks, we are on hand 24/7 to aid those requiring extended care. Our rehab team works closely with the patient’s physician to develop an individualized care plan for each patient. These may include: Physical Therapy, Occupational Therapy, Speech Therapy, IV Therapy, Respiratory Therapy and Nutritional Therapy.

Throughout rehabilitation however, we are also sensitive to the needs of our patients’ family members. We know that relatives and friends can play a vital role in the recovery of a patient; their support and participation being a huge factor in the healing process. At HCH, ease of access to friends and family is provided by our open visitation policy and also by being conveniently located for most community residents. It is the team effort of our physicians, nursing care and skilled rehabilitation professionals, combined with family support that allows us to transition the patient as quickly and safely as possible to their best possible level of health.

I don’t want you to miss this view.

Suffering from glaucoma, macular degeneration, diabetic retinopathy or any vision impairment is bad for anyone. For people who live in a place as beautiful as our region, there’s even more to miss.

Dr. Richard Blue brings over 25 years of experience and truly remarkable technology to his Highlands practice to provide innovative solutions to his patients’ eye care needs.

So there’s no need to drive to Atlanta or Asheville for your eye care with the Blue Laser Group right in your backyard. We wouldn’t want you to miss the view.

At Blue Laser Group we combine 25 years of experience with truly remarkable technology, delivering the very best in eye care. We provide comprehensive care including routine eye exams, advanced diagnostics for the treatment of eye diseases and surgical eye care including laser vision correction (LASIK). Lasers are used in nearly every aspect of care at the Blue Laser Group. Diagnostic lasers allow us to identify macular degeneration, glaucoma and other eye diseases producing early diagnosis and treatment. Treatment lasers, typically described as virtually painless, can in many cases prevent damage and restore sight. Laser treatment for glaucoma can eliminate the need for expensive, irritating eye drops for some patients and laser vision correction (LASIK) gives patients the opportunity to say “goodbye” to glasses and contact lenses.

As a Board Certified Ophthalmologist I hold degrees and certificates from the University of Memphis, the University of Tennessee, the University of Arkansas, the University of Texas and the Harvard Medical School. I was a past Clinical Instructor at the University of Texas before entering private practice and also one of 50 original doctors in the country to serve on the CRSS study gaining FDA approval for the LASIK procedure. I performed one of the first LASIK procedures in the Southeast in 1996 and also performed the first corneal transplant in Athens.

I have been involved in nearly every aspect of eye care over the last 25 years offering innovative solutions to patient’s eye care needs. This summer when you make the decision to have LASIK with the Blue Laser Group we have an amazing offer. I’ve got some good news and I’ve got some bad news. First, the good news. Miley Cyrus, the ex-Disney Channel Queenlet, whom we prayed wouldn’t turn smarmy, but has, restored our Hall of Shame by trying to out gaga Lady Gaga, whoever she is. All I know about her was to see her, half dressed, or half undressed, take your pick, at a ball game, Yankee’s I think. What is with these wacky broads, anyway?

Aside from showing off a not very memorable bod, what does she do?

I have made a serious strategic mistake in organizing my time this week. I’ve discovered that, during the time I’ve allotted for writing this week, there is a College World Series game being televised, a World Cup soccer game, currently in OT with the US behind, and a Braves’ game. So, if I make less sense than usual, you can understand my attention is somewhat divided.

The travail of General Stan McChrystal, ex- military leader in the war in Afghanistan, is perplexing, to say the least. How on Earth did a battle-hardened, highly educated and hopefully street smart guy ever allow a reporter from Rolling Stone, an ultra liberal magazine, to live with his entourage for a month is a total mystery to me. For a man, whose judgment could strongly influence the future of a nation, to make such a no-win decision boggles the imagination. I keep on hoping to hear some explanation like “the administration ordered me to do it”, but nothing is forthcoming to explain this lack of sense. It is easy to envision a bunch of the troops sitting around in some bar blasting the snot out of the civilian directors of this absurdity, even (or especially) the commanding General, but to have a reporter in the midst and assume that this inbed won’t spill his guts, is misguided at best, stupid at worst. Oh well, Petraeus isn’t a bad replacement.

On the subject of replacements, let’s look at the confirmation hearings starting tomorrow as I write this. Elena Kagan will soon replace Justice John Paul Stevens on the Supreme Court. So, we’re trading one liberal for another, what’s the big deal? Well, there are liberals, and then there are liberals. Kagan has a brilliant academic record, culminating in her being made Dean of Harvard Law School.

While there, she banished the military from her campus, taking exception to the “don’t ask, don’t tell” policy. There are a lot of things that make me uncomfortable about her that will come out in the hearings & Custom Picture Framing

Short sales - An alternative to foreclosure

In these uncertain economic times, many Americans are living from paycheck to paycheck, often extending themselves even further through credit card debt. For owners who can no longer afford to keep mortgage payments current, there are alternatives to bankruptcy or foreclosure proceedings. One option is a real estate short sale.

To help understand how a short sale differs from a foreclosure, it may be helpful to point out that short sales can also be referred to as “pre-foreclosure sales” which, as the name implies, precedes the home being officially repossessed or foreclosed on by the lender.

When lenders agree to do a short sale in real estate, it means the lender is accepting less than the total amount due. Banks grant short sales for two reasons: the seller has a hardship, and the seller owes more on the mortgage than the home is worth.

It might seem counterintuitive for a lender to go along with a short sale. After all, a lender is legally entitled to pursue the full balance of the loan. Foreclosure is an expensive and time-consuming process for a lender. By agreeing to a short sale, the lender wraps up this little mess quickly, and perhaps with less of a loss than it would have incurred with a foreclosure.

Remember, after foreclosing, the lender owns the home and has to maintain it, insure it and pay taxes on it. So instead of receiving payments each month, the lender is now forking out money every month. Plus, short sales help the lender look good on paper — the property never gets listed as an actual foreclosure, which helps the lender's numbers look better to bank regulators. They see it as the lesser of two evils — if the numbers make sense for them.

It should be noted that there are still negative implications for sellers in a short sale, even if less damaging than those associated with foreclosures and/or bankruptcy. For example, a short sale homeowner's credit will still be adversely affected by settling with the lender. However, short sales do carry less negative effects than foreclosures. Short sale sellers are widely seen as less risky than foreclosed sellers. Case in point, Fannie Mae recently adjusted their guidelines to dictate only a two year waiting period for a short sale seller to buy another primary residence, while they extended the waiting period for foreclosures to five years.

Except for certain conditions pursuant to the Mortgage Forgiveness Debt Relief Act of 2007, be aware the IRS could consider debt forgiveness as income, and there is no guarantee that a lender who accepts a short sale will not legally pursue a borrower for the difference between the amount owed and the amount paid. I suggest that all borrowers obtain legal advice from a competent real estate attorney and call their accountant to discuss short sale tax ramifications.

At its best, a short sale can be a win-win for both parties. For the seller, a short sale provides the opportunity to avoid foreclosure and the dreaded implications that a foreclosure brings, in addition to being able to return to home ownership sooner. For the lender, a short sale attains most of the value of the loan sooner, and avoids incurring additional costs.

I don’t know when I became aware that we were the poor relations.

In the beginning, the playing field was level. Bob and my father, Al, had served in the Signal Corps together in World War II, marrying two sisters. It was a toss-up which man came from the more modest family. Returning from the War, both had taken advantage of the GI Bill, being the first in their families to graduate from college. A Schenectady resident, my father joined the ranks of General Electric. My uncle got a job with a new company few people had even heard of—IBM.

As the years went on, the differences appeared. Working for an older, established company meant that moving up through the ranks was harder and slower. My father was not helped by his personality, either, as he was opinionated and undiplomatic.

Bob possessed charm my father lacked, and he rose through the ranks of IBM, ending up as a vice president. And that’s when it really hit home. The Lincoln Continental. The Porsche. The skiing trips to Gstaad. The vacations in the Caribbean. The house in Stamford, CT, whose previous owner, Ezio Pinza, had installed a doorbell which chimed “Some Enchanted Evening.” And, later, when Bob was transferred to Paris, the apartment in Paris’s chic 16th arrondissement, rented from a Countess who had chosen a sunnier climate to air her jewelry. My cousin, Phil, was sent to boarding school in Switzerland. My cousin, Nina, attended private school in Paris, rubbing elbows with the Kennedy cousins. My brother and I went to the local public high school in Virginia.

If this state of affairs bothered my mother, she never said. She has always been a quiet person, who nurses her sorrows in private. Her sister was loud and flamboyant, difficult to ignore, but my mother was academically brilliant and remarkably clever. I remember one incident quite clearly.

My aunt was having a dinner party which included the mayor of the small French country village where she and my uncle had purchased a manor house. All day long, my aunt and my mother slaved in the kitchen alongside my aunt’s maid to make sure the party would be a success. My mother had inquired about dressing for the evening’s event, and her sister assured her that she was fine as she was. Then, just before the guests were due to arrive, my aunt slipped upstairs, and returned in full makeup, elegant outfit, wearing her most expensive jewelry. She looked like a peacock; my poor mother looked like a wren. “How can you let her do that to you?” I raged. In spite of everything, my mother turned out to be a huge success, charming the other dinner guests with her intelligence, her quick wit, and her overwhelming kindness. Invitations to visit local dignitaries rained upon her. My aunt was livid.

I understand it better now. I lived in Paris for 14 years, married to Europeans, who made European salaries. A member of The American Cathedral in Paris (the local Episcopal Church), we regularly rubbed elbows with expats making huge American salaries, living in housing generously subsidized by American companies, buying American food from the US Embassy PX. These parishioners were not bad people, but for the most part, they had no idea how the rest of us lived. They assumed everyone shared their lifestyle. In those days, a simple French restaurant meal cost about 35-40 francs. These folks would drop 150 francs, just for lunch, without batting an eyelash. The American Cathedral was the site of many fundraising events, both for the church itself, and for the many charities supported by its parishioners. The problem came when the admission prices to these events were set. What was a reasonable price for the Europeans was a pittance to most Americans. What was a reasonable price for the Americans was a week’s grocery bill for many of us. Time and time again, we fumed in silence as we were excluded from social events we would have loved to attend. We were the Little Match Girl with our runny noses pressed against the window panes as we watched our wealthy friends swirl around the dance floor in their Bulgari baubles and beautiful ball gowns.

This state of affairs continued until a group of us, tired at being summarily excluded from all those events lead what amounted to a peasants’ revolt. We stormed the office of the Dean, and presented our grievances. And so was born a loophole in the whole system. The Cathedral, always looking for ways to save money, often scrambled to assure smooth, effective, (and let’s be honest here), cheap service. That’s where the Cinderella Clause came in. If a certain group of us would come in early, cook the meals, set and clear the tables, we would be allowed to attend the events for free. Naturally, that meant coming to the church in casual clothes, with our party gear and make-up stashed away until our miraculous transformations from scullery maids to belles of the ball. Of course, we missed eating the meals upstairs, but most of the time, we ate the same food. We just ate it in the kitchen.

Being the worker bees had benefits, too.

This brings me to summer in Highlands, that main season for charity and social events. Several locals have expressed their dismay to me that many events are priced beyond their means. In a community like ours, we don’t always know who is well off, and who is struggling. We tend to assume that folks are just like us, or in the case of the wealthy, just like themselves. John and I are thrilled to receive all the invitations that come our way, but we do have to pick and choose. Some days our favorite charities have to be Freeman Gas, Haywood Electric, and Verizon

1. Main Street: still an agreat sense of community and family amongst those who work here year around.
2. The Spring Street bypass: used to avoid Main St. for as long as I can remember…just don’t speed or the Dummy Cop will get you.
3. Highlands School: still the best in the state! I’m proud to continue to be a part of it.
4. Bridal Veil, Dry Falls and the like you can add an observation tower or two, but it doesn’t change the beauty of nature.
5. Slow drivers: I believe that this is the actual source of my hair loss. Engineers created over 20 pull off points on the Gorge Road, most of which have never been spoiled by a non-NC tag.

The camaraderie in the kitchen was tremendous. I often wondered if the rich folks upstairs were having as much fun as we were having in the kitchen! We joked, we told stories, we bared our souls to each other. We kidded the one lady who insisted on wearing full make-up in the kitchen, and who always wound up looking like Heath Ledger’s joker in The Dark Knight. After the food was hauled upstairs, we wet a broom, rubbing our sore feet, and preparing our transformations. I have to laugh, remembering a few wrinkled noses on the dance floor, as I waltzed around the dance floor in their best duds. And as for me, well, I’ll do the best I can, even these days when I don’t have to be a Cinderella and smell like onions.

The Highlands-Cashiers Chamber Music Festival is putting the final touches on its 29th season and its filled the schedule with returning favorite artists and some surprising new talents.

The season stretches from Friday, July 9, through Sunday, Aug. 15, culminating in a Gala Concert and Dinner Party. Concerts will be held at 6 p.m. Fridays at the Martin-Lipscomb Performing Arts Center in Highlands and repeated at 5 p.m. Saturdays at the Albert Carlton-Cashiers Community Library in Cashiers. Sunday concerts will be staged at 5 p.m. at the Performing Arts Center in Highlands and repeated at 5 p.m. Mondays at the Cashiers Community Library.

But a festival as storied as the HCCMF is bound to spill out from these venues – there’s off-site celebrations scattered throughout the season. Every Friday during the festival, Wolfgang’s Restaurant and Wine Bistro will be hosting special celebrations. After each Friday performance will offer a prix fixe dinner. Guests will be joined by that evening’s concert performers. Dinner will begin with a short cocktail hour with a glass of wine and passed hors d’oeuvres, followed by dinner at a cost of $60 per person. The wine list will be available at extra cost. A percentage of each dinner will benefit the festival.

Lakeside Restaurant will host an evening fundraiser for the Chamber Music Festival on Wednesday, July 7. When the festival’s supporters make reservations to dine at Lakeside that evening, they should specify that they’re associated with the festival. At the end of the evening, it will receive 15 percent of the gross profits for the evening’s receipts from its supporters.

The Inn at Half Mile Farm will host a glittering benefit on Wednesday, July 14. The celebration will be staged by Epting Events and will feature wines by Tiger Mountain Vineyards and performances by The Vega String Trio.

Buck’s Coffee House on Highlands’ Main Street will host a free evening of chamber music at 8 p.m. Wednesday, August 11.

In addition to its nationally-recognized program of concerts, the festival is laced with a series of Feasts of the Festival. They’re a chance to meet fascinating people and enjoy marvelous food and drink in some of the most breathtaking homes in Western North Carolina. Feasts continue through September 19th and will feature an irresistible series of locations and menus.

But at the heart of the festival is its amazing lineup of achingly beautiful performances of the world’s finest chamber compositions by some of its most talented artists. This year will showcase the magnificent works of Frederic Chopin and Robert Schumann, both of whom were born 200 years ago this year. To commemorate the 100th anniversary of the birth of Samuel Barber, festival-goers will hear the haunting “String Quartet Op. 11.”

Of course, scattered throughout the festival will be the works of Beethoven, Mozart, Mendelssohn, Ravel as well as violinists William Preucil and Kate Ransom, the Eroica Trio, the Vega String Quartet and cellists Chris Rex and Charae Krueger, and by welcoming new guest artists including the Albers Trio, virtuoso pianists Anton Nel and Victor Asuncion, the rising-star Attacca String Quartet, and Italian violinist Francesco Mezzina among others.

The festival season closes Aug. 15 with a gala concert and dinner that will feature Charles Wedgeworth. For 50 years, for more information about the festival and its full lineup of performances and events, visit www.h-chm.com or call (828) 526-9060.

'Sylvia' next up at The Playhouse - July 8-18

By Joseph Litsch

"Give a dog a woman’s name and you’ll begin to think of her as a woman." — A. R. Gurney

Obviously, with that in mind, Gurney, an established playwright who developed his craft writing shows for the troops during the Korean War, sat down to write “Sylvia,” which opens Thursday, July 8, at Highlands Playhouse.

Greg, middle-aged husband and father and new resident of New York City, was out for a walk in the park when fate stepped in and turned a simple outing into a mental and personal crisis. She was a mutt. An adorable — at least to Greg — four-legged mixture of poodle and retriever and who knows what else. And the tag around her neck simply read: Sylvia, a woman’s name.

For Greg, it might as well have read: trouble. How was he to know? It was love at first sight and it was totally reciprocal. Well, why not? Greg and his wife Kate had raised their children and sent them on to college. They sold the empty nest and moved from the New York suburbs into the city, ready for a more exciting lifestyle.

Then Greg met Sylvia and...well, you’ve heard the one about the best-laid plans. Needless to say, things began to go awry, especially for Kate who immediately dislikes the new “woman” in their lives. And Sylvia feels the same about Kate. Fortunately, for the audience, Sylvia is played by two-legged actress Katie Hayes, who speaks as well as wag her tail and employ other canine mannerisms.

Gurney conceived and created “Sylvia” for actress Sarah Jessica Parker of “Sex in the City” fame on both the large and small screens. The original production opened a limited engagement at NYC’s Manhattan Theater Club, May 2, 1995; then moved to the John Houseman Theatre that September. Ms. Parker was nominated for Drama Desk Award Best Actress.

Playing Kate and Greg are Cheryl Chalmers, who is returning to Highlands Playhouse, and Eric Rolland, making his debut here. Stuart Armor will alternately play three roles: Tom, Phyllis and Leslie.

As Greg’s fascination with Sylvia escalates into an obsession, Kate becomes equally obsessed with her annoyance at her husband’s involvement with “another woman.” The whole situation could easily slip into a depressing, confusing mess, save for Gurney’s masterful writing and ability to infuse humor into uncommon situations. He manages to keep the laughs coming. And with some unexpected moves, Gurney delivers a delightful evening of comedy.

Sarah Jessica Parker as the first “Sylvia.”

We live in the greatest country on earth and the reason for that is freedom. I believe too many people fail to understand the real definition of freedom. John 8:32 tells us what freedom is. “Then you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free.” Freedom is found in truth. Truth the foundation of this nation is planted in, is that each person is better equipped to make decisions about his own life than government bureaucrats. The founding fathers understood this and wrote a Constitution that was to be the basis of the truth that would govern our land. It was to control government not men. It was to keep government out of the everyday lives of the people. Thomas Jefferson said “The two enemies of the people are crime and government, so let us tie the second down with the chains of the Constitution so the second will not become the legalized version of the first.”

We have failed to follow the lead of our great fathers. We have allowed government to read many rights into the Constitution that were not a part of the truths our fathers set down. We have failed to follow that simple truth and have lost much of our freedom. There is no right in the constitution to an abortion. There is no right in the constitution to homosexual marriage. There is no right in the constitution to freedom from religion. There is nothing in the Constitution that gives government the right to take away a business on the verge of failing. It is important to understand that once you begin to allow something that is forbidden in the Constitution, the next thing you do is to prohibit something that is allowed (second amendment) and when that happens freedom is dead.

No where in the Constitution or any other document is our nation expressly set down as a Christian nation but it was built on Christian principles. The very form of our government was taken from Presbyterianism. There can be no doubt that many of our founding fathers were Christian. They stood on the Bible as their foundation. They laid down the truth about government and man’s inalienable rights, held apart from government, as they learned them from God’s Word.

Truth and truth alone is the foundation of freedom. The prophet declared to the people of Judah in Jeremiah 7:28 “Truth has perished; it has vanished from their lips.” Because of its loss Judah was destroyed. Unless we return to the truth as our foundation and make our stand on the truths of God’s Word, we totter on the brink of a darkness that threatens to destroy every good thing this nation has ever represented.

‘Skin Cancer’
Physician Forum offered at Hospital

Highlands-Cashiers Hospital will be offering a lecture entitled “Skin Cancer”, presented by Board Certified Dermatologist, Paul S. Cabiran, MD, July 12th at noon in the Jane Woodruff Medical Clinic. This complimentary lunch and learn educational session, is part of the Hospital’s Physician Forum series of monthly lectures on current health issues.

Participants will learn the latest information regarding skin cancers including Basal Cell Carcinoma, Squamous Cell Carcinoma and Melanoma. Dr. Cabiran will discuss how use of sunscreens and photo protection including: UVA and UVB sun blocks, combined with proper sun safety, can help fight skin cancers.

“Community participation and involvement at our first two physician forums has been outstanding”, said Robin T.
Taylor, Executive Director of Foundation and Marketing. “We encourage all residents to take advantage of the opportunity to meet members of our highly skilled medical staff and learn critical information on important health topics.”

Attendees will be served a light boxed lunch followed by a half hour educational seminar and ending with a question and answer session. Those interested in attending are asked to please RSVP (828) 526-1313 or email info@hchospital.org as space is limited.

cool roadside it once was and keep it that way;
Folks would remember to signal turns and to slow down by the post office and stay to the right of the center line;
How about taking back the store those shopping carts and not using open parking spaces as diagonal shortcuts;
Taking your litter to a trash can;
Moving a little faster when you walk across the street;
Using inside voices and private spots for cell phone conversations;

Thank You
Highlands Police Department!

Dear Editor,

Thank you to Chief Harrell and the entire Highlands Police Department for enforcing the state of North Carolina’s DWI (driving while intoxicated) laws in Highlands both fairly and without prejudice. No individual or neighborhood in Highlands should feel entitled to being exempt from having to comply with state of North Carolina highway safety laws.

Many citizens in Highlands appreciate the fact that the Highlands Police Department makes every effort to apply these and other laws evenly and fairly and without selectivity depending on what neighborhood one may live in, or on what station in life one may enjoy, and in spite of the fact that some local officials and others have tried to interfere or tamper with their duties as sworn officers of the law.

The Highlands Police Department, as any police department, should always remain completely independent of any political influence or pressure, and should never be used as a tool by the power elite or their political cronies to selectively, or with prejudice, apply state or federal laws. To do so would be discriminatory and in violation of federal law.

There are only three or four major highways leading into Highlands and it only makes sense that police officers would patrol and intercept drunk drivers on those highways. It would only take one tragedy having someone’s loved one seriously injured or killed in any particular neighborhood by a drunk driver before the citizens of Highlands would cry loudly to the police department for not enforcing the laws in their neighborhood.

Thank you again to the Highlands Police Department for keeping our streets and highways as safe as possible from drunk drivers.

Thank you to Chief Harrell and the entire Highlands Police Department for enforcing the state of North Carolina’s DWI (driving while intoxicated) laws in Highlands both fairly and without prejudice. No individual or neighborhood in Highlands should feel entitled to being exempt from having to comply with state of North Carolina highway safety laws.

Many citizens in Highlands appreciate the fact that the Highlands Police Department makes every effort to apply these and other laws evenly and fairly and without selectivity depending on what neighborhood one may live in, or on what station in life one may enjoy, and in spite of the fact that some local officials and others have tried to interfere or tamper with their duties as sworn officers of the law.

The Highlands Police Department, as any police department, should always remain completely independent of any political influence or pressure, and should never be used as a tool by the power elite or their political cronies to selectively, or with prejudice, apply state or federal laws. To do so would be discriminatory and in violation of federal law.

There are only three or four major highways leading into Highlands and it only makes sense that police officers would patrol and intercept drunk drivers on those highways. It would only take one tragedy having someone’s loved one seriously injured or killed in any particular neighborhood by a drunk driver before the citizens of Highlands would cry loudly to the police department for not enforcing the laws in their neighborhood.

Thank you again to the Highlands Police Department for keeping our streets and highways as safe as possible from drunk drivers.

that are currently going on. While Obama has the gavel when it comes to the choosing members of the Supreme Court, and no one blames him for picking a liberal, this choice is likely not to have a very good grasp on real life. Born and raised in New York city, and while a student at Princeton, took a strong interest in Socialism. While Dean at Harvard, she hired Cass Sunstein, a Marxist of the first dimension, to the faculty. It doesn’t look good.

Well, the oil spill continues to pollute the oceans while Obama, who took charge of the disaster, does little or nothing to remedy the matter. He and his administration are too busy beating on Arizona for trying to do the job the Federal government is charged with in cleansing their state of undocumented (illegal) aliens. Thirty-something states are contemplating the same approach, which should keep Holder busy for quite a while. While he seems to be advancing to the rear in closing Guantanamo, suing most of the country should keep him from other mischief for a while.

Depending upon your news source, you may or not be aware of the impact that Constitutional activists, otherwise known as the Tea Party, are having on the political outlook of the country. Dems are running away from anymore spending programs for fear of losing their jobs to TP backed candidates who are ready to pull the string on spending.

Meanwhile, our Keynesian-infected President is in Canada trying to convince Europe’s leaders to borrow and spend more and more while they are staring reality in the face and are preaching austerity on steroids to try to pull their economies out of the junk pile.

If all these problems are pulling you down, how about starting off your Independence Day festivities by joining hundreds of your friends and neighbors at the Franklin gazebo at the Courthouse Square Friday the 2nd at 11:30 for a good old Tea Party. The theme is “Let Freedom Ring” and several speakers and entertainers will lift your spirits.
