ABC Store gave town $83,733 in 2012

The state of the Highlands ABC Store has been the subject of several Town Board meetings since last year - culminating this budget year with free utilities.

The reason behind the move is to offset the store's decrease in profits since it moved from the town-owned building which is now the Police Department to its bigger, more expensive space in Highlands Plaza.

At the June 20 public hearing on the budget, Commissioner Eric Pierson and Mayor David Wilkes lobbied hard for the ABC

Store's free utilities when it was questioned by citizen Slocum Howland. The store was billed 6,574.01 for utilities in 2012.

Commissioner Pierson said it's likely the effects of an ABC

Fourth of July in Highlands

The Fourth of July is an all-day affair in Highlands. At 11 a.m., the Highlands Recreation Department holds traditional games at the ball field on Hickory Street. Games include a three-legged race, a water balloon toss, a water relay and a frozen t-shirt activity beginning at 11 a.m. The MAMA Helicopter will land sometime during the festivities and Highlands Rotary will be serving BBQ in the Community Building beginning at noon.

At 3 p.m., the Highlands United Methodist Church will present a Patriotic Music Handbell Concert in the sanctuary on Main Street and 8 p.m., the First Presbyterian Church will present its annual patriotic concert featuring the Men's Choir, organist Angie Jenkins and bagpiper Dave Landis.

Fireworks will be shot off from the Recreation Park when it gets dark and can be seen from anywhere in town -- usually around 9 p.m.

Split vote reveals different mindsets

Macon County still has lowest tax rate in the state

By Davin Eldridge

After narrowly approving its proposed $47,145,470 budget for the new fiscal year, County Commissioners find themselves in a state of differing political philosophies.

June's budget vote, following numerous work sessions, contentious debates and a public hearing, resulted in a 3-2 split vote. Commission chairman Kevin Corbin, a traditional Republican, along with Commissioners Ronnie Beale, a moderate Democrat, and Jim Tate, a moderate Republican, voted in favor of the budget, while conservative Republican Commissioners Paul Higdon and Ronnie Haven cast dissenting votes.

The many 'cities' in Highlands

Dear Editor

Fred Wooldridge's letter in the June 27 edition "The tale of two cities ..." was right on. Highlands has got rich folks and those that are struggling.

If you want to see some of those who are struggling, come by the Community Care Clinic on Aunt Dora Road off of Buck Creek Road any Thursday night. That's clinic night when the working poor of the Highlands-Cashiers area come for free health care.

Many make appointments. Others walk in. All have some health problem or injury. Volunteer physicians and other providers treat them, give them prescriptions and in some cases refer them to specialists.

In many cases, the clinic can provide the prescriptions they need for free. Most say if the clinic wasn't available, they just wouldn't seek healthcare any place else. Those chronic problems they have would just get worse without the clinic.

If you are among those of us who love Highlands and came here for the beautiful weather and the quality of life that's found here, you can help those who are working to make ends meet, support their families, don't have health insurance, but need healthcare and can't afford it.

Write a check to the Community Care Clinic of Highlands-Cashiers, Inc and send it to 52 Aunt Dora Drive; Highlands, NC 28741. The Clinic is helping people and your check will help the Clinic keep seeing those folks who need it every Thursday night.

Missing conscience

Dear Editor,

Surely this will not be the only letter written about the conflicts of interest displayed by the Town Board in offering free utilities as their generous gifts to certain special non profits.

Those who are not affected by the free utilities decision may not wish to be involved; but those who are left out of its decision to offer free utilities to certain non profits it is a big deal. Do the ABC Store, Chamber of Commerce and The Highlands Playhouse deserve the gift more than say the Child Development Center?

Ever since the ABC Store moved to the Mitchell property, a large chunk of profit has gone for rent. I would like to know if we actually get more money for the town now than we did when the ABC Store was located on town property.

Maybe the town only needs to pay utilities for the non profits actually based on town property. Maybe the town could generously offer cut rate utilities to non profits—all of them, not just special ones.

Hopefully this problem can be solved fairly. I worry that when something gives the impression of unfairness a bit of trust for our elected officials shrinks. I thank the How-lands for facing the entire town board and bringing this issue to the attention of the tax payers.

Hammering Higdon

Dear Editor,

There's been a lot of "Hammer on Higdon" sentiment in the news lately. Commissioner Higdon ran on a promise of smaller government, less spending and less taxes. It's refreshing to see a politician who is willing to stand by his convictions and promises! Higdon has not allowed any special interests to sway him.

Although Higdon, won his election by a substantial margin we continue to see one 3 to 2 vote after another with Haven usually siding with Higdon in the minority trying to control the growth of government and spending. Higdon and Haven recently tried to lower property taxes proposing a 4 ½ mil decrease and proving the county had the funds available. They felt the taxpayers could use a break. It fell on deaf ears. Not even a compromise or token ½ mil reduction.

Increased spending...will it ever stop? Ball fields, Sheriff Dept, Soccer fields, Schools, County Employee raises, etc. Did you know that although most county employees got maybe a 1,000+/- annual raise there's a bunch that got a 3,000 - 6,000 annual raise costing the county about 800,000 every year from here on? Did you get a raise? Did Macon County's economy grow by 6.8% last year? Is your income increasing?

Last years proposed budget was 44 Million. This year it's: 47 Million. That's a 3 Million increase (6.8%). Folks, this town and county are withering. Businesses closing, construction barely breathing, real estate still dominated by distress sales yet we continue to increase spending. The "headline" is that our taxes did not increase. Here in Burningtown our taxes did increase despite Higdon's opposition. So, Commissioner Higdon - THANK YOU for trying and PLEASE continue your fight! There's plenty of "quiet folks" out here that support you and Haven so stand tall! It would sure be nice to see others join you.

Prior to the vote, numerous department heads, community nonprofits, and other entities which regularly receive county assistance pled with the board for renewed (and at times increased) funding, in the face of state and federal reversions. Despite the financial obstacles, the board was able to pass a budget that proposed no new tax increases, while providing adequate services at the behest of worried department heads.

Just prior to the vote, Corbin briefly commented on the split board in an official statement. He also lauded County Manager Jack Horton And Chief Financial Officer Lori Hall for their work on the 2013-14 budget. Horton and Hall, he explained, were asked to carry out the directive of balancing the budget using current revenue sources without any tax increases. "That wound up being a tall order with the cuts the school system received from the State and Federal Governments," he said.

To balance the budget, Horton proposed that Commissioners use the approximate $2 Million undesignated fund balance to primarily fund non-recurring, one time purchase expenses and acquisitions. "I think this is responsible budgeting and goes along with my guiding principles as a conservative when it comes to budgeting," Corbin said in his statement. "Irresponsible budgeting is when you use your savings (or undesignated fund balance) to fund all recurring expenses. Liberal budgeting, as I will call it, is what the federal government had done in funding projects with [stimulus funds] that they did not have when many local governments and school districts used that federal money to fund recurring expenses... Ask some folks how that worked out for them."

Corbin pointed out the U.S. federal government is currently approximately $17 trillion in debt, while the local Macon County government is "blessed" to have a balanced budget—one with a projected fund balance of $14,200,000 for the new fiscal year. "That will be almost exactly a 30% fund balance, or enough resources to operate the county for 3.6 months," said Corbin.

But while Corbin maintained that the budget was, by nature, drafted conservatively, he acknowledged the differing conservative points of view which make up the board politically.

"I know those of us who consider themselves conservative feel that having adequate operating capital is desired over being broke like the federal government and needing to look to raise taxes," Corbin continued. "We have held the line on taxes and at the same time are doing important things like funding our school, hiring one additional SRO for our sheriff, funding the replacement of safety equipment for our deputies and EMS worker, buying new lifesaving equipment for our ambulances, funding adequate and much needed recreation space, and much more. We are doing so with no tax increases and at the same time making sure the citizens of Macon County have adequate-but not excessive-services," Corbin said.

To make this happen, Corbin explained that the County, at the behest of Commissioner Jim Tate, has refinanced most of the county's debt at "substantially lower rates." In each case, Corbin commented, interest rates were lowered through modification "with little or no cost to the taxpayer", which yielded savings of roughly $2.5 million. "We commend Commissioner Tate for his vision and for Lori Hall for making it a reality. We have been successful in shifting expense in interest to banks to investment in schools, recreation, law enforcement, EMS, and other needed services."

Corbin boasted that Macon County continues to have the lowest tax rate in North Carolina, at 27.9 cents per $100 valuation, citing a NC Department of Revenue tax rate figures, which calculated the effective tax rates of all 100 North Carolina counties as a factor of actual sales versus valuation. "These calculations place us as the fourth lowest effective tax rate in the state of North Carolina," said Corbin. "Carteret County was at 31.71, Swain County at 31.86, Watauga County at 31.93, and coming in fourth from the lowest effective tax rate in the state—Macon, at 33.58."

With such figures in mind, Corbin urged his fellow commissioners to pass the budget ordinance unanimously. "It is conservative and responsible for the citizens of our county. To vote for it is to vote for the services provided. To vote against it will be to vote against the school budget, the sheriff's budget, The EMS budget, etc... You cannot vote against it and claim to be in support of these services," he said. "You must also vote to pay for it. I hope each of you will support the budget as presented tonight."

But Macon's newly adopted budget is not conservative enough, according to Commissioners like Ron Haven or Paul Higdon, who professed their belief that they "vote their conscience."

There's a phenomenon occurring in America that hasn't happened since the invention of the telephone. Even in li'l ole Highlands, there are secret meetings occurring between politicians who don't even like each other or get along. Everyone is cooperating with everyone. Kumbayah's are flying everywhere.

Nationally, party affiliation no longer matters. Race no longer matters. Religious affiliations no longer matter. Gays and homophobes are putting their heads together. (Hummmm) America has rallied around a single cause: Get Edward Snowden. He's the not too bright traitor/

He must be captured, maybe even snuffed, before he reveals secret phone calls made by world and national leaders to their secret lovers. Yes, I said secret lovers.

Ha, and you thought all this brouhaha was about national security and fear that Russia and/or China would get the codes to shut down our missile defense system and crush us once and for all. Guess again, turkey-breath. This is all about who is sleeping with who.....or should I say whom? It's about who is playing 'hide the sausage' with who...or whom? It's about who is poking fun at who....or whom. Well, you get the picture, right?

Since the li'l missus and I are joined at the hip, we don't have secret lovers; we are secret lovers. But we have a different issue with Snowden. Ya see, we own a Verizon cell phone and make four or five calls to the Middle East each week. We expect NSA agents to come pounding on our door at anytime to question us about the possibility we're having phone sex with the Arabs. NOT GUILTY! For us, it's just idle chit-chat with our son and his wife who live there. Besides, sex is something the Middle East folks don't even acknowledge exists. Children are created through osmosis.

Oh, and if you would like for me to publish the secret lover's name and phone number of your worst enemy, call me on my international cell phone in Dubai at 1-800-har-har-you-are-toast.

"In my opinion we have three democrats on our board of commissioners," said Haven. "I don't care how they are registered. If you believe you're a conservative, and you're wasting taxpayer money, I won't agree that you're a republican or a conservative... I try to uphold conservative ideals."

Haven maintains that, while in the end he voted to provide increased services, many expenditures could have been kept to a minimum.

"My opinion is that spending got out of hand last year, and other members aren't being as responsible with tax money as they could be."

Commissioner Ron Beale voted in-step with Corbin, and pushed for increased public health services, according to official minutes.

"The board has definitely changed a lot," said Beale who in his second term has seen eight commissioners come and go. "I think that my colleagues all view government spending differently. Needs will always continue to increase and be you a conservative or a moderate, we have to always consider that. Bit I believe this board can work together as we did with this budget."

"There is no set profit percentage that must be maintained," she said. "However the ABC Commission does encourage stores to make a profit; but there is no set percentage."

A bridge too far?

I have succumbed to many temptations in life. Others, however, have been easier to avoid. Smoking has never held any charm for me, and I can honestly say I've never smoked a cigarette in my life. I am only a recent convert to driving. And while I've been known to gambol, I don't like to gamble, because of a dubious ancestor who squandered his money on fast women and slow horses. When you are the youngest of four people in a household, it takes a certain amount of stubbornness not to go with the flow. My parents and brother were all keen tennis players, and when they weren't playing tennis, they were playing bridge. A lackluster tennis player at best, I nonetheless gave it a valiant effort, but as for card games, I felt that bridge was really a bridge too far.

Bridge nights had been fun at our house when I was growing up. Daddy set up our three bridge tables in the living room. My job was to dress the tables from our collection of tablecloths with matching napkins. We had an assortment of playing cards - many souvenirs from ocean liners or international flights. Scoring pads were put out; tiny pencils were sharpened in the pantry. The finishing touch was filling up small glass dishes with pastel mints. This was a treat for us, because we were seldom allowed to eat candy, except on bridge nights. The same was true for sodas - normally a family "no-no", my parents would bring out big bottles of 7-Up and Canada Dry ginger ale for those special evenings.

Eric and I would greet the arriving bridge players at the door - taking coats, gloves, and scarves in cold weather. My parents' friends were mostly a combination of Daddy's GE colleagues, and the parents of our classmates. My folks claimed that there were households where you never saw the kids; they stayed in their rooms the whole time, ignoring the adults. It was a treat for us to have guests - to have them ask about school and hobbies, to be told how grown-up we were getting. We would never have thought of having adults in the house without coming to say "hi". In a way, these kind people were like the aunts and uncles we never got to see because our own real family lived too far away. Having met all the visitors, we stole a few candies, and snuck off back to our bedrooms to do homework, sodas in hand. I'll never forget drifting off to sleep to the sound of adult voices, often laughing, sometimes frustrated, calling out "no trump" to the tune of clinking cocktail glasses. I thought bridge was a magical, grown-up ritual, full of secret rules and codes, which I would learn one day. Can you imagine? Sometimes they even called someone the "dummy"! How cool was that?

In Key West, my parents had learned to play bridge, along with other card games like pinochle and canasta. Somehow, I never wound up in a group of people who played bridge, and then, like driving, it seemed almost mortifying to admit I didn't know how. John played at Yale, a fact that stunned me. When I was in college, I didn't have time to eat and sleep, much less play cards. When I came to Highlands, it seemed this might be the place where I would finally learn to play bridge. Like many things in life, it wasn't that easy.

I had gone to an Open House held by neighbors. Most of the people there were nodding acquaintances, with a few strangers thrown in for good measure. One of these was a tall, strikingly handsome middle-aged woman. We began to chat, and found that we had many things in common, a European background and travel among them. I was delighted to make her acquaintance, pleased that, in her, I'd found someone with whom I could talk about things that might get you branded a snob in a small town. And then came the crushing blow. I had been talking about concerts and lectures that she might be of interest to her, when she stopped me dead in my tracks. "Do you play bridge?" she intoned, in a voice heavy with judgment. "No, I don't," I replied, "Well, at least not yet." Suddenly icy and distant, she was brief and to the point. "All of my social life revolves around playing bridge. So, if you don't play, I guess we won't be running into each other." And with that, she turned on her heels, and strode away, never giving me so much as a backward glance. I stood there, crushed, with my glass of wine, and a half-eaten chip covered in pimento cheese. Nope, this hadn't been Casablanca. It was not the beginning of a beautiful friendship.

My mother died in March, my marvelous card-playing mother who was so secretly proud of her beautiful hands, which she regularly showed off when playing bridge. The Mead family had lost not only a matriarch, but also a bridge player, and I wondered if it wasn't time to step up to the plate. CLE was offering "Beginner Bridge", which claimed to be for people who had never played bridge before. The course was taught by Duane Meeter, who I am personally nominating for sainthood. The class was in two sessions of three hours each, just enough to test the waters without drowning. Even for an absolute beginner, there's a lot you can learn in six hours. "Diamonds are a girl's best friend", but spades are even better. "Taking tricks" isn't even remotely related to "turning tricks." We even learned about the famous Bennett Murder case, where a woman murdered her husband over his bidding and playing of a bridge hand in 1929 - and was acquitted.

So, am I a convert to bridge? Yes, I think I am. It would certainly be nice to play more. One thing puzzled me, though. "Famous for being famous" Kim Kardashian and Kanye West recently had a baby girl, and named her "North." I just spent two whole days being "East," and People magazine hasn't even called me yet. Am I upset? Not this dummy.

renew its lease at $1 a year for 10 more years so it could expand. The plan was to use the downstairs for office and storage and to expand the upstairs for more product.

At that time, the Town Board told the ABC Board that its five-year plan for expansion of Town Hall included the use of the current ABC building and that the ABC Board should begin looking for a new location.

At that point, commissioners gave the ABC Board the "verbal" OK to withhold Local profit proceeds earmarked for the town so it could prepare for its future needs.

During fiscal year 2008-'09 a resolution was signed allowing for the continued withholding of its Local Distribution Funds.

In 2008, David Wilkes, then president of the ABC Board, began negotiating with Margaret O'Donnell for a space in Highlands Plaza. He said the location would increase traffic, enable the store to expand and offer more products. A 20-year lease was negotiated.

With the "few hundred thousand dollars" the store had put aside with the Local distribution reprieve, the

• HEALTH MATTERS •

Making the tummy flat

Would you or do you know someone who would like a flatter tummy and thinner waist? Abdominoplasty (Tummy Tuck) helps do this by removing excess fat and skin from the tummy area and tightening the stomach muscles. The best candidates are of normal weight and in good physical condition with localized fat and loose skin that have not responded well to diet and exercise. Abdominoplasty is especially useful if the skin and muscles stretched from pregnancy or previous weight. Ideally, females should not plan on having any further children.

When I first started doing tummy tucks, it was the only procedure available to rejuvenate the abdomen. Therefore, we did them for excess fat as well as for excess skin. After the introduction of liposuction, however, indications changed to generally just excess skin, which was almost exclusively following pregnancy. However, particularly over the last 10 or 15 years, the most common reason for doing a tummy tuck is significant excess skin remaining after weight loss. Today we not only see people who have lost significant weight from diet and exercise, but also those who have undergone surgical procedures for weight loss.

The procedure consists of removing essentially all the fat and skin from below the umbilicus, stretching the skin and fat from above the umbilicus to cover the entire abdomen, and relocating a modified belly button to its proper location. While doing this, the underlying muscle is tightened to cinch the waist and also flatten the tummy. Additionally, localized areas of fat, either in the flanks or centrally in the abdomen, can be modified, usually using liposuction as an adjunct. Although the scar is relatively long and stretches from hip to hip, it can be modified so that it will hide under a very skimpy bikini or a French-cut swim suit and there are techniques to make it almost invisible.

Surgery takes approximately three to four hours, using general anesthesia and can be done as an outpatient or with an overnight hospital stay. Recovery time ranges from two weeks to a month or longer. The reason recovery takes as long as it does is because we put the skin together so tightly. We have found that if we simply remove what comes off easily and allow for simple closure in a flat position, the skin stretches back and you have loose skin again in about six months to a year. By bending the table to flex the waist and putting the tissues together exceptionally tightly, you will still be tight at a year and longer. The down side of this is that you walk around somewhat bent over for about a week, as it takes about that long for the tissues to stretch and for you to straighten totally. Although most discomfort from the surgery itself is gone in several days, until you are able to stand up straight it is the back that bothers you the most. With a balanced

diet and regular exercise, results are long lasting. In fact, many people even lose more weight after the procedure. We assume that this is because their satiation center resets because of their new svelte self.

Sometimes, by doing more liposuction (a mini-abdominoplasty), you can have a shorter scar if the only excess skin you have is in the lower abdomen. With this procedure, we can also tighten the upper abdominal muscles and thin the waist by using an endoscope (a lighted tube which projects the area under the skin to a TV screen) through a small incision within the umbilicus.

No matter what method is necessary to achieve a flat tummy, the procedure markedly changes the appearance of the abdomen and the way one fits in clothing. It can, in the case of markedly excess skin, also reduce rashes and irritation. In spite of the rather long recovery, I find an exceptionally high satisfaction rate with this procedure.

Mountains in Bloom welcomes Flower Magazine founder Margot Shaw

Margot Shaw of flower magazine, sponsor of its summer Mountains in Bloom garden festival, will be participating. Not only will Shaw be a special guest at the Volunteer Preview Event on Thursday, July 11, but she also will present the award for the Best in Show in the flower arranging division on Saturday, July 13.

she began looking for a lifestyle magazine on flowers. Nothing existed at the time except industry publications and catalogs, so Shaw decided to start her own magazine and flower was born, debuting in 2007 in the Southeast. The seasonal publication was the first in the United States geared to flower enthusiasts, novice and professional floral designers.

The theme of this year's Mountains in Bloom is "Come Rain or Come Shine." Other events from Thursday, July 11 through Sunday, July 14, include a luncheon and lecture by Kathryn Greeley, author of The Collected Tabletop; tours of the featured private gardens on Friday and Saturday, including luncheon served both days on The Bascom terrace; wonderful flower show exhibits throughout the campus, as well as featured exhibitions in the main gallery spaces, always free; and a benefactor-only dinner on Sunday at The Farm at Old Edwards Inn, when Robert Balentine, CEO of Balentine, event sponsor, will present the coveted Balentine Award.

Garden tour tickets are $80 per person until June 15; after that, the price is $85. Mark your calendar and secure your tickets early! Contact Claire Cameron, Events Manager, for more information at ccameron@thebascom.org or call 828-282-2882.

Designer and Author Kathryn Greeley joins The Bascom's Mountains in Bloom for luncheon lecture

Talented author and interior design Kathryn Greeley will headline a luncheon and lecture during Mountains in Bloom, The Bascom's popular summer fundraiser, on Thursday, July 11, at 11:30 am at Coleman Hall at Highlands Presbyterian Church. Ms. Greeley is author of The Collected Tabletop, now in its third printing. Owner of Kathryn Greeley Designs, she has provided professional interior design services throughout the Southeast for more than 30 years. An avid gardener, cook and collector, Ms. Greeley is a professional member of the American Society of Interior Designers (ASID) and holds both bachelor's and master's degrees in interior design.

Known for her gracious entertaining and expert knowledge of tabletop collections, Ms. Greeley is a major tastemaker in the design and entertaining industries. She has developed her sense of style from extensive training, experience and travel, leading to her design philosophy described as "collected, not decorated."

To sign up for the luncheon and lecture, go to www.thebascom.org/mountains-in-bloom/home or contact Claire Cameron, Events Manager, at 828-787-2882 or email at ccameron@thebascom.org.

Vince Dooley, Former UGA Football Coach at CLE

The Center for Life Enrichment is hosting Coach Vince Dooley in an evening event on Tuesday, July 9 from 6 – 8 p.m. Coach Dooley had a remarkable record at UGA, winning 201 games, six southeastern Conference Championships, and one National Championship. His teams were noted for their aggressive and tenacious defenses and conservative yet fundamentally sound offenses featuring power football. His honors, among others, include "National Coach of the Year award" following the 1980 season, induction into the College Football Hall of Fame, 1994, the Amos Alonzo Stagg Award presented by the American Football Coaches Association in 2001, and the Homer Rice Award in 2007, the highest honor given by the Division 1-A Athletic Directors Association.

In the up-close and personal evening with Vince, he will discuss and give his perspective of college football, which occupies a central position in the pantheon of American athletic events. Football's popularity as it has evolved as a key part of the backdrop of higher education as a spectator sport has created a number of positive as well as negative issues. Is it good or bad? Why do institutions of higher learning, especially in the South, continue to add programs despite the reality of the great costs of these programs as well as adding additional costs owing to the Title 9 issue and the expansion of women's sports programs? What about the athletes and how they are rewarded given the enormous money flows into contemporary big-time football? Vince will address these and other issues in this presentation on College Football in America.

Plan to join Vince at this special event. To be held at the Center for Life Enrichment Lecture Hall, 348 S. Fifth Street, Highlands (lower level of the Peggy Crosby Center). Seating is limited, so go online to www.clehighlands.com or call 828 526-8811 to make your reservations. Tickets are $25 for CLE members and $35 for non-members.

HCCMF's 'Salon at Six' treat for the senses

Highlands-Cashiers Chamber Music Festival is offering a wonderful evening to complement its dynamic 32nd season.

Salon at Six will be staged from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Thursday, July 11, at the home of Bob and Olivia Holt. It will feature wine and light hors d'oeuvres. Center-piece of the evening is playwright Alfred Uhry, who will speak on "Music and Me."

Uhry is distinguished as the only American playwright to have won a Pulitzer Prize, an Academy Award and two Tony Awards.

A graduate of Brown University, Uhry began his professional career as a lyric writer under contract to the late Frank Loesser. In that capacity, he made his Broadway debut in 1968 with "Here's Where I Belong." His first major success came when he collaborated with Robert Waldman on a musical adaptation of Eudora Welty's "The Robber Bridegroom," which opened at the Mark Taper Forum in 1976 and went on to Broadway, winning Mr. Uhry his first Tony nomination. He followed that with five re-created musicals at the Goodspeed Opera House. His first play, "Driving Miss Daisy" opened at Playwrights Horizons Theatre in New York in 1987. It moved subsequently to the John Houseman Theatre where it ran for three years and won the Pulitzer Prize in 1988. The film version, starring Morgan Freeman and Jessica Tandy, won the Academy Award for Best Adapted Screenplay in 1990. The film also won the Best Picture Award. His next play, "The Last Night of Ballyhoo," was commissioned by the Cultural Olympiad for the 1996 Atlanta Olympics. It opened on Broadway the next year where it ran for over 500 performances and won Uhry the Outer Critics Circle Award, the Drama League Award and the 1997 Tony Award for Best Play.

Uhry is also the brother of Highlands Chamber Music Festival board member Ann Uhry Abrams.

Throughout the Highlands-Cashiers Chamber Music Festival season, concerts will be held at 6 p.m. Fridays at the Martin-Lipscomb Performing Arts Center in Highlands and repeated at 5 p.m. Saturdays at the Albert Carlton-Cashiers Community Library in Cashiers. Sunday concerts will be staged at 5 p.m. at the Performing Arts Center in Highlands and repeated at 5 p.m. Mondays at the Cashiers Community Library.

Why...because you love it!

I recently was blessed with a family vacation in Alaska. It was my first time there and I was in awe of the snow capped mountains, the natural beauty, the slower pace and the quaint fishing villages. I imagined what it would be like to live there.

Lynn Kimball
Meadows Mountain Realty

have never looked b a c k . Why...because I love it!

Steeped in history, Highlands offers a rare combination of scenic beauty, ideal climate and a variety of outdoor recreational activities, all with a charming blend of cultural amenities, fine dining, specialty shops and choice accommodations.

Perhaps the greatest natural asset found in Highlands is the warm and welcoming spirit of its people.

When I arrived back in Highlands, I fell in love all over again. This has been home for 38 years and I've always loved it here, but sometimes getting away puts things into perspective. Counting my blessings, I realized that there has never been another place where I would rather live.

If you have been thinking about making Highlands a second or permanent home...why not now? Time is ever changing and easily gets away from us. Today is all we really have. Take a look at the best real estate values we have seen in many years. Why....because you love it!

Contemplating the TV shows I have watched about Alaskan real estate, I was reminded of home buyers scrambling to find a second home on remote islands, without bathrooms, running water or even electricity in some places. Although daily living in the wilderness is not for most of us, there is only one reason why someone would want to live there....because they love it!

Whether you are interested in searching properties or comprehensive information about our area, you are invited to visit my user friendly website at www.signatureproperties-nc.com.

In October of 1984, I came to Highlands for a three-day get-away. I was enamored with the mountains, the natural beauty, the slower pace and the quaint, friendly little town. I moved here the next spring and

FALLING WATERS

Lot prices start at $79,000. Owner financing available

A 52-acre community just 2.5 miles from Main Street. Secluded but not remote; peaceful, quiet and private. Mature hardwoods, giant rhodies, mountain laurel and a plethora of wild flowers. Two waterfalls and several creeks add charm and interest.

It is our goal that Falling Waters be aesthetically pleasing and well maintained, while preserving the backdrop of its natural beauty. Falling Waters is governed by the NC Planned Community Act, and excellent framework for basic structure governing practices and declarations. We have added our own well thought out covenants to protect the environment and help insure that the Falling Waters community is a sanctuary where peace, safety and happiness abound.

Perhaps most important is our desire to create and live in a caring community with a culture of good will, harmony and consideration. We believe the best rule is "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

BLUEGRASS at the Highlands PAC

The perfect way to top off your July 4th Weekend is with the return of the Bluegrass Duel on Saturday, July 6 at 8pm. This year The Duel will feature Highlands' own Nitrograss and Atlanta's, The Dappled Grays.

Nitrograss sprung to life from the heart of the rural Appalachians with one singular mission: to take the Bluegrass world by storm, and with a deadly force. NITROGRASS certainly wields a fierceness most acoustic groups lack today.

The percussive banjo of two-time national champion Charles Wood lays the foundation for the band's unique style. Charles' playing is melodic in its sensibility, evoking strong inflections with pure, driving syncopation. Next is the lock-chop of Caleb Hanks' mandolin; Micah Hanks offers an intuitive array of acoustic guitar parts, with the two brothers layering their strong vocal harmonies over a mix in a sonic separation that could make a Kentucky moon rise on demand. Finally, the back-beat of Dakota "Smoky" Waddell's bass lines pushes the music of this southeastern powerhouse into a foray beyond the frontiers most acoustic musicians dare travel.

Everybody needs a favorite band; Nitrograss works hard to narrow the options for you.

The Dappled Grays was founded by Mandolinist Michael Smith and guitarist Casey Cook in 1999 as an outlet for performing original instrumental music.

In 2005 the band brought in the vocal talents of Leah Calvert which took the band into a new musical direction. Also, banjoist Greg Earnest and bassist Keith Morris were added.

In January 2007, the band released its second album Doin' My Job. The album made it to No. 12 on the national Bluegrass Music charts.

They have also had the opportunity to share the stage with some of the biggest names in acoustic music, including the Del McCoury Band, Mountain Heart, Ronnie Bowman, Larry Cordle, and David Grier. In 2012, The Dappled Grays appeared in the movie Trouble with the Curve[1] directed by Robert Lorenz and starring Clint Eastwood, Justin Timberlake and Amy Adams.

Saturday, July 6th at 8pm at the Highlands PAC is SOLD OUT but please call to be placed on a waiting list. 507 Chestnut Street Highlands. Reserve your seats by calling 828.526.9047 or online at www.highlandspac.org

Bring others to the faith through prayer and good works

Rev. Dean Cesa
Our Lady of the Mountains
Catholic Church

I was raised Catholic, I think the term is cradle Catholic. In a Catholic home it was not difficult to follow God's call. Maybe I did it out of obedience to my parents. There was not much keeping me from being Catholic, not much opposition to the practice of our faith. Indeed there were many things we did that reinforced our faith, like the celebration of religious holidays. Families were not divided by the practice of the faith. Those who have joined the faith later in life sometimes did it a great peril and perhaps alienation from their families. At times, they seem to be the best Christians, having given up so much to follow the Lord's call.

It is like the culture of the time of Jesus. Parents turned away from their children and children from their parents over religion. The first people who heard the gospel of Jesus Christ found it very difficult and even had to risk their lives to practice their Christianity. And perhaps we are returning to days like these. Religious freedom is compromised by laws, so many families no longer worship together as children are swept up by popular culture. Our worship each week is seen as without value or perhaps just insurance against eternal damnation. Lost is the sense of worshiping God as a community. It is just putting in time. This is not the wholehearted response God wants.

Jesus spoke about how complete our response to God must be. Now Jesus sounds demanding, even cruel, as he asks the man to abandon the burial of his father and instead follow him. Now there is nothing wrong with burying the dead – we call it a corporal work of mercy. Even the commandment tells us to honor our father and mother. What Jesus must be referring to is any excuse that would keep us from following him. Following Jesus must be first; the burial can be done only as something secondary. Nothing, not even family, is a valid excuse for not following the Lord. Singleness of purpose and priority in following God is essential.

But our zeal for the kingdom of God is not to go overboard. Though we are our brother's keeper, we are not to force anyone to join us in our faith or worse yet do what the disciples wanted to do when they were rejected by the Samaritans. They wanted to call down fire from heaven to destroy them. They are ultimately answerable for their own choice and there is no way to know if that is their final choice. As Christians we want all to be saved. What Jesus is saying is leave them to the patience of God.

So, we follow Jesus without hesitation or delay. We should never count the cost, but instead be thankful that we have been called to follow the Lord. In that context, may we employ our religious freedom to follow God's call freely and bring others to the faith not by forcing but through our prayer and good works.

Food Pantry Needs Help
The food pantry is now serving almost 70 families per week. We need people to unload food from delivery vehicles, put food on the shelves, divide and bag bulk items for distribution, break down and recycle boxes, take away trash, distribute food, schedule volunteers, make phone calls, and many other jobs. The pantry fills an important need in this community for your friends and neighbors who need help, sometimes temporarily, sometimes long term. If you can volunteer for this important ministry, please call the Methodist Church office, 526-3376 or Mary Heffington 526-3671.
