Town still says ‘no’ to free utilities

At the third and final 2014-’15 budget work session Thursday, May 15, commissioners finalized inclusions and exclusions to the budget and held fast to their decision to retract the free utility policy enacted last year for the ABC Store, the Chamber of Commerce and the Highlands Playhouse.

Members and staff of the Highlands Playhouse were at the meeting, but the board didn’t take comments from the audience.

Instead, discussion revolved around The Performing Art Center (PAC) and its lease which exempts the center from paying utilities until 2020 when the lease is up.

Should we be afraid of bears?

By Brittany Burns

While presenting his proposed budget to commissioners last week, Macon County Manager Derek Roland emphasized the importance of holding the line on taxes and decreasing the overall budget in order to put the county in the best feasible position when preparing for the 2015 property tax revaluation.

“In January of the coming fiscal year, property owners in Macon County will receive revaluation notices based on the value of their real and personal property,” said Roland. “If we were in normal economic times, the real property tax base would increase after a reappraisal, usually between 20 to 40 percent depending on how long it has been since the county’s last reappraisal. But as you all know, these are not normal economic times, and for the first time ever, multiple counties across the state, including Macon County, are experiencing decreases in their tax bases after reappraisals.”

Early estimates and predictions into the revaluation process put Macon County’s total tax base revenue loss at an estimated $24 million.

Fate of teacher tenure still unsure

By Brittany Burns

Despite a ruling last Friday by North Carolina Superior Court Judge Robert Hobgood deeming the new teacher tenure law changes unconstitutional, Macon County is moving forward with the random selection process.

Friday afternoon, Hobgood sided with the North Carolina Association of Educators in ruling that stripping veteran teachers of their right to due process under the state’s historic teacher tenure laws was unconstitutional.

He issued a state-wide injunction into the new law, which seemingly would stop local districts from needing to move forward with the selection process. An active member of the NCAE and history teacher at Franklin High School, John deVille, was one of the plaintiffs in the lawsuit that resulted in the injunction.

2nd Macon Middle School staff member is arrested

By Brittany Burns

By last Friday afternoon, the Macon County Sheriff’s Department had compiled enough information to arrest Macon Middle School Secretary Paula Anglin for disseminating obscene materials to a minor, a felony.

Anglin is the second Macon Middle School staff person to be arrested for crimes against children in the last week.

Forty-three-year-old Anglin was first suspended indefinitely from her position last week pending the outcome of an investigation, but during Monday night’s board of education meeting, she was terminated.

This is not Anglin’s first run-in with the law while being employed at the ABC Store, the Chamber of Commerce and the Highlands Playhouse.

The major agenda item for tonight’s Town Board meeting will be the presentation of the town budget for the new fiscal year. The budget process began with the town retreat in February. The board and staff conducted an overview of the needs and concerns for the forthcoming budget. Since the retreat, three workshop sessions have been held where budget lines were identified and prioritized.

Town Manager, Bob Frye, will present the proposed budget to the Town Board at tonight’s meeting. By North Carolina statute the manager has to submit a balanced budget, and any approved budget must be balanced. After the budget presentation, I will invite brief public comments concerning any item in the budget.

At the June board meeting, a formal public hearing concerning the budget will be held. The final budget will need to be approved by July 1st, the beginning of the new fiscal year.

I have had several folks ask me if the town’s finances are similar to some of the big cities like Detroit. My response is absolutely no. We carry minimal debt, compared to other cities.

I also want to comment about town funding of the arts.

In my view, over the years an inconsistent method for funding the arts has evolved. In particular, I have concerns about free utilities. I do not want to eliminate support for the arts, indeed there are long-term economic, cultural and educational benefits in having a vibrant arts community. On the other hand, there needs to be stewardship by all stakeholders in the management of town resources.

After the proposed budget is approved, I would like to see the town explore the possible creation of an arts commission or committee. Such a group of community citizens would be charged with making recommendations on how to effectively manage resources and support the arts. One view concerning the current arts situation may be that everything is great and things should remain the same. On the other hand, while we have a strong arts community, there is always room for improvement and ways to build stronger programs.

At tonight’s meeting representatives of the Founders Park Coalition will present final plans for completing the park. Also on the agenda will be the appointment of a member to the ABC Board.

The meeting starts at 7 p.m. at the Highlands Conference Center next to the baseball field.

Thanks to Art & Angela Williams for park donation

Dear editor,

Over a number of years Art and Angela Williams have demonstrated their love and support for many organizations throughout our community. Most recently their generosity has focused on improving the recreational opportunities available here in Highlands, by funding major improvements to the new pool and the existing gymnasium, and also by providing a substantial gift that will allow us all to realize the full potential of Kelsey-Hutchinson Park.

The Kelsey-Hutchinson Founders Park Coalition wishes to express its profound thanks to the Williams and Old Edwards Inn and Spa for placing the park at the top of their list for projects they wished to support this year. Their gift of $390,000, along with support from other individuals and civic organizations, means that the Coalition is now in a position to begin construction on many of the improvements to the main park area. We hope to begin construction early this fall, as soon as scheduled activities in the park are over.

Donations continue to come in, and funds are still needed to realize all of the improvements needed at the park, including a new main entrance/restroom facility. We hope others will join the Williams in helping make Kelsey-Hutchinson Park a place that will be enjoyed by both groups and families for generations to come.

Nicholas G. Bazan
Chairman of the Founders Park Coalition

Nuclear Power

Dear Editor,

Although we have poured tax money into expensive alternative energy, with some companies already having gone broke, the only results we have seen is killing millions of birds, including eagles and more expensive electrical power.

There is an alternative and that alternative is nuclear power and ultimately, is what eventually will have to be our source of electric power. We have no choice.

Throughout recent history, we have always had those who live in fear of nuclear power but these are the same folks who live in fear of eating a hamburger at a fast food joint and who refuse to have their kids inoculated against diseases.

They point to the Chernobyl disaster in Russia and Fukushima disaster in Japan as examples of what can go wrong. Both are lousy examples, however. Russian nuclear technology was extremely backward when they built the Chernobyl nuclear power plant some 60 years ago. The Fukushima disaster in Japan was a fool’s game because they built it on the edge of a seacliff, subject to earthquakes.

From initial planning to completion, it takes about 20 years or more to bring a nuclear power plant on line and you can’t imagine the red tape that the design must pass through to insure safety.

The problem we have now is that we are 20 years behind in building nuclear power plants at a time when countries like France obtain 80% of their electric power from nuclear plants and sell excess to other countries. We are, in short, behind the eight ball while mired down in failure.
George Clisby Clarke

George Clisby Clarke died May 11, 2014 at his second home in Highlands, NC. He was born on October 14, 1941, the son of Joseph Ransom Clarke and Katherine Dean Lowe Clarke in Marshallville, GA.

He graduated from Fort Valley High School in 1959 and graduated from the University of Georgia with a Bachelor’s Degree in Business, and went on to graduate studies at the University of Illinois and began his career in advertising at Proctor and Gamble. Clisby worked in advertising and marketing for 37 years. He joined McCann-Erickson in 1972 and served as Executive Vice President and General Manager for the last 12 years before his retirement in 1999.

He was an ardent supporter of the University of Georgia Bulldogs and penned, composed and performed two well-known Georgia fight songs “Bulldog Bite” (1980) and “Let the Big Dog Eat”(1981). Clisby was the Chairman of the Board of the Atlanta Business Hospitality Network Foundation. The Foundation is raising funds to benefit the Shepherd Center of Atlanta to aid wounded veterans with brain and spinal injuries.

Clisby enjoyed almost 50 years of marriage to Bunny Heyward Clarke of Macon. He is survived by Bunny, his two daughters: Katherine Clarke Buckner, her husband James and Caroline Clarke Boggs and husband Chris. Clisby has five beloved grandchildren: Lucy and Clarke Buckner and Charlie, Sammy and Kendall Boggs.

A. Memorial Service was held at Peachtree Road United Methodist Church on Thursday, May 15, with Dr. Don Harp officiating. A reception celebrating Clisby’s life followed the service at Capital City Country Club, Brookhaven, GA. The family suggests any memorials be sent to the Shepherd Center and the American Heart Association. Bryant-Grant Funeral Home is in charge of local arrangements.

As the county stands today, the total of real and personal property tax in Macon County accounts for a total value of $9,360,000,000. The current tax rate is .279 per $100 of assessed value, which equates to what should be $26,114,400 to be collected and applied to the county’s operating budget. With the county's tax collection rate being 96.51 percent, the county gains $25,203,007 in revenue annually from property tax.

After factoring in the 21 percent decline of $2 billion that the Macon County Tax Department has estimated will occur due to the revaluation, the decrease will yield a new tax base of $7,360,000,000.

For the county to be able to generate a revenue neutral tax base – meaning despite the overall decrease of property taxes, the county continues to generate the same level of revenue from property tax – the new tax rate will need to be .355 per $100 of assessed value. The new tax rate reflects that with a tax base of $7,360,000,000, so the county will be able to continue generating $25,216,133 annually for operations.

During reappraisal years, the state requires that county governments submit a revenue neutral tax rate in the proposed budget for comparison purposes.

What does this mean for taxpayers?

The revenue-neutral aspect of the tax rate refers to the aggregate tax burden for the entire county, which is predicted to be 21 percent. According to Roland, if a taxpayer’s real property depreciated in value less than the county’s (21 percent) then that taxpayer can anticipate a tax bill that will increase if the revenue neutral budget is adopted.

For example, if a taxpayer received a home appraisal in 2007 of $235,000 at the .279 tax rate, a total of $655.65 was paid in taxes. After the revaluation process, in 2015 the home would appraise for about $218,000. At the proposed .355 tax rate, the taxpayer can anticipate paying $733.90 in taxes, an increase of $118.25. Since the taxpayer experienced a decrease in his home value of $17,000 and the 7 percent decrease is less than the county’s 21 percent decrease, his taxes increased.

Example 2: If a taxpayer received a home appraisal of $1,500,000 in 2007 at a tax rate of .279, he was paying about $4,185 in taxes. With the revaluation in 2015, the taxpayer's new appraisal would be around $860,000. At the .355 tax rate, the adjusted taxes would decrease by $1,132 and now be $3,053. The adjusted appraisal decreased by $640,000, which was a 42 percent decrease. With the new appraisal being a larger decrease than that of the aggregate of the county, his taxes decreased.

“In Macon County, the majority of taxpayers will fall into scenarios similar to example 1,” explained Roland. “With that being said, in order to maintain a revenue neutral tax base, the majority of taxpayers are going to see an increase.”

Roland explained that with the uncertainty surrounding the revaluation process, it was more important than ever for the county to assess all funds being spent and prepare for uncertain financial times in the coming years.
Despite the ruling, the Macon County Board of Education met in Executive Session Monday night in Nantahala to let a computer randomly select 25 percent of the remaining eligible teachers.

“At this time, we just are not really sure what the ruling means for districts across the state,” explained Macon County Schools attorney John Henning, Jr. “I wasn’t sure why the original ruling that was given to Guilford and Durham county schools didn’t apply statewide, so I am not sure how this will affect us either.”

Henning said the district has yet to receive any sort of written notification regarding proceeding with the selection process. Without a written ruling or change in the procedure, Macon County is operating under the assumption that teacher contracts must be offered and accepted or rejected no later than June 30.

Although Macon County is scheduled to hold its regularly scheduled June meeting on the 16th, Terry Bell, Director of Human Resources said that the district will wait until June 30 to hear if teachers accepted or rejected the contracts. “We want to wait as long as possible to give the state time to sort everything out,” Bell said Monday night.

Bell said he believes that North Carolina will look to change teacher tenure the same way they did tenure for administrators and principals years ago. “When I was a principal years ago, the state moved to phase out tenure for administrators. For us veteran principals, we were kind of grandfathered in, and new incoming administrators just didn’t have the option of achieving tenure status. When Gary Shields retired from Franklin High School, he was the last man standing in Macon County to have been granted tenure. I gave up my tenure status when I left my principal position to move to work at the central office.”

Henning stated that he has not seen anything that would prevent the state from moving toward a phase-out option for teachers like they did years ago from administrators. In fact, Hobgood’s ruling didn’t necessarily deem the entire law unconstitutional, just the portion that applied to veteran teachers. In his ruling, Hobgood stated that abolishing teacher tenure “was not reasonable and necessary to serve an important public purpose.”

Last summer, state legislators voted to eliminate teacher tenure and the protections that came along with it, with the intent of improving classroom performance. Under the law, teachers who haven’t worked the four years needed to qualify for tenure status are to be offered one-year contracts, with those who are considered tenured, to be narrowed to 25 percent of teachers. They will receive a 4-year contract and a cumulative $5,000 bonus over the life of the contract. Regardless, the entire teacher tenure process, even for those identified as the top 25 percent, was slated to disappear completely by 2018.

Macon County has a total of 272 teachers that are eligible for consideration of the 25 percent, which would...

The Philistines are coming… The Philistines are coming!

Highlanders should be very, very afraid. Hide the women and children ’cause the Philistines are on their way to Highlands. These scary, barbaric people, better known as the “sea people,” come from faraway foreign lands like…Florida. Please note there are three types of Philistines.

First, there are your basic, run-of-the-mill east coast Philistine sea people from Miami, Palm Beach, Daytona, and sweaty places like that. The second types are known as the west coast Philistines and they are less insidious. These folks arrive from smelly places like Tampa and Naples where dead sponges stink up the whole area. You can smell these Philistines from far away as they all stink of dead sponges. Thirdly, (Is thirdly a word?) there’s a vast area known as the Panhandle where redneck type Philistines love to pick their feet, break wind and scratch their privates…..fun stuff like that! They’re as disgusting as the sponge Philistines but smell totally different.

All of these sea people, known as Floridians, have one thing in common. They bring bundles and bundles of thousand dollar bills with them (Oh….yeah!) and drink from long stem wine glasses. (Oh….yeah again!) They’re arrogant and demanding and will send a steak back in a Miami minute if not cooked to their liking. They’re pushy, trust no one and use money to get what they want. Even worse, they all drive with their heads up their….well, you know. Note: Philistines drive snail speed on the curves.

And check this out. Those year-round Highlanders who don’t depend on the Philistine’s thousand dollar bills to make a living during the summer usually call these people “Floridiots.” Ha, how disrespectful is that? Are you writing this down?

Searching through ancient scrolls, I’ve found the best definition of a Philistine is, and I quote, “a people guided by materialism and usually disdainful of intellectual or artistic values.” Sound familiar? Philistines are uncircumcised (oy!) and play card games called Bridge where weak minded Philistines (dub….like me!) are continuously clobbered by those more intellectually fortunate. NOTE: One can easily spot a Philistine at a bridge game ’cause they’re either rude, smell bad or are scratching something.

Anyway, I think there should be a town board meeting to decide a course of action to deal with these disgusting invaders. But I’ll leave this to the brilliance of our board leaders.

Or…on second thought, I’m thinkin’ Highlanders just might be hungry for some of those thousand dollar bills. I say hire a Mohel and let ‘em roam. Wadayathink?

Above and beyond the call of duty

Dear Editor,

Last Thursday morning about 1 a.m., we had an incident at Shelby Place. Lightning struck a Tulip Poplar, the tree exploded and the upper part of the truck fell on a house. The occupant of the house, who had been asleep, was of course awakened. She called Highlands Fire & Rescue for assistance and assist they did.

In the middle of the storm, Fire and Rescue removed the tree from the roof and installed a tarp to cover the large hole, all in the dark and rain. It is the concerted effort of the owner of the house and everyone else in Shelby Place that the Highlands Fire & Rescue Department went beyond the call of duty.

On behalf of the individual concerned and the entire Shelby Place community, I would like to not only thank the Fire & Rescue Department but also praise it for what it did. Only in Highlands!

mean out of the entire pool of teachers, only 68 would receive contracts. According to Bell, when the district randomly selected teachers Monday night, the 272 number had been sliced in half due to about 50 percent of eligible teachers participating in the opt-out option. “We had about half of eligible teachers selecting to opt out of the entire process and just didn’t want anything to do with it,” he said.

North Carolina State Senate leader Phil Berger anticipates the ruling will be appealed, “Today a single Wake County judge suppressed the will of voters statewide who elected representatives to improve public education and reward our best teachers with raises. This is a classic case of judicial activism,” Berger said in a statement on Friday.

employed for the school system. On October 19, 2010, Anglin was arrested and charged with Driving While Intoxicated.

The investigation into Anglin began after a student at MMS informed her parents that an inappropriate photo of Anglin was being distributed amongst students. Staff members reported the photos to authorities. MCSO Juvenile Detectives conducted several interviews with both students at the school and adults surrounding the incident. Several items such as cell phones, were seized during the investigation.

“It is my opinion thus far that Mrs. Anglin violated the trust of her co-workers, the students, and the community as a whole,” said Sheriff Robert Holland. “Mrs. Anglin was one of the members of our community who should have been looking out for the best interest of the students and who was responsible for keeping them safe. By her own admission, Anglin was involved with inappropriate activities that were detrimental to those she was responsible for protecting.”

During Monday night’s board of education meeting in Nantahala, board chair Jim Breedlove informed the public that while the district is cooperating in the investigation, because it is a personnel matter, there would be no further comments at this time.

The Macon County School System and the staff at Macon Middle School have been very cooperative with the investigation and have provided substantial assistance to the sheriff’s department. “School officials have assisted from the onset of both investigations and are devastated by what has been uncovered,” said Holland. “Nothing we have found leads us to believe that any school officials knew what was happening just as nothing we have found leads us to believe any parent did either.”

With Anglin being the second MMS employee in a week’s time to be arrested for crimes involving children, Holland is urging parents to become more involved in their children’s lives. “I encourage everyone to “Parent UP” and know who and what your kids are doing on the Internet and who they are doing it with,” said Holland. “Don’t wait until your child becomes a victim to educate yourselves because chances are someone is already surfing the Internet and looking for their next victim… and it could be in your own home and right under a parent’s nose.”

Holland also stated that Anglin’s arrest is separate from Jeff Rousselle, who was arrested last week and charged with one felony count indecent liberties with a student and one felony count with indecent liberties with a child. Both investigations are ongoing and additional charges are expected to be forthcoming, said Holland.

Following her arrest, Anglin was released on a $15,000 bond. She is scheduled to make her first court appeared on Thursday, May 22.
Paying PAC’s utilities costs the town $14,400 to $18,000 per year not including propane which costs $5,000 year.

“The question isn't whether the town can afford to continue to provide free utilities, but rather is it fair,” said Town Manager Bob Frye. The town is increasing utility rates 3% July 1, 2014 to offset wholesale increases from Duke Power.

All tolled free utilities cost the town $45,000 to $57,000 per year. Figures show utility costs for the Chamber of Commerce to be $6,000-$8,000; the ABC Store, $6,000-$8,000; and the Playhouse, $14,400 to $18,000.

At the previous budget work session, commissioners asked Town Attorney J.K. Coward to go over the lease to see if there was a way the town could get out of it – at least the part about free utilities.

Attorney Coward said the town could request to renegotiate the contract with PAC anytime it wants.

“But that doesn’t mean you are going to be successful. If you invite them to renegotiate this they should at least in good faith talk to you.”

But according to Manager Frye, that request fell on deaf ears.

Though according to Coward, PAC hasn’t breached its contract with the town, an annual review of utility use has not been performed by either party, which is required in the lease.

“This is where the landlord determines whether the tenant has tried to conserve energy and if not the town and PAC should talk to see if they can agree on a limit,” he said.

If the parties can’t agree to a limit, PAC is free to exercise an option to take title of the property with the purchase price of $1. Coward said if PAC doesn’t come to the table to discuss utility use then that could constitute a breach of contract.

“Furthermore, if failure to conserve utilities is regarded as a default, then the town could exercise the severe remedy whereby the tenant would have no right to purchase the property at all – which would probably be a decision made by a judge,” he said.

Long story short, commissioners agreed to honor the contract with PAC but to put them on notice that in six years there will be no more free utilities. An annual meeting to determine utility use will also be conducted to make sure PAC is conserving as much energy as possible.

“They need to start reducing their energy costs to the town,” said Commissioner Eric Pierson. He also said this is a prime reason why the town should have standard contracts with all its tenants.

As to the other three entities, Pierson said it’s clear citizens don’t want the town to give free utilities to anyone.

Commissioner Amy Patterson said if no one gets free utilities everyone is on an equal playing field.

Commissioner Brian Stiehler said there is a lot of value the organizations give to the town, but Commissioner Patterson said there are a lot of organizations who give to the town. “How are you going to quantify that? How do you pick and choose
The Spectacular concert free and open to the public of 40 men and 30 boys will take place this Sunday afternoon in Highlands at the Episcopal church of the incarnation at 4pm.

This world famous singing group under the direction of Maestro Fletcher Wolfe will preview the concerts which they will give in Poland the next week to honor Pope John Paul II becoming a Saint.

They have been invited to honor the new Saint because in past years they performed with him officiating many times in Rome at St. Peter's Basilica. He always referred to the choir as his “Angels of Song.”

Several featured performers on this program will include renowned cellist, James Waldo, who recently concertized in Highlands to great acclaim.

By early morning on Saturday, the Highlands Ball Park will be transformed into a spectacular ‘Field of Greens’ for the 32nd annual Mountain Garden Club plant sale.

Anxious shoppers will gather long before the gates of the ball field swing open at 9 A.M. Shoppers come for sun- and shade-loving plants, for advice from fellow gardeners, for the chance to be part of a Highlands tradition.

Native plants available this year include cinnamon ferns, celandine poppies, woodland phlox, Cranesbill geraniums, Jack in the Pulpit, trilliums, Joe Pye weed, and for the first time in the history of the sale-- water lilies (Nympha odorata).

Gardeners interested in creating fairy gardens will find several suitable plants, including mini hostas, creeping Jenny, native ginger, sedums, rattlesnake plantain, and sweet woodruff.

For dahlia lovers, there is a designated dahlia tent where you can purchase plants and tubers and receive expert advice on growing them.

Beautiful botanical photo notecards debuted at the sale last year, and a new series with never-before-seen photos is available this year. Shoppers will also find the popular specialty ‘Vicious’ shovels that have been in demand each year.

Proceeds from the sale provide funds for college scholarships and the club’s many community projects.

Since 1996, area students pursuing degrees in the fields of horticulture, environmental science, landscape design, forestry management, and golf course management have been awarded scholarships funded through the plant sale. This fall, Parker Sims will start his second year at Tri-County Technical College, thanks in part to a Dorothy Wertzler Memorial Scholarship from the Mountain Garden Club.

Be part of this great Highlands tradition. Come to the Mountain Garden Club plant sale, this Saturday, May 24 from 9 a.m. until noon at the Highlands Ball Park on Highway 64 and Hickory. Rain date May 25, 1 to 4 p.m. Bring your own cart, wagon, or sled to make shopping easier. There will be helpers to assist in loading your cars. Cash or checks only please.

who gets free utilities?”

Commissioner John Dotson said there is also a lot of value in the structures these organizations occupy for which the town doesn’t charge rent.

Commissioner Donnie Calloway, Mayor Pro Tem for the meeting, said if it wasn’t for the contract with PAC, it wouldn’t get free utilities, either.

Commissioner Pierson suggested phasing out free utilities for the three entities since the town gave them a false sense of security.

Commissioner Patterson said they should have already expected this. “This isn’t such a big town that they haven’t seen the writing on the wall.”

So, the Chamber of Commerce, the ABC Store and the Highlands Playhouse will begin paying utilities as of the first billing cycle in July 2014.

Commissioners agreed to the 1.5% tax rate increase which will sunset after three years. That money – $270,000 annually – will be earmarked for the Parks and Recreation Dept. which will give the town time to understand what it costs to operate and maintain the new pool.

They also agreed to fund up to $161,000 for the new restrooms at K-H Park. The current restrooms on the Town Hall complex will eventually be turned into a building to house Internet infrastructure.

Commissioner Stehler said if the town can afford it, since the park coalition plans to finish the park, the restrooms should be done at the same time. “Let’s knock it out and get it done all at once.”

Commissioner Calloway said he is a proponent of the park, but felt the town has spent enough money there and said there are a lot of other areas in town that need “prettying up.”

“I think the ball park is one of them. I’d rather see the money go there.”

Commissioner Patterson said initially she was against funding the park restrooms, but now thinks it will be good for that end of town.

Commissioners also agreed to budget $50,000 for new Christmas decorations.

The final version of the 2014-15 budget will be discussed at Thursday’s May 22 Town Board meeting at 7 p.m. in the Community Building.

The budget will be officially adopted following a public hearing at the June Town Board meeting.

HCP’s ‘Mama Won’t Fly’ opens tonight at PAC!

In The Highlands Cashiers Players production of “Mama Won’t Fly,” you’ll see both novice and veteran actors - all local folks who have decided to conquer their fears and get on stage. Why do they do it? You’ll have to ask but, as the play comes together, a bond forms within the cast that enriches all who participate.

“In Mama Won’t Fly,” written by the same team who wrote “Dearly Departed” and “The Dixie Swim Club,” offers up a host of bigger than life Southern characters that allow the actors to stretch their boundaries and have fun with personality development.

Cast members include Donna Cochran (Mirror Lake Antiques); Chris Hess (Highland Hiker); Pat Allen and Julie Osborn (Pat Allen Realty Group) and Lance Trudel (Oak Leaf Flower & Garden). You’ll also find Michael Lancilotta, Michelle Hott, Barbara Werder, Ken Knight, Kevin Murphy, Marsha Shmalo and Vangie Rich creating roles that make “Mama Won’t Fly” a ferociously funny and family-friendly play.

Directed by Bonnie Cushman Earman and Assistant Director Kevin Murphy, “Mama Won’t Fly” open Thursday, May 22 and runs through Sunday, May 25 and again Thursday, May 29 through Sunday, June 1. Once upon a time, there was a young woman named Goldilocks. Now, Goldilocks wanted a home in Highlands very, very much. She told everyone she met how much she wanted a home in Highlands. She didn’t really care if her home was a rental house or a home she could call her own, but she knew she wanted one for herself, and it needed to be very, very close to her return address.

Now, Goldilocks walked on further down the street and came to the house on the corner. ‘Hmmm’, she thought, ‘Well, isn’t this an interesting little cottage?’ Just then a lady came out the door. The lady saw Goldilocks looking intently at her home. The lady spoke up, ‘Could I help you with something?’ To which Goldilocks replied, ‘I was just admiring your home.’ The lady turned to look at her abode with a big smile and said, ‘Yes, we have loved our time here in Highlands. This home has been perfect for us.’ Then the lady turned around and her smile had turned upside down, ‘but now it’s just me, and it’s too big and too much for me. I’m thinking about selling and just the thought of going through all of that is very distressing.’ Goldilocks walked up to the lady, and put her arm around her and said, ‘Oh, I’m so sorry, maybe I can help you with your dilemma. We need to talk. My name is Goldilocks, what’s your name Sweetie?’ And talk they did. Goldilocks learned the lady’s name was Mrs. Highland very, very.

While on a walk one day, she came upon three homes. One was for sale, one was for rent, and one was neither for sale nor for rent. As she walked up to the first home, she noticed a sign in the yard. ‘For Sale – Contact Bobby Bear’, so she called up Bobby Bear and after taking a very long look inside, found out the home had been on the market for almost two years! She told Bobby Bear, ‘There must be something really wrong with this home, but I am looking for a good deal. I will make an offer of half of what they’re asking.” Bobby Bear tried to tell Goldilocks that just because the house had been on the market a long time didn’t tell the whole story. ‘Every home has a story Goldi, and this one…..’ And he proceeded to tell her about the improvements that have been done while the property was listed -even during the economic downturn. “You see, the value is actually going up, while the price is going down.” But Goldilocks was not impressed and told the broker she wouldn’t spend a dime over her original offer. While Bobby Bear was writing up her ridiculously lowball offer, she continued walking down the street.

She saw that the second home was for rent. Again, there was a sign in the yard, ‘For Rent – Contact Betty Bear’. Goldilocks thought to herself, ‘Now, what harm would it do to find out about renting this home for awhile until I can find my perfect place? So, she called Betty Bear, and viewed the rental home. She loved it; it had almost everything in a house she could want. She told Betty Bear she wanted it, but she had to wait a day or so to see if another house she had looked would pan out, but then she added, ‘But you can mark me PAID’, and tell the owners they will have a great tenant. I always treat a rental home as if it were my own, Oh, and while you’re at it, tell the owners I may want to rent the whole year, so I don’t think I should pay the asking price, and besides, they’ll love me.’ So, Betty Bear scrambled off to call the owners to tell them they had a tentative reservation - they would be so happy!

Meanwhile, Goldilocks walked further down the street and came to the house on the corner. ‘Hmmm’, she thought, ‘Well, isn’t this an interesting little cottage?’ Just then a lady came out the door. The lady saw Goldilocks looking intently at her home. The lady spoke up, ‘Could I help you with something?’ To which Goldilocks replied, ‘I was just admiring your home.’ The lady turned to look at her abode with a big smile and said, ‘Yes, we have loved our time here in Highlands. This home has been perfect for us.’ Then the lady turned around and her smile had turned upside down, ‘but now it’s just me, and it’s too big and too much for me. We need to talk. My name is Goldilocks, what’s your name Sweetie?’ And talk they did. Goldilocks learned the lady’s name was Mrs. Highland very, very.

Pushover, and then Goldilocks went inside the home and oohed and ahhed and they struck a deal. They were both very happy. She left the lady’s home and skipped up the street, so happy with her final choice. She was finally going to have a home in Highlands. Her skipping came to a halt when she saw Bobby Bear. He said “Well, Goldi, you’re not going to believe this, but the Sellers have accepted your offer!” He was beaming at the thought of making even a meager sale in the current economy. He thrust out his hand to congratulate her with a handshake, but Goldilocks was backing up one slow step at a time. She had a pale look on her face. She backed up right into the arms of Betty Bear. Now Betty hadn’t heard the exchange with Bobby Bear, but saw him standing there with his outreached hand. Betty gave him a funny look, and noticed Bobby Bear was giving her a strange look in return. Betty said to Goldilocks, “The owners of the home have agreed to rent to you for the whole year! Isn’t that great?”

It was all Goldilocks could do to untangle herself from Betty Bear’s embrace. Goldilocks’ face now looking a little green, she managed to get to her feet and ran down the street, but she didn’t get far before running smack dab into Mrs. Pushover. Goldilocks looked at Mrs. Pushover, then to Bobby Bear and Betty Bear. She ran. She ran as fast as she could and they never saw her again.

This ‘fairy tale’ is all very tongue in cheek, but some parts of it ‘bear’ a very close resemblance to real estate in Highlands. The moral of the real Goldilocks story is: Respect other’s property and privacy. In the case of Goldilocks and the three homes, the moral may simply be: RESPECT OTHERS. Of course, this story can be revised to showcase any home life, school or work situation. Our ‘season’ is upon us in Highlands- I hope we all can get along and respect others in our daily activities. We are all so very fortunate to be able to live in this beautiful area- let’s welcome our guests and pay it forward when possible. Remember how it was the first time YOU came to Highlands, and if you’re a ‘native’ - share what you know- your story is worth telling.

• Jeannie and Tucker Chambers are owners of Chambers Realty and Vacation Rentals located at 401 N. Fifth Street in Highlands. They can help you realize that having a home in Highlands isn’t ‘just a fairy tale’ 828-526-3717.

Christ Church of the Valley, Cashiers

Do you remember the “Jesus Movement” of the 1960-70s? Some of you were not born in the 60-70s. Those of us who lived through, what many think of as a “spiritual awakening” in America, remember just how big it was. Our nation was in the midst of “change” in epic proportions then seemingly out of no-where came a move of God. It was incredible! Thinking about it, and remembering “those days”, brings great joy into my heart. I wish you could see the smile on my face.

I’m convinced, when “our” history is being written, it will include the amazing thing God did for a generation that was racing down a steep hill wearing blinders with no brakes. Boomers remember it well because so much was going on in the world plus it happened on our watch. Countless numbers of people, across denominational lines, came to know Jesus as their Lord and Savior. Thousand from around the country believed and were baptized. It was something.

As I look back, trying to figure out why we were “a most privileged generation”, I cannot find the answer. All I know is it happened, and I was a part of it.

Someone has said that “nostalgia” is looking back with a bad memory. In this case it’s not. God did something unusual and saved a generation for important reasons. Knowing all the answers is not possible. But one thing I am sure of … it wasn’t for nothing. And honestly by the looks of things we could sure use another one. Maybe this is why it happened people started to realize just how much they need God and God responded. Wouldn’t it be something if it happened again? I may not know much but what I do know is a bunch of people going downhill, wearing blinders and without brakes, just passed me.
James Berrien Chidsey, III, 57, of Highlands, NC, died May 14, 2014. He was born in Rome, GA, to the late James Berrien Chidsey, Jr. and Jeannette Brown Chidsey Trott. In addition to his mother and her husband, Allen Trott, he is survived by his sons, James Berrien Chidsey, IV; Devin Bishop Chidsey; and their mother, Meredith Chidsey Cole. He is also survived by his siblings, Charles Truman Chidsey, Mary Jeannette Chidsey and Sallie Chidsey Taylor. Berrien was an Eagle Scout and held a Bachelor of Science degree in geology from the University of Georgia. He worked as a geologist for Precision Well Logging in Houston, TX, before succumbing to multiple sclerosis. He was well cared for by the staff and volunteers of the Fidelia Eckerd Living Center; his family and friends. He loved hunting, fishing, camping, and the Georgia Bulldogs. There will be a graveside service at Myrtle Cemetery, Rome, GA, Saturday, May 24 at 11am.

In lieu of flowers, the family is requesting that donations in honor of Berrien be made to the Fidelia Eckerd Living Center, Highlands, NC.

Bryant-Grant Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements. Online condolences may be made to www.bryantgrantfuneralhome.com.

As navigators, Mountain Projects, Inc., a community action agency is assisting people with applying for insurance during Special Enrollment Periods and applying for exemptions from the Individual Responsibility Penalty regarding the Affordable Care Act.

Special Enrollment Period

Even though the open enrollment was closed March 31, 2014, a person may still have options to get health insurance coverage. There are many and include:

1. Buying a private insurance plan through the Marketplace if a person qualifies for a Special Enrollment Period (SEP). A SEP occurs when a person experiences a life event, for example, losing employer sponsored health care, moving outside your insurer's coverage area, losing Medicaid, getting married, having a baby, adopting a child or placing a child for adoption or in foster care, children aging off Medicaid, leaving incarceration, gaining citizenship or legal residency, and a member of a federally recognized tribe.

2. Applying for Medicaid and the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) which can be done anytime of the year at your local Department of Social Services.

Exemptions

Under certain circumstances, a person may be eligible for an exemption from paying the Individual Shared Responsibility Penalty. (The Affordable Care Act requires everyone to have health insurance or pay the penalty)

Types of exemptions are:

1. Hardship exemption - homeless or evicted in the last 6 months, facing foreclosure, received shut-off notice, or filed for bankruptcy in last 6 months.

2. Other exemptions - income is so low you don't have a filing requirement, you didn't have health insurance for less than 3 months in a row, or you are a member of a federally recognized tribe.

If anyone thinks they may qualify for a special enrollment period or exemption, and they need assistance or have questions, they can call Cynthia Solesbee at 828-400-4177, who is the local Health Care Navigator covering Macon County. Or they can complete a Marketplace Application on www.healthcare.gov.

The complete list follows:

Exemption from Individual Shared Responsibility Penalty

The Affordable Care Act (ACA) requires that all individuals and families have health insurance coverage in 2014 or face an “individual shared responsibility payment” penalty of:

• $95/person or 1% of yearly income, whichever is higher
• $47.50/child with the maximum amount a family would pay is $285.

The penalty is due in 2015 when you file your taxes.

Keep in mind that in 2016, this fee will increase to $95/person or 2.5% of yearly income, whichever is higher.

Under certain circumstances may be eligible for an exemption from paying the penalty. Types of exemptions are:

Hardship Exemption

• You were homeless and/or evicted in the past 6 months
• You were facing foreclosure
• You received a shut-off notice from a utility company
• You filed for bankruptcy in the last 6 months
• You had medical expenses you couldn’t pay in the last 24 months
• You experienced unexpected increases in necessary expenses due to caring for an ill, disabled, or aging family member
• You recently experienced domestic violence
• You recently experienced the death of a close family member
• You experienced a fire, flood, or other natural or human-caused disaster that caused substantial damage to your property
• As a result of an eligibility appeals decision, you are eligible for enrollment in a qualified health plan (QHP) through the marketplace, premium tax credits, or cost sharing reductions for a time period when you weren’t enrolled in a QHP in the marketplace.
• Your income is below 138% of the federal poverty level and were determined ineligible for Medicaid because your state didn’t expand eligibility for Medicaid under the ACA.

• Your individual insurance plan was cancelled and insurance would cost more than 8% of your household income making it unaffordable.
• You expect to claim a child as a tax dependent who’s been denied Medicaid coverage and CHIP, and another person is required by court order to give medical support to the child.

Other Exemptions

• Your income is low enough that you don’t have to file taxes in 2015
• You did not have health insurance for less than 3 months in a row
• The lowest priced coverage available to you would cost 8% more than your annual household income

If you think you may qualify for an exemption, complete an Exemption Application on www.healthcare.gov. This application may require you to provide documentation about the hardship you experienced.

If you need assistance in locating or completing this application, please call your Local Health Care Navigator at Mountain Projects, Inc. Cynthia Solesbee, Macon Conty (828) 400-4177.
Highlands Aerial Park, the zip line family attraction in Scaly Mountain, has brought a whole new dimension to family recreation on the plateau. It is conveniently located 9.3 miles from the Highlands Post Office on the Dillard Rd and 5 miles up the mountain from the Dillard turnoff.

Several things make this park different from the other zip lines that are being developed across the USA. Perhaps the most important is the inclusion of a family obstacle course in the trees called the Brave Indian that allows children as young as 5 to participate with parents and grandparents. The Brave Indian was the idea of Karen Powell who told her husband George that the area needed an activity that would attract the children and offer a fun event to look forward to when visiting “Nana” and “Papa.”

Another major difference is the ecological emphasis due to the setting on High Holly Mountain, the western most mountain on the Highlands Plateau. The “World Class” zip line course is the highest in elevation in the southeast. The result is the feel of the Alpine rope courses of Europe combined with the lush vegetation of Central America. This makes for a tree based botanical experience that has the exhilaration of the pole based amusement parks.

The signature “Squealing Mare,” 1 of 15 elements, is a soaring run of over a quarter of a mile long with uninterrupted views of the mile high peaks of the Nantahala National Forest.

The zip line tours are for 10 years old and up (the oldest to date is 93) with a minimum weight of 70 lbs and a maximum of 250 lbs. The more moderate “Mountain Course” is designed for those who aren’t sure if they are ready for the full experience. But be aware, a high percentage who sign up for the shorter tour continue on. They say at the end of the mountain tour, they are “assured of the safety” and they “just have to do the long, high ones.”

Another feature that makes HAP special is the series of Nature Trails that are included for all participants and those who accompany them but choose not to “FLY.”

With an emphasis on FAMILY, the park is designed for viewing the action from below. No one need stay home and miss the fun. There are observation platforms below the Brave Indian where proud family members watch the tentative first steps become bold feats of bravery.

The trails are rated moderate with a 150 ft. suspension bridge over a scenic waterfall easing much of the elevation change. There are over 100 wildflowers, shrubs, trees, fungi, lichens, and mosses identified with something in bloom from April thru frost.

There is an unique “IF YOU DON’T GO, YOU DON’T OWE” policy that has no penalty for cancellations. All they ask is that you notify them when your plans change.

Reservations are strongly recommended as tours are limited and operate on a strict time schedule. All guests are asked to be on site ½ hour prior to departure for both the Brave Indian and the Canopy Tours.

There are dual priorities at Highlands Aerial Park, FUN and SAFETY. The ACCT trained guides provide the safe environment with redundancy of gear and procedures while offering personal interaction with the guests. The Insurance industry has rated Zip Lines the “safest outdoor activity based on claim history.”
