Once Highlands’ administrators settled on the candidates who fit its strict criteria for the job of Town Planner and Code Enforcement Officer, it took the Town Board just a couple of days to make an offer.

On Monday, Mayor Pat Taylor and Town Manager Bob Frye announced that Randy Feierabend had been offered and had accepted the job. He was one of four candidates interviewed last Wednesday.

Feierabend comes with a list of credentials which made him a perfect fit for Highlands.

He has more than 25 years experience as a North Carolina and South Carolina planner, Planning Director and Town Manager. During his career he has written and implemented comprehensive plans – something the Highlands Planning Board is currently working on.

He has written and implemented corridor beautification plans and recreation plans and helped create the Caldwell County Pathways Group which promotes bikeways and greenways in that area.

Incumbents retain their seats

Highlanders are pretty apathetic when it comes to voting … particularly in a municipal election. Of the 874 registered voters only 157 turned out to vote. Regardless, the incumbents on the Town Board will sit for another four years. Eric Pierson got 121 votes, Brian Stiehler got 112 votes, John Dotson got 110 votes and Michael Rogers got 56 votes.

Domestic dispute ends in shooting

On Saturday, Oct. 31, at 12:39 p.m., the Macon County Emergency Operation Center received a 9-1-1 call reporting an active domestic dispute at a residence on 24 Buttermilk Lane.

Upon the officers’ arrival, information was gathered from other parties and family members who were at the scene outside the home.

The suspect, Joseph Lee Baty, 28, who had a 12-gauge shotgun, had barricaded himself in the bedroom with his girlfriend and their one-year-old child.

Officers immediately took tactical positions on the property surrounding the house and established a perimeter.

While law enforcement used a loud speaker to talk Baty out of the house, he and the girlfriend began scuffling. The girlfriend took possession of Baty’s shotgun and fired a single shot, striking him in the face with birdshot.

The unarmed girlfriend immediately exited the home with the child and rendered themselves into the care of officers on scene.

Baty was incapacitated in the room with his girlfriend and their one-year-old child.

The interviews for the Town Planner and Code Enforcement Director were completed last week.

The Town Manager, members of the Town Board and myself interviewed four very qualified candidates. The decision came down to the person that was the best fit for Highlands.

I am delighted to announce that Randy Feierabend was selected for the position. He accepted the position and will start in mid-November.

Randy has over 25 years experience and holds a certification from the American Institute of Certified Planners. AICP certification is the expected “gold” standard requirement for town planning directors.

Before coming to Highlands, he served as the Town Manager for six years for the town of Beech Mountain, NC. There are several similarities between Beech Mountain and Highlands in that both are resort mountain communities with similar demographics. During the year, both towns see strong swings in seasonal populations. Both communities are located in beautiful, natural settings.

Prior to serving Beech Mountain, Randy was the Planning Director for Caldwell County, NC for eight years. He also served for 10 years as Planning and Development Director for York County, SC. In this position he worked with 34 employees in sub-departments of planning, zoning, building inspections and erosion/storm water-management.

Mr. Feierabend has experience in all areas of town planning, zoning and code enforcement. The job description that was advertised requested a strong preference for candidates with knowledge and experience in North Carolina zoning and environmental regulations. Our new town planner clearly meets these requirements.

But, there is another aspect of his candidacy that was very important. He has been involved in developing comprehensive plans for Beech Mountain and Caldwell County. In his interview he stressed that a town planner has to work with the various community stakeholders in developing, refining and implementing comprehensive planning policies that are equitable and for the overall good of the community. He went on to state that economic development and the preservation of the environment in places like Highlands, Beech Mountain, or in the historic areas of Caldwell County, are not mutually exclusive.

He wrote the Beech Mountain Corridor Beautification Plan, and has worked with citizens to secure grant funding for such things as dog parks, mountain biking trails and nature based playgrounds. Randy is especially proud of his involvement in the development of the Wilson Creek Corridor Recreation Plan. Wilson Creek was designated as a Wild and Scenic River in 2004.

Members of the board have stressed the need for a planner who will get out within the community, meet people, track projects and monitor critical environmental areas. As mayor I have embraced a MBWA style that might also work in planning at appropriate times. That approach is Managing by Wandering Around. This simple process gives one a perspective beyond just analyzing paper work from an office.

Don’t be surprised to see Randy soon wandering around town and informally talking with folks. He won’t be goofing off. On the contrary, he will be a planner on duty.

Profits vs. the Public Interest

By proposing to replace its Lake Julian coal plant with a new natural gas/fracking-fired mega power plant in western North Carolina, Duke Energy is moving in an anachronistic direction that inhibits the transformation to energy efficiency and renewable energy needed to address rising energy costs and climate change.

Massive investment in energy efficiency is a much more economical way to meet energy demand than building, operating and continually fueling a new power plant of any kind. No one knowledgeable in the field of commercial energy production can argue with this assertion. The cheapest kilowatt is the one that isn't needed due to efficiency improvements on the user end. Energy efficiency programs aimed at reducing energy waste cost utilities only about three cents per kilowatt hour, while generating the same amount of electricity from sources such as fossil fuels can cost two to three times more.

Given the negative economic, health and environmental impacts of burning fossil fuels, it’s time to re-examine the rationale for new power plants. Our utilities must lead the way toward a clean energy future by investing in energy efficiency and clean renewable energy so that our communities can enjoy the jobs and economic benefits without the negative consequences of burning fossil fuels.

See FORUM page 3 for more information.

fuels or using the nuclear fuel-fission-waste cycle to generate electricity, it would be logical for public policy to require maximization of efficiency and minimization of production capacity. But, due to the terms of an antiquated public utility system of regulated monopoly in North Carolina, the reverse incentive currently applies. Under this system Duke Energy is currently granted a rate of return of 10.2% on infrastructure capital expenditures, assuming the project is self-financed. This means that if the company spends one billion dollars on building a new power plant, the law requires that rates will be adjusted to ensure that Duke Energy realizes a profit of one hundred and two million dollars on this expenditure. Get it? This is a no-risk “investment” with a huge return for Duke Energy shareholders, at the expense of the ratepayers (you and me) who foot the bill for the construction and legally-required profit even if it isn't the best or most economical way to meet energy demand.

At one point in our history this type of regulated monopolistic arrangement may have been advantageous to guarantee the economic health and stability of a new and growing energy industry that promised to provide reliable electricity to light homes and run factories. In that era the promise of reliable electricity over-shadowed any health or environmental concerns that weren’t as fully understood as they are today. The priority, then, was to incentivize growth in the energy industry to bring modernization to North Carolina.

While providing electrical energy to all North Carolinians is still essential today, circumstances have changed substantially, not only in our awareness of the health and environmental impacts of conventional electrical energy production, but, also because of the quickly evolving energy efficiency revolution. The highly-centralized and rapid-growth model of the regulated-monopoly utility system no longer meets the criteria of sensible public energy policy in the year 2015. This system from a different era is a vestige that has become counter-productive today.

In 2011, 2013 and 2015 a growing group of NC state legislators in both the House and Senate have sponsored a bill entitled “The Efficient and Affordable Energy Rates Bill.” The 2015 versions are House Bill 377 and Senate Bill 483, sponsored by 15 state legislators. The core purpose of the bill is to steeply incentivize private investment in energy efficiency to enable a dynamic reduction in statewide energy consumption and production. The new utility rate structure would substantially lower monthly energy bills for those who make the investment in efficiency, aided by low-interest loans from a dedicated Energy Efficiency Bank. Similar measures have been successfully implemented in at least seven other states and several nations to successfully reduce energy consumption while fostering the growth of new industries in energy efficiency and rooftop solar energy, creating thousands of new jobs in the process. Arizona, New Mexico, California, Nevada, Vermont, Iowa, Washington State and Nova Scotia, Canada are among the states and nations where this type of program has been implemented in North America.

Protecting its sweet deal as a regulated monopoly, as you might expect, Duke Energy has brushed aside H377/S483 as unworkable in North Carolina. The real bread and butter for their shareholders is in the guaranteed profit realized from building more power plants and infrastructure, while nurturing a steady growth in energy consumption. But, a continuation of this business model is in conflict with the public interest. The public policy that would most benefit residents and ratepayers is the implementation of programs that reduce energy consumption and eliminate the need to build more centralized power plants.

Reversing Duke Energy’s plans for building a new natural gas, fracking-fired mega power plant in western North Carolina will require the public to rise up and demand a basic change in our state’s public energy policy. It will be necessary to adopt the type of measures introduced in the Efficient and Affordable Energy Rates Bill. If you really want to stop this power plant construction, tell your state legislator, the Governor and the Utilities Commission to push for the passage of H377/S483.

The Macon County Sheriff’s Office supplied mug shots of Baty from previous arrests; this one is from a 2014 arrest.

After officers secured the scene, Baty was tended to by the Macon County EMS and was then air-lifted by MAMA to Mission Memorial in Asheville where he is healing and will undergo some reconstructive surgery to his face.

At this time, based on the outcome of interviews and the collection of evidence, charges are pending.

paid counties in the state the correct amount of Medicaid Cost Settlement Funds since 2011, which leaves $200,000 owed to Macon County.

Members of the Macon County Board of Health were notified of the funding situation in July, when Bruckner cautioned the board against a possible budget shortfall due to the lack of funds coming from the state.

According to Bruckner, it is not clear why the state hasn’t allocated Medicaid Cost Settlement Funds yet, or if the DMA will. Medicaid funds originate on the federal level and are then given to the DMA to distribute to local departments. The funds are for services that have already been rendered -- is a reimbursement not a projected amount for what local departments might spend.

“The N.C. Health Directors Association has hired a legal firm out of Charlotte to represent us,” Bruckner said. “There are a couple of different things in our favor in terms of a lawsuit. First, the state deviated from its approved formula without informing health directors, which by law, they have to. Also, the DMA is only allowed to withhold funds for five months; 2011 was more than five months ago, 2012 was more than five months, and so was 2013 and 2014.”

During the October Board of Health board meeting, Bruckner noted that although some funds have been sent to the county, the full amounts owed have not been sent and because of that, the health directors association is still considering a lawsuit.

While the lawsuit was originally going to be filed at the beginning of October, Bruckner said it was delayed while the association was working to gain support from other counties in the state who like Macon County, are experiencing budget constraints due to lack of funds.

Another issue plaguing Macon County is what to do with the $400,000 from the state. Medicaid cost settlement dollars can only be spent on Medicaid funded programs in which the funds are earned. So the money cannot be spent elsewhere in the health department’s budget.

The $400,000 was a reimbursement for services rendered last year and because the health department and the county closed out their 2014-15 budget in September, those funds cannot be retroactively applied. Bruckner was slated to meet with county finance director Lori Hall to work out the details on what to do with the funding now.

itially faced a significant budget shortfall.

In September the school system received the 2015-16 planning allotment from the state, which allowed the county to rest a little easier. Both driver’s education and teacher assistants were funded at current levels. Last week, as the school system adopted the $45 million budget resolution that included $3.1 million in federal funds, $10.4 million from local fund sources such as the county, and $25.6 million from the state, Macon County Schools finance director informed the board that the state’s allotment included increases in line items such as textbooks, classroom materials and athletic officiating.

The state’s budget pledged to continue funding driver’s education at current levels for the next two years. Macon County has however increased the participation fee for the program from $45 to $65 to help cover the cost to maintain the vehicle and fund the driver’s education teacher’s salary. Even with the state’s allotment for the program, local dollars are still needed to cover the overall expenses.

Reflecting on Veterans Day comes easier to me this year, as our vacation last year to Normandy and the D-Day sites is a trip I'll never forget.

Our goal in choosing a Normandy cycling tour was to see the awe-inspiring WWII museums and monuments as part of our annual cycling vacation. I came away wishing every American could experience Normandy and reflect on the sacrifices made by so many to turn the tide in WWII and to defend the freedoms we quite often take for granted.

Perhaps the most striking and solemn site is The Normandy American Cemetery and Memorial at Omaha Beach, comprised of several sections, each of which leaves an indelible impression. First, the Visitor Center, as the brochure describes, “depicts the significance and meaning of Operation OVERLORD and honors the values and sacrifices of the World War II generation.” The exhibit space recounts personal stories of our soldiers and combines text and photos on large panels, with, interactive displays and artifacts, but for me, it was stepping outside that was most overwhelming.

Outside the Visitor Center, the Overlook provides a view of the beach and the English Channel. Gazing at that peaceful scene and replaying in my mind the horrific invasion images I’ve seen through the years was almost surreal. There, we met our tour guide who escorted us to the Memorial with its statue, “The Spirit of American Youth Rising from the Waves.” It is a fitting image to honor these men, many of them not yet 20 years old, who gave their all in the Normandy Campaign. Carved on the lintel above the statue is the inscription “This embattled shore, portal of freedom, is forever hallowed by the ideals, the valor and the sacrifices of our fellow countrymen.” This is the gateway to the Garden of the Missing where the semi-circular wall is engraved with over 1,500 names of those missing in action.

As we moved from the Garden to the cemetery of 9,387 graves, this quote greeted us:

“To these we owe the high resolve that the cause for which they died shall live.”

General Mark W. Clark, Chairman, American Battle Monuments Commission (1969-84)

I was awestruck as I looked out at row upon row of headstones. Hearing our guide speak about just a handful of individuals brought home the reality of lives cut short. Each Cross and Star of David has a story to tell. We heard one story of a pilot who wrote his family that he had completed his requisite number of missions and was awaiting transport back home. After writing that letter, he volunteered for another bombing mission and was killed. I can only imagine that his family must have reacted to that news with a mix of emotions ranging from sorrow to pride to perhaps some anger at his fateful choice.

It seems appropriate that we visited Omaha Beach on the final day of our tour to reflect solemnly on the debt we owe these brave men and women and to consider what the world would be like today if not for them. This Eisenhower quote inscribed in the Garden of the Missing says it all:

“To these we owe the high resolve that the cause for which they died shall live.”

Due to a formula change for teacher assistants, where the state switched funding allotments to cover assistants in all kindergarten classrooms, Macon County received about a $100,000 reduction. Last year, the state allotted Macon County $1,116,415 but due to the new formula, this year Macon County had $1,090,725 to work with.

With extra funding in the budget this year, MC Board of Education Finance Director Angie Cook told the board that half of the district’s officiating budget was able to be restored. Dr. Chris Baldwin noted that between Highlands School, Nantahala, Franklin High and Macon Middle School, the district spent $47,265.50 on officials last year.

Franklin High School alone uses officials for 19 different sports teams throughout the year. When budget reductions occurred in years past, the school district cut that budget line item to fund other programs in the school system. Individual schools and sports had been responsible for funding the officials out of their athletic reserve accounts. Cook noted that for the current year, $23,632.75 was put back into that line item, with the remaining amount still being the responsibility of the individual schools.

Both the state’s Average Daily Membership funds for maintenance and general operating expenses were also increased in Hamlet Live in HD at PAC Sat.

Saturday, November 7 at 1pm The Highlands Performing Arts Center will present Hamlet starring Academy Award® nominee Benedict Cumberbatch (BBC’s Sherlock, The Imitation Game, Frankenstein at the National Theatre) as he takes on the title role of Shakespeare’s great tragedy. Directed by Lyndsey Turner (Posh, Chimerica) National Theatre Live will broadcast this eagerly awaited production Live in HD. As a country arms itself for war, a family tears itself apart. Forced to avenge his father’s death but paralyzed by the task ahead, Hamlet rages against the impossibility of his predicament, threatening both his sanity and the security of the state. Tickets are available online: highlandspac.org or by calling 828.526.9047. Students will be admitted FREE of charge for this presentation.
Amended Police Report

Victim gave police the wrong address

Last week the Oct. 16 report in the Police & Fire Reports listed a larceny of jewelry valued at $20,800 as being taken from a room in the Highlands Inn. In an amended report, the jewelry is listed as being taken from a room in the Main Street Inn. When reporting the crime to police, the victim told them she was staying at the Highlands Inn when in fact she was staying at Main Street Inn. However in the amended report it is noted that the “victim can’t find her jewelry and is not certain when the jewelry became missing.”

the new budget resolution.

In addition to the budget resolution, Macon County School officials were also informed that additional cash resources would be available in the coming month as the real-estate deal regarding Cullasaja School should be completed in November. James VanderWoude with Van’s Electric, Inc. placed the highest bid on the property in the amount of $175,000. Due to vandalism that has occurred on the building during the bidding process, the price of the building was reduced by $4,000.

BIZ NOTE

Ingles has purchased the Whistle Stop Mall in Franklin.

Whistle Stop Mall will now move to the old Cullasaja School which was recently purchased by James VanderWoude with Van’s Electric, Inc.

Whistle Stop Antiques and several small shops will move to the new location.

It’s not known what Ingles plans to do with the property.

Having been a food critic in the past, I have a special place in my heart and soul for great food and great wines! How appropriate that this is my week to write about real estate with the opening of our Culinary Weekend on Thursday night at Highlands Country Club. Many restaurants are offering wine dinners as well which should not be missed!

After moving to Highlands 21 years ago to open a bed and breakfast and cooking school, I found that many of our guests were in town looking for real estate. There was interest then in food and wines but nothing like it is today! Which brings up the topic of entertaining.

As a real estate broker, I find most buyers want an open floor plan that flows onto a deck or porch allowing gatherings of friends and family. Homes don't have to be large and fancy – just an open plan with good sitting areas for sipping wine and savoring tasty morsels.

Just as fine wines don't have to be the most expensive to satisfy your tastes, neither do homes. Some of the most charming and small and inexpensive. On the other hand, we have large homes with breathtaking views and massive decks with outdoor fireplaces but the camaraderie is the same.

We have homes listed ranging from the high 200,000s to $4 million…something for everyone. For the real connoisseur, we have a gorgeous home with a guesthouse on 35 acres that is celebrity-worthy. The owner has over $7 million in it but will sell for $2.4 million furnished including artwork! That's something to toast! I actually had the pleasure of sharing a fabulous wine with the owners when I listed it!

We have had a huge increase in buyers this year. I've even had properties with back-up offers in place!

If you are selling be sure to not overprice. Just like good wine, people want value for money spent. Ask a broker who works 24/7 and knows the market value in all areas –not just country clubs.

The philosophy to mark it up because of low-ball offers is a thing of the past. Buyers who become emotionally attached to your home will pay a fair price and a good broker will negotiate to make that happen. That is an important role and one to be taken seriously, resulting in a price that is good for you.

I hope you will experience the Culinary Weekend with great wines perfectly paired with wonderful food. Maybe I’ll see you at an event.

Almost a Saint?

By Margaret Howell
Holy Family Lutheran Church

Life has been interesting lately. I’ve been serving churches and hospices as a lay person and as a chaplain for 20 years — how my the time flies, or as a friend of mine used to say, “Once you get over the hill, you start picking up speed.”

As a chaplain I have played the harp at many a bedside, including my dear Mother-in-loves as she made that transition from this life to the next.

I’ve spent hundreds of hours at the bedside or in the home of parishioners, friends and family, hoping that God will guide me on the way to bringing healing and comfort to those I visit.

Before I came to Holy Family, I presided at a ton of funerals. It seemed logical that the person who walked with the dying person on their wilderness journey be the one to perform one final service for them and their families. I realized at one point, that I had been nicknamed the “Angel of Death.” A rather ironic title. Not really a compliment, but not an insult either.

In the past eight years, since coming to Holy Family I’ve witnessed the passing of a number of close friends and family. I am fortunate indeed, that I am pastor of such a compassionate group who have given me their prayers and understanding.

Imagine my surprise when in early September I went to the ER for what I thought was maybe a touch of pneumonia and found myself hospitalized with a very serious condition. I knew something was up when I joked around with the ER nurses and they didn’t laugh.

It was quite a shock, being on the other side of the hospital bed, let me tell you!

All the tubes and monitors, the endless taking of blood samples, the taking of vital signs every hour was just about as much fun as I thought it would be.

The nurses at Novant Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte were great, though. They treated me like a queen, well, a sick queen. Jon was great. He stayed with me until my sister Helen arrived, having driven late at night all the way in from Raleigh to Charlotte. After the flurry of getting me into a room, I sneaked a peek at WebMD to find out a little more about my condition.
