Towns meet with county commissioners in combo mtg.

It’s become a quarterly affair. Every four months the towns of Franklin and Highlands meet with the Macon County Commissioners to break bread and to casually discuss issues.

No business transpires – it’s just a way to keep the lines of communication open and is a practice started years ago by Highlands Mayor Don Mullen.

Every quarter the event is hosted by either the town of Franklin, the town of Highlands or the county. Monday, Nov. 16 it was Highlands’ turn.

The site of the meeting was the Highlands Biological Station where following a meal provided by Mountain Fresh Grocery members of all the boards discussed a bit about what has been going on in their jurisdictions.

Franklin Mayor Bob Scott was the first to speak. He was pleased to announce that Franklin was the recent recipient of a $36,000 grant from the state with a 10% match from Franklin that will be used to develop a bike and pedestrian plan “So we can move people not just

No-wake zone would mean safe water activities in Nantahala Lake for citizens

Citizens and commissioners asking for State approval

Nantahala Lake has 30 miles of shoreline and according to Mark Ray, and officer with the North Carolina Wildlife Commission, 90 percent of people who operate boats on the lake are individuals who do not operate water crafts regularly.

Because of concerns surrounding the large number of first-time or one-time boaters on Nantahala Lake, paired with a community who has been working for years to establish a recreation area at the lake for tourists and residents, Macon County Commissioners voted to submit an application to the state to designate Lakes End Cove on the lake as an official “no wake zone.”

The application calls for the .67 miles of shoreline in the cove protected by a no wake zone, which means boats have to slow down, producing no wake, when in the designated area. The move has been something Nantahala community members have been fighting for for years.

Lakes End Mariana currently has one of the lakes three legal buoys, which require boaters to slow down 50 yards out from the pier. Residents have free access for swimming and other water lake activities from the pier, but even with a buoy sitting 50 yards out, boats often get dangerously close to swimmers before slowing down – according to Daniel Lopp member of the Nantahala community who has been working with commissioners to establish a recreation area along the lake.

The county’s administration has been working since spring to develop maps of Nantahala Lake which clearly marks where the newly proposed no wake zone would begin. According to Jack Morgan, director of the county planning department, Lakes End

American Legion Post 370 & Scout Troops 207 join forces to erect flag pole

Last Wednesday, Nov. 11, on a balmy Veterans Day, area veterans, boy scouts and cub scouts joined forces to leave a lasting memorial on the Highlands Community Building property next to the ballfield.

Through mutual collaboration, as well as help from town crews, a new flag now flies from the new pole visible to all. The scouts and the town did the logistics and labor and the veterans from American Legion Post 370 supplied the funds.

“None of this would have been possible without the generous donation from Highlands American Legion Post 370. On this day when we honor veterans let me take this time to not only thank you for this great new flagpole, but to thank you for your service to our great country. We can never thank you enough for your service,” said scout leader

The monthly Highlands Town Board Meeting will be held tonight at 7 pm. It will be at the Highlands Conference Center next to the ball field. The agenda is not long.

The first agenda item is the recognition of Blakely Moore, the new state 1A champion in cross country. Blakely is our first state champion from Highlands School. Her family, friends and coaches will be there to celebrate her achievement.

Representatives from Entegra Bank, formerly Macon Bank, will be donating a part of their existing bank property to become a part of the Kelsey-Hutchinson Founders Park. I appreciate the generosity and commitment to the community of Entegra Bank. Also, I am grateful to the Friends of the Park and Foster Surveying for their efforts in facilitating and supporting this important property transfer.

The board will also be asked to pass a resolution adopting the Macon County Animal Control Ordinance. Highlands has adopted the ordinance before, and this resolution is basically an update to reflect recent changes in the county ordinance. The Macon County Animal Control Department does all enforcement activities within the town.

I am asking the board to set a policy for snow clearing of town streets. As you recall, last winter there was some controversy over the plowing of Monkey Hill on Chestnut Street, a popular sledding area. Such a policy should be in place prior to the winter snow season.

In previous communication I stated that the plan for bringing broadband to the town would be presented at the November board meeting. The town staff is very close to presenting specific information about how the town will provide broadband services to the community including a proposed pricing structure. The presentation will be delayed until the December meeting. A critical staff member has been ill for several weeks and certain key components still need to be resolved. Rather than partially revealing the plan, the Town Manager felt it best to postpone the presentation for a month so all aspects of the plan can be presented together.

Once the plan is presented and approved by the board, full implementation will get underway. Initial service in some areas should be operational early next year.

Let me cover a couple of other items before the Thanksgiving holiday. Town Hall will be closed on Thanksgiving Day and Friday. There will be no trash collection on Thanksgiving, but the trucks will run on Friday, collecting trash for both the Thursday and Friday pickup days.

The Christmas decorations have been going up -- they will be in place for the Christmas Town Lighting on the Saturday after Thanksgiving.

Phil Potts.

Potts said the project not only epitomized what it means to be a scout — to be helpful and generous — but it also shows what can happen when the older generation and the younger generation work together for a common goal.

It was a great project for the scouts to undertake with the veterans, he said.

"After all," said Potts, "veterans and the American Flag … these two are synonymous!"

Potts thanked Tim Moseley from Warth Construction and the leader of Cub Scout Troop 207 for planting the idea of a new flagpole; to Rec Park Director Lester Norris for getting approval for the pole itself, the location and for getting the town crew's help to assist in the installation.

Potts gave a big thank you to the town's Electric Department crew: Craig (Yogi) McCall, Greg James, David Lefler, Clay Talley and Joe Allison as well as the Street Department's: Gene Ramey and Norman Houck.

"These gentlemen dug the hole — there is only about a foot of soil then it is solid rock — they helped set the flagpole, provided fill dirt and cleaned up the extra rocks and dirt," he said.

He also thanked Scoutmaster Mike Murphy who organized the workday and scouts John Murphy, Carter Potts and David Bock for coming out on a rainy Saturday to pour the cement for the installation sleeve.

"You guys exemplify what it means when we say a scout is helpful and generous," he said.

Puddin’ is at it again. Can you picture her wearing a cat-sized pith helmet? Not only is she continuing the lizard hunt in the dining room, she’s also going wild in the living room. We were spending a quiet evening in front of the TV, when she began leaping in the air and running around the furniture. Knowing there were no lizards to be found, I thought she was chasing a stink bug. We occasionally see them in the living room, but her best stink bug hunting ground is in my office, where she stalks them constantly.

This evening, though, she was on the prowl in the living room. She darted behind the entertainment center and seemed to be stuck. I pried her out from behind it and discovered she was chasing a stuffed fuzzy grey mouse that she’d inherited from her predecessor. Dancer, our last cat, had stopped playing with toy mice or anything else, for that matter, long before she went to kitty heaven at age 22.

I tossed the mouse out into the room and in the midst of that chase, Puddin’ unearthed a small stuffed brown mouse. Next was a green sparkly toy. All of these items have been lying untouched in the toy basket near the easy chair for at least six months. If you’ve ever had cats, you know that they can make these tiny toys come alive by tossing them in the air and pouncing on them non-stop. We were howling just watching her chase her toys around the coffee table.

All those antics inspired my husband to get out the “bird as he calls it. That’s a wand with a string and feather attached to it. Puddin’ will leap two feet in the air and do flips trying to catch it. By the time she ran out of steam and called it quits, she was panting and her little ears were hot. She hasn’t gotten that worn out since she was a kitten. Not long after that, she headed upstairs to sack out on the dog’s bed, and that’s where she stayed until the next morning.

And you ask, “What was the 80 pound dog doing during all this activity? He was quietly lying on his bed in the living room, completely undisturbed and no doubt thinking the cat was crazy. Not much excites the boy. Well, he gets excited when he sees his leash or sees me put on my ball cap, thinking that a walk is in the offing, but get excited about the cat? No way.

There have been no further mouse or bird hunts since that evening, but Puddin’ continues to don her pith helmet every morning and stake out the dining room in search of the lizard.

How to Avoid Buyer’s Remorse

If you’ve decided that now is the time to buy your mountain home, it’s important to purchase the property that suits your needs. It is also important to do everything you can to make sure there is no “buyer’s remorse” after the purchase.

Nationally, the most common reasons quoted for buyer’s remorse are:
- The neighborhood and its proximity to other areas
- Transportation and parking
- Price: Did I pay too much?
- Hidden Costs such as pools, yards, renovations, heating, and cooling
- Bathrooms (not enough or wishing for a tub instead of a shower)

While some of these complaints do not apply to life on the Highlands Cashiers Plateau, one that is commonly heard by local Realtors pertains to hidden costs, especially unexpected repairs.

“We expect the rink to draw people to the central business district during the off months,” he said.

He mentioned the completion of the water intake project and the repairs to the Lake Sequoyah Dam and said the town is about to roll out its broadband project which will become a utility available to citizens soon.

“All homes and businesses will have access to high speed internet which will help with economic development in this 21st century,” he said. “We have people who would consider living here year round if they could telecommute so this is what we are aiming for.”

Commissioner Amy Patterson explained that the project isn’t meant to compete with other such enterprises but maximum speeds are necessary for economic development.

“It’s fiber, not co-axel cable so the upload and download is one-to-one with no loss of megabytes with the capacity of up to 100 megs,” she said. “The upload speed is the main reason we are doing this.”

Mayor Taylor said Highlands is too small and too seasonal for the big companies to bother with offering high upload capability but a lot of people who come to Highlands want to do telecommuting.

Town Manager Bob Frye said the main company bringing fiber to town is ERC and the town is also talking to a company in Georgia so there will be redundancy. In addition to the hard fiber which will be taken to each home or business and then attached to an Ethernet cable which will be attached to the router in the house, wireless will also be shooting from area towers.

At that Franklin Mayor Scott asked if Franklin could get it.

Commissioner Patterson said anyone including those outside the town limits who is in the line of sight of the wireless signal could most probably get service.

Macon County Commission Chair Kevin Corbin spoke last ticking off county accomplishments this past year.

Parker Meadows Recreation Complex – a $10 million project – was completed with $3 million and has already hosted three events which have brought hundreds of thousands of dollars to the county which is good for all its environs.

He said so far 2015 Occupancy Tax collections is the highest on record and the 10-acre expansion of the landfill will make Macon County self-sustaining.

He said the two QZAB projects the county undertook – renovations to both Highlands School and Union School are almost complete – Union 80% complete and Highlands 90% complete. Both are expected to be finished by the end of December.

He said since 2008, the county has spent $50 million on school capital projects – projects he said that have been in the pipeline for 20 years.

Corbin reminded those in attendance that Macon County is geographically challenged when it comes to its school district. He said Senator Jim Davis has introduced a bill to increase funding for the state’s three K-12 schools. One is in Ocracoke and the other two are in Macon County – Highlands and Nantahala. The bill will be brought up in the next legislative short session.

“What the state doesn’t understand is kids don’t come in lots of 24 [which makes up a typical classroom],” he said.

Davis is asking for an extra $1.5 million from the state for the Macon County School System saying that it costs the county more to run Highlands and Nantahala schools than others in the county.

County Manager Derek Roland said the county is implementing an IP – Internet
Highlands ABC Store disburses profits to area nonprofits

Monday evening, members of the Highlands ABC Board – Chairman Brenda Pierson, Leslie Cook, John Underwood, Rick Trevathan and ABC Store general manager Kevin Vinson distributed the stores profits to Highlands-Cashiers Hospital, the Town of Highlands, the Town Scholarship Fund, the Highlands Police Department the Highlands Rec Park and the Counseling & Psychotherapy Group of Highlands. ABC Board member Harry Bears wasn’t able to attend.

By NC law, after operational expenses are paid, any leftover profits are to be disbursed within the town.

Highlands Recreation Dept. Director Lester Norris accepted a check for $7,133.64 for the Rec Dept.

Macon County School Board member Stephanie McCall accepted a check for $6241.94 for the Town of Highlands Scholarship Fund.

Highlands Police Chief Bill Harrell accepted a check for $2,061.32 for the D.A.R.E. Program.

Martha Porter accepts a check in the amount of $1617.93 for the Counseling & Psychotherapy Group of Highlands.

Representative from Highlands-Cashiers hospital accepted two checks, one for rehabilitation for $1617.92 and for the the foundation for $6241.94.

The key to avoiding this issue is undertaking your due diligence. Have all of the inspections and due diligence items performed that you would normally, but remember that if the home you are purchasing is older or has not been used much recently, there could be problems that are not obvious. Consider having a contractor take a look at the home after the inspection is complete. This is not only to get a cost for the noted repairs, but also to see if there are other issues that a contractor might find that an inspector could have overlooked. Do not rely on the seller’s contractor for pricing and opinions; you should make sure to work with someone looking out for your interests.

While not a hidden cost another way to avoid Buyer’s Remorse is by having a survey. Always have an up to date survey. A buyer should never purchase without complete knowledge of the property boundaries. This can help avoid pitfalls later.

Most “city dwellers” are unfamiliar with septic systems and might be surprised at the cost of repairing the problems that could arise with them. Learning the condition of your potential new home’s septic can aid you in making a more informed decision plus allow you to request repairs from the seller before the end of due diligence.

It’s important to be realistic about the use of your mountain home. One situation is that a new buyer, and all of their friends and families want to be in the mountains and the home seems “too small” for their gatherings. The other scenario is that the home isn’t used as much as the buyer predicted and the buyer ends up with too much house for such little usage.

Evaluating your life style and having inspections performed before your buy is the best way to make sure that you are happy with your real estate purchase. While there is no way to completely rule out unexpected issues when purchasing a new home, a local knowledgeable Realtor can guide you through the home buying process.

Mission Hospital has received the Get With The Guidelines®-Stroke GOLD-Plus Quality Achievement Award from the American Heart Association/American Stroke Association. The recognition demonstrates Mission Hospital’s commitment to quality care for stroke patients. Mission Hospital also received the Elite Plus Target Stroke Honor Roll recognition (highest level of achievement in stroke) for meeting stroke quality measures that reduce the time between hospital arrival and treatment with the clot-buster tPA, the only drug approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to treat ischemic stroke.

“In western North Carolina, we live in a part of the county referred to as the Stroke Belt. That means our community is at a higher risk for stroke and it remains the fourth most common cause of death and leading cause of disability among adults,” said Jonathan Bailey, Vice President of Operations for Mission Health. “Mission Health carefully coordinates our stroke care through a team that is focused on prevention, recognition, acute intervention and recovery. This recognition of our stroke program is a result of our commitment to our patients and to our community.”

The Get With The Guidelines-Stroke program combines the expertise of the American Heart Association and the American Stroke Association to work for hospitals nationwide, helping hospital care teams ensure that the care provided to stroke patients is aligned with the latest evidence-based guidelines.

The quick and efficient use of guideline procedures improves the quality of care for stroke patients, saves lives and reduces healthcare costs by lowering the recurrence of strokes.

Phone System – which will save the county $100,000 a year on its phone bill and it has expanded its EMS Department including personnel and ambulances.

“We now have four ambulances running 24/7 in Macon County – we used to have three,” he said.

Roland said he is ready to hear from the commissioners on where to go in FY 2016-’17. “Our Fund Balance is at 35%, our debt is decreasing and we have one of the most competitive tax rates in the state,” he said.

Following the briefing by the town and county representatives Dr. Jim Costa, director of the Highlands Biological Station told participants about the station’s 89-year history.

It was founded in 1927, became a part of the University of North Carolina in 1976 and has been administered by Western Carolina University since 1987.

The 25-acre campus includes 12 acres of gardens. The station is considered a Field Station and Marine Lab (FSML) where students and researchers come year round to study flora and fauna.

Like its sister facility down the mountain, Coweeta Lab, the Highlands Biological Station has been named a National Science base camp – an off-campus facility for biologists.

Highlands is the second wettest region in America – second to Northwest United States – and of course is known as Salamander Central due to the diversity of the species here, he said.

“It was the hope of founder Clark Howell Foreman, for whom the Nature Center is named, that this would become a Mountain Biological Research Station where students and researchers could immerse themselves in their subject,” said Costa. “It’s all about immersion and both basic and applied research.”

He said the goal at the station is to provide an understanding and love of the natural world by inspiring a love of nature.

“We have been taking the pulse of the plateau through teaching, training and researching since 1927,” he said.

The next quarterly meeting of the three entities will be in early 2016 in Franklin hosted by either the town of Franklin or the county.

Cove bottlenecks, and at the tip of the cove, .67 miles of shore, the county is proposing a no-wake buoy and signage 500 feet across to make the entire cove a no-wake zone.

Residents who own homes in Lakes End Cove as well as the manager of Lakes End Mariana spoke to commissioners last Tuesday night in support of designating the area a no-wake zone in the interest of safety and to provide the community with a recreation area so citizens can enjoy the lake.

According to Ray, a no-wake zone would mean watercraft could not travel at any speed faster than idle speed.

“This would slow all watercraft down to a crawl and they would not be able to blast into and out of the cove, and of course this would make it safer for all who use this area for swimming,” said Ray. “We would be able to enforce it and would work with boaters to educate them about the area and the safe way to operate within the cove.”

Chester Jones, legal counsel for Macon County said that even though commissioners voted to submit an application to the state asking for a legal designation on the lake, the process is still considerably lengthy. The state will review the application before determining whether or not it will be approved for enforcement. If it gets state approval, the county would then be responsible for erecting and maintaining proper signage.

• Note: Nantahala Lake is in far west Macon County. The lake is regulated and maintained by Duke Power and is a major source of hydroelectric power to the region. Nantahala is located at 3,000 feet in the Nantahala National Forest. The lake was created in 1942 by Nantahala Power to provide electricity for war efforts. With 30 miles of shoreline, the lake offers recreational opportunities at Nantahala that include swimming, boating, skiing, and many other activities. Fishing is another popular activity. Aficionados will find largemouth bass, smallmouth bass, trout, salmon, catfish, and many different species of panfish. The lake water is very clear; there is almost no dissolved silt/clay. However, when daytime waves stir up the lake bed along the shoreline, the water within the first several feet of shore can become temporarily cloudy. Most of the shoreline plummets steeply into and beneath the water, limiting this effect.
From left: Buz Dotson, Dr. Jim Costa, Executive Director of the Highlands Biological Station, and Christy Kelly, President, Rotary Club of Highlands. Most Highlanders have taken their children or grandchildren to the Highlands Nature Center...and many have explored the beautiful paths and enjoyed the rich collection of native plants at the Botanical Garden. But are Highlanders as aware of the significant activities that take place at the third -- and oldest -- branch of the Biological Station: the research Laboratory? Dr. Costa’s presentation at the Nov. 10 meeting of the Rotary Club of Highlands addressed role of the Laboratory in furthering the mission of the Biological Station: “to foster research and education focused on the rich natural heritage of the southern Appalachian Mountains.” The Station annually hosts students, faculty and researchers for immersive study utilizing its extensive laboratories that are complemented by residential facilities for 44 people, library and biological collections. To date over 150 graduate theses and PhD dissertations have been earned here, extending the long tradition of place-based teaching, learning and investigation that is encouraged and nourished at the Highlands Biological Station.

To Be Continued Next Week.
What happened? When did it happen? And can anything be done about it? Are three questions I've asked all the time. What caused the sea change in our culture? When did it occur and what, if anything, can we do about it? Big questions!

The answers, of course depend upon one’s viewpoint. I say this because a lot of you applaud the cultural shift and believe things are heading in the right direction. I have thought a great deal about whether or not the culture is heading into safe waters and have concluded we have veered way off course. And here is why.

When America was discovered and founded many held to the belief that the God of the Bible was at the wheel of the great ship and we were being guided by divine providence. From Columbus to Washington, men and women, believed in the sovereignty of God over this nation. For a long period of time America set its course based upon the instructions found in the Bible. This belief held strong for the first hundred and seventy five years of our Independence. But things started to change.

Oddly, and it is odd to me, the sea change, although ever so slightly, started after America’s victory in 1945. God was asked, politely mind you, to step aside to allow another captain to steer the great ship. “America stood at the helm and gave direction to the great vessel. The idea of “America with God as its guiding force gave way to something new, an “America without much of God in it. America, itself began to set the direction for America and things started changing. Case in point in 1962 prayer was no longer legal in the public school, in 1973 abortion was legalized and in 2015 marriage was redefined. Ask yourself this question; “in what areas of government, law, or education is God directly involved? When was the last time anything of major importance was decided by a head of state citing a Biblical reference or teaching? You can’t think of one can you because we have expelled God from almost every part of the “American “ story?

We were a nation with God in it! That’s how I see it anyway. So what can we do to change things? As a minority in America, Christians could leave and perhaps discover some new place to start over. Or we can stay on board and wait for the ship to sink. Because it will sink! We are taking on water right now. Can we be saved? Is America salvageable? Only if we step aside, understanding what will take place should we fail. America is no longer what it once was, “One nation under God. I can’t assume you feel as I do about this, but I’m convinced if we are to become strong and good again we must set our course by the Word of God letting Jesus Christ take control of the wheel. Will we? I have my doubts. What about you?
