Planning & zoning cases escalate with economic upswing

If the numerous projects being attended to by the town's planning department is any indication, the recession is definitely in the rear view mirror.

In this first quarter of 2016 the new Planning Director Randy Feierabend has been overseeing the development of new businesses like 4th Street Market on the corner of Laurel and N. 4th Street, a hotel destined for the pit at Helen's Barn Alley and 2nd Street, the expansion of the Methodist Church and the First Baptist Church Fellowship Hall as well as the reconfiguring of business spaces and residential spaces in the business district.

At a special called Planning and Zoning board meeting and workshop Monday night, together both boards discussed amend-

County Planner takes job in Highlands

After nearly 10 years working for the county, Macon County Planner Matt Mason submitted his letter of resignation on April 1.

"I would like to take this opportunity to say that making this decision has been very difficult because working for Macon County has been a positive experience, one for which I am grateful," said Mason. "I have gained a lot of experience here and I have thoroughly enjoyed working with you and all of my colleagues in the Planning, Permitting, and Development Department."

Mason's last day with the county will be April 17, and according to Macon County Manager Derek Roland, his position might not be replaced.

"Matt Mason was a great leader and a dedicated public servant," said Roland. "He was hardworking and trustworthy,

Kids in the Creek

Students learn hands-on science lessons

Stephanie Smathers and Michelle Lane

For the past few years, Macon County students have participated in "Kids in the Creek."

This year it was hosted at Parker Meadows Rec Park in Franklin. It is a field trip where students study the hydrologic characteristics and wildlife of the Cartoogechaye River in Franklin,

On Monday, April 11, students from Highlands "played" in the creek studying stream chemistry (pH, conductivity, turbidity, temperature, and oxygen level), micro-invertebrates, fish, stream volume, discharge, and velocity.

They got in the water to test samples, catch fish and micro-invertebrates, and measure stream depth and velocity. This is a hands-on lab experience to help students understand concepts in a place other than the classroom with a lecture.

This event is hosted by Mainspring Conservation Trust from Franklin, North Carolina. Various volunteers from Coweeta Hydrologic Research Center, and Western Carolina University. This website address, <https://vimeo.com/161507104>, provides information for what goes on with these activities.

• THE PLATEAU'S POSITION •

•MAYOR ON DUTY•

We all love them, Fozzie, Pooh, Smokey, Yogi, Teddy and Gentle Ben. They are our Hollywood and popular media bears. But we have real, big, wild bears in Highlands, especially this time of year. Some folks expect the town and mayor to manage the bears and control their town visits.

Now there are things that I am optimistic about managing. I have been delighted at the community response to the trash and litter problem. I anticipate a massive turnout on Saturday, April 23rd, for the Highlands Plateau and Gorge Pickup. Call the Chamber at 526-5841 to volunteer.

I also have had great satisfaction of working with the Town Board in completing the major town infrastructure projects in recent years. The park construction has been a wonderful success story. Even our recent concerns about roads are being addressed. NCDOT crews are in town this week working on road problems we all identified. All these initiatives are wonderful.

But, I am not as optimistic in managing the bear problem. They will continue to visit Highlands in large numbers unless people's behavior changes. If all of us do not change, a tragic encounter with these wild creatures will happen, and that will be a disaster for the town and residents, as well as the bears.

The B.E.A.R Task Force (526-9227) has clearly identified steps that can be taken in managing and living with our bear population. For instance they recommend keeping garbage securely in the house until the day of trash pick up. They advise that bird feeders will guarantee a visit from bears.

Here is the problem for the town in a nutshell. It takes only a handful of uncooperative people to overturn any community bear initiative. Just one or two restaurants that carelessly dispose of food will attract bears from all over the area into downtown. People who insist on having bird feeders will attract bears as well as birds.

And finally, there are a handful of folks who view our bears in the same light as the Hollywood Bears. These misguided folks believe their "bear friends" should be fed like any other guests visiting their home. I had one citizen last week even tell me "their" bear was back in the neighborhood. Uh, say what? One can have a dog for a pet, but not a bear! Bears are beautiful, wild animals, but not our personal friends. They can and will do as they please. Their behavior is driven by instinct and a desire for survival, so in an enclosed and densely populated town area, they can be very unpredictable. There lies the problem.

The bears are a concern, but more so

In rain, sleet, or snow ...

Dear Editor,

How fortunate we are in Highlands to have a dedicated and friendly Post Office looking after us - with employees who frequently go out of their way to provide superb service. For example my wife and I recently received an Easter greeting from relatives in Vermont without a full address or zip code; it simply had our name and Highlands, NC. How appreciative we are that the letter found its way into our Post Office Box, and in a timely manner. Isn't it a wonderful blessing to live in Highlands, a community still capturing the best of life as we wish to remember it.

Highlands Marketplace set to open Saturday April 16th

Dear Editor,

We look forward to seeing familiar faces once again, and as always, delight in making new friends, as we prepare for another hopefully successful Marketplace at Kelsey Hutchinson Founders Park. It has been our pleasure to serve the wonderful people of Highlands and we thank you for your support again this past season, without it there would be no Marketplace.

Because of your generosity and faithful attendance, we have been able to make charitable contributions to the Park Foundation, and also to the Highlands Emergency Council in the amount of $350 each. It gives us great pleasure as a non profit organization, to be able to do so. New market hours will be 8 a.m. to noon. We sincerely appreciate the Town Board, for their cooperation and assistance, in making this year's Marketplace possible. Hope to see you all then.

The Highlands Marketplace Committee.

Proctors needed for year-end testing

End of Grade tests for Grades 3-8 begin on Tuesday, May 17th, and second semester High School exams begin Tuesday, May 24th. The State of North Carolina requires that certain settings have proctors in addition to the administrator of the tests. Every year, we solicit volunteers to assist us with our testing schedule as proctors. Volunteers cannot proctor in their child's or a relative child's classroom. However, we have a number of test settings, so we will be able to use you somewhere.

Generally tests begin at 8a and end about 11:45a most days. Some settings require longer sessions. If you are available to proctor regular settings or longer settings, please let us know.

Please check the dates below and contact us at 828-526-2147 or by email (see email addresses below) if you are able to assist us with our testing this year.

Evelyn Mary Byrnes

Evelyn Mary Byrnes, "Evie" age 81 of Atlanta, GA and Highlands, NC passed peacefully on April, 06, 2016 after a valiant battle with pancreatic cancer.

Evie was born in Manhattan NYC and was raised in Garrison, NY. She graduated from Ladycliff College in 1956 as class valedictorian. Evie then started her work career with AT&T in White Plains, NY. She moved quickly from engineering to data processing where she held numerous pioneering positions from programmer to Division Manager.

After AT&T, she joined AMS, advancing to Southern Region Vice President. After her retirement in 2000 Evie volunteered at Atlanta's Northside Hospital.

In 2003, Evie and husband established a home in Highlands, NC. Her first involvement in Highlands was as a hospice volunteer. She served in local board leadership positions for Hospice and the International Friendship Center. Evie served as a founder and Vice President of the Hospice House Foundation of Western North Carolina. She was instrumental in bringing Four Seasons hospice to Highlands and Western NC and served on their board. Prior to her illness, Evie worked tirelessly on a capital campaign to ensure that a hospice house was built to provide compassionate end-of-life care to the residents of Western NC.

She was an active member of Our Lady of the Mountains Catholic Church, Bible Study, The Rotary Club of Highlands, and a volunteer at the Bookworm and the Highlands Cashiers Hospital gift shop.

Evie is survived by her husband of is this obsession by some people to interact with them. Humans are the problem more than the bears. Encounters with them, whether accidental or planned, make great cocktail party talk, but heaven forbid a person is hurt or killed by a bear. That tragedy could trigger calls for drastic actions toward the bears. So please, be careful when Fozzie, Pooh, Smokey, Yogi, Teddy and Gentle Ben visit town. In an instant, they might show their "grizzly" side.

Now a follow up to last week's column. On Friday town staff and I met with Kevin O'Donald of NOVA Energy 33 years Kurt Mast and step-children John (Donna) and David (Ashley) Mast and Jenifer (Michael) Dobbs, sister-in-law Debbie Mast all from Atlanta.

She was grandmother to Connor and Mary Carson Dobbs, Kurt, Will, Erika, Payton, Brady and Delaney Mast.

Known as the "matriarch" older sister of the John and Evelyn Byrnes family, she leaves behind six of her 10 siblings, Gerald (Joan) Byrnes, Lawrence (Kathleen) Byrnes, Walter (Alice) Byrnes, Sr. Ellen Byrnes, Robert (Rosemary) Byrnes, and Paul Byrnes; her sister in law Gail Byrnes, brother in law James Brady as well as countless nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her beloved siblings John, Charles and Garrett Byrnes and Margaret Brady, whom with she is now reunited. In addition, she leaves behind scores of friends in Highlands, Cashiers and Franklin, NC, St Simons, Atlanta and New York.

Evie Byrnes was a beautiful woman who possessed elegance, style and grace. She was a fine listener who made an impact on all who met her. Her abiding faith, warm smile, wise guidance and gentle demeanor are gifts she leaves to all of us. She enjoyed the company of many dear friends and devoted her time to faith, family and service.

A Mass of Christian Burial was held Monday, April 11th, 2016 at 11 a.m. at Our Lady of the Mountains Catholic Church at 315 N. 5th St., Highlands, NC. In lieu of flowers, her family kindly requests that you honor Evie's memory by supporting the Hospice House of Western North Carolina PO Box 815 Franklin, NC 28744 <http://hhfwnc.org>.

Consultants. He represents and advises the town in all dealings with Duke Energy. He agreed with the assessment that electrical rates should remain stable for the near term. On the other hand, he believes the coal ash surcharge issue will return sooner than I had thought. He believes Duke will propose coal ash surcharges by the end of the year. Kevin advises us to wait and see before taking the next course of action. Options are to pay the proposed charges, enter negotiations, or consider litigation in concert with other wholesale suppliers.

of Southwestern Community College, BizWeek 2016 kicks off on Monday April 18 with a "Women in Business Networking Luncheon from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m at the Macon Campus of Southwestern Community College. The lunch will feature guest speaker Sharon Oxendine and will allow participants to network and share resources with fellow women entrepreneurs.

From 5:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. there will be a Strengthening Leadership Ability by Improving Emotional Intelligence workshop. Over the years, it's been discovered that emotional intelligence (EQ) is a crucial skill for both entrepreneurs and employees to be successful. Several studies point to just how important EQ can be to success, even trumping IQ and experience.

On Tuesday, April 19 a Supervision in the Workplace seminar will discuss the myths and best practices of supervision, as well as show you effective management techniques to supervise your employees. Learn time and task-management skills, how to effectively delegate, how to effectively relate to different generations and ways to both praise employees for good performance and correct poor performance. The class is designed for business owners and senior managers.

On Wednesday, April 20 a How to Create Your Message Map class will be held. A message map is a visual display of your idea on one page. It is a powerful tool that every company should have when communicating with audiences — whether customers, media, or employees. All companies need a message suite to consistently share the same information to anyone listening.

BizWeek 2016 will conclude on Thursday April 21 with the annual BizWeek Banquet. This year's guest speaker is John E. Skvarla, Secretary of the North Carolina Department of Commerce. Governor Pat McCrory named John E. Skvarla, III Secretary of the North Carolina Department of Commerce in Dec. 2014, and he assumed those responsibilities on January 5, 2015.

Skvarla comes to Commerce after serving as Governor McCrory's Secretary of the North Carolina Department of Environment and Natural Resources for the two previous years.

Prior to his government service, Mr. Skvarla enjoyed a successful business career, most recently serving as chief executive officer for Restoration Systems, an environmental mitigation firm based in Raleigh that helps improve and restore wetlands and waterways. He also led Wilkinson Hi-Rise, a manufacturer of waste management and automated recycling systems. Mr. Skvarla previously served as chief executive officer for Proactive Therapy, one of the largest physical therapy providers in the Southeastern United States. He also was chief operating officer of The Aviation Group, Inc., a company that emerged as the world's largest all-cargo airline during his tenure.

An attorney, Skvarla in 1978 founded and served as senior partner to the Raleigh-based Wyrick Robbins Yates & Ponton law firm, where he specialized in corporate and tax matters, as well as public and private capital formations.

During the evening the EDC will be naming our annual BizWeek Honorees as well as the winner of the 2016 Macon County Young Entrepreneur of the Year.

"Fifteen nominations were submitted this year, all of them excellent," said Macon County EDC Director Tommy Jenkins. "The CEC [Certified Entrepreneurial Community] Leadership Team had their work cut out for them."

The CEC narrowed down the 15 nominees to five finalist and will also be deciding the 2016 award winner.

2016 Young Entrepreneurs of the Year Nominations are:

Rodney Morris, owner and General Manager of Franklin Health and Fitness Center. Morris purchased the Franklin Health and Fitness Center in 2012 after serving as manager since 2008. The fitness center has operated in Macon County since 1988.

A mutual respect was developed between those folks in the private sector and Matt. Along with the mutual respect they trusted him, knowing he would do whatever he could within the laws of the county and state to make sure their projects were completed. Many times it isn't easy to tell someone why a law or regulation prohibits them from doing something. The role of government, however, especially in Code Enforcement, is to work with individuals and show them ways they can proceed. Matt was the best

Life is an Investment too!

Our community had a strong first quarter so far. Commercial buyers are very active, a bell weather signal of a good year usually. When commercial interests begin to move assets back into real estate, it's a positive signal to the rest of the market. And they are doing just that. Entrepreneurs are scrambling for properties to bring their dreams to fruition. Residential buyers are active during months of tough weather and cold temperatures. A lot of us have been showing in the snow and ice! This is especially significant in a Presidential election year, where the market historically cools.

Significant appreciation has not kicked in for our area. Though sales are strong, we continue to have a significant inventory of residential properties, over 1,060 to date. So it's a buyers' market with properties in all price ranges. The area, including Highlands, Cashiers, Glenville and Scaly, presents a wonderful financial investment for those smart enough to act now. The time to wait is clearly over!

But the area is an investment in other, perhaps more significant, ways. In 2000 I bought my first Highlands cabin which I retained through various other purchases and live full time in today. It was a cabin that begged for updating and renovation. On the first weekend after the work had been completed, I was driving up Friday afternoon with time to grab a Dusty's filet and bottle of wine. As I crossed over from I-85 onto 985, I physically felt a whoosh of tension depart – mentally and physically. I would have said moments before that I was perfectly relaxed, heading up to my bit of Heaven on Earth! I realized in that instant two things: I was living with an unhealthy baseline of tension most waking moments and buying the Highlands cabin was the best decision, the best investment in my health and overall wellbeing I had ever made! That continues to be true to this day. When I became a full time resident I never looked back to my old Atlanta environs.

Our community is unique. Though change has occurred, it has more often than not been consistent with our area's fundamental, unique character. Protecting the environment; safeguarding small town values; caring for a community that is loving, giving, interesting and interested in all around; nurturing the arts; promoting inclusiveness not divisiveness; giving sanctity to all that we love and cherish that makes up this Heaven on Earth.... these are the linchpins of our continued prosperity financially and spiritually. So investing, be it in Highlands, Cashiers, Glenville or Scaly, is not just a smart financial move, it is an investment in a life well worth living. I heartily recommend it!

ments to the Unified Development Ordinance (UDO) to fix inconsistencies regarding verbiage, flow charts and protocol.

The UDO is a compilation of the town's previous zoning ordinance and its subdivision ordinance and was years in the making. The idea was to have one document that includes everything in one place pertaining to appearance, planning, zoning and development. Unfortunately, though streamlined, some verbiage is confusing and in addition the flow charts don't match the verbiage outlining the sequence of events leading up to the issuance of permits or the OK from either the planning board, zoning board or Town Board.

For instance, Planning Directors who handled projects through the years knew that before a case goes to the Zoning Board of Adjustment for a Special Use Permit (SUP) the case went to the Planning Board for recommendations.

However, the UDO says the Zoning Board, at its discretion, may submit to the Planning Board for its recommendation.

"The flow chart shows that the Planning Board is part of the review process but the verbiage clearly states that the Planning Board is only part of the process if the Zoning Board refers a request to them," said Feierabend.

Furthermore, if an applicant is requesting a Conditional Zone – meaning specific conditions are needed in a specific zone for a project to proceed – typically, a SUP isn't required because the Town Board defines the conditions for the zone if it doesn't fit the template for the zone the property lies in. The UDO flow chart shows a different story.

This is why, yet again, the First Baptist Church project was heard by the Planning Board Monday night, with the recommendation the same as it was some months ago – that if possible, the plans include landscaping on the Oak Street side of the current Fellowship Hall.

Wednesday night, the Zoning Board heard the case, yet again, to issue a SUP, even though it's not clear if one is needed since the Conditional Zone requested was voted on by the Town Board in March.

Town Planner Feierabend said he is just dotting all the I's and crossing all the T's.

According to Commissioner Eric Pierson, until the verbiage in the UDO is amended, the boards have to follow it even though in some cases the sequence of events don't match what is typically done.

So, Wednesday night, the Zoning Board also heard a Conditional Zoning request by RLR – the owner of the Park on Main motel – who wants to build a hotel in the pit at 2nd and Helen's Barn Alley.

The B2 zone allows hotels, but there are required setbacks so RLR wants a conditional zone so they can build lot line to lot line.

In the past, the Planning Board would have heard the case first but due to inconsistencies in the UDO, the Zoning Board is hearing it and then it will go to the Planning Board and likely back to the Zoning Board who may or may not incorporate the Planning Board's recommendations and may or may not issue a SUP. Requiring a SUP in a Conditional Zoning case is a throwback to when the town had Conditional Use Zoning, something it doesn't have anymore. It is unclear as to why the SUP step is still part of the process.

Furthermore, by state law a Conditional Zoning request doesn't have to go to the Zoning Board just the Planning Board then to the Town Board for final approval. But the Town Board said the more eyes on a project the better, so in Highlands Conditional Zoning requests go to all three boards.

Traditionally, despite its name, the Zoning Board only deals with zoning in regards to a special use permit or a variance not the changing of zones.

Other planning projects in the works include residential units in the business district and the renovation of Rosenthal's.

Architect Dennis DeWolf has gone to the Planning Board and the Zoning Board and received the SUP necessary to reconfigure the upstairs unit of his office building on Carolina Way into a large one-bedroom apartment. He and his wife Jane plan on selling their home and moving into town.

Likewise, Wick and Marjorie Ashburn want to become townies and are renovating the multi-bedroom apartment above 151 Wright Square into a 1,650 sq. ft. one-bedroom apartment with a deck which will include a screened portion and a garden area extending out from the building below the deck on the alley side.

Feierabend OK'd the expansion of the building – the deck off the back along Helen's Barn Alley – without requiring a SUP – which is typically required when any building is expanded in the commercial district. But the way he read the UDO, a SUP wasn't needed.

As it reads now, "all new construction, additions to existing commercial buildings and remodeling of existing commercial buildings which would result in an increase in the number of business occupants in the buildings require a SUP."

He reasoned that the number of business occupants wasn't increasing so an SUP wasn't needed. At the meeting Monday night, board members agreed to remove the "increased number of business occupants"

Local Audubon Sights Spring Migrants

William McReynolds

Highlands Plateau Audubon Society

Early spring brings one of the great spectacles of nature in the Western Hemisphere: the migratory birds that wintered in Central and South America follow the Mississippi and Atlantic Flyways to return to North America. These migrants range from hummingbirds to hawks and number in the millions. Those spanning the Gulf of Mexico often make landfall in the Gulf States: Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida.

On April 3rd 12 members of the Highlands Plateau Audubon Society (HPAS) traveled to Dauphin Island, Alabama, to spend three days witnessing the spring return of all the perching and shore birds that would be on this landfall island in warm Gulf waters. Their highest hope was to see an avian "fall-out:" the landfall descent of thousands of birds completing a difficult migratory crossing and landing, exhausted and famished, at the first opportunity. Fall-outs can be bucket-list experiences as birders find themselves surrounded by flocks of thousands of Rose-breasted Grosbeaks, Prothonotary Warblers, Ruby-throated Hummingbirds, Eastern Kingbirds or any of scores of other returning species.

This Dauphin Island trip was made possible by John and Jennie Stowers, seasonal Highlanders and HPAS members who made their home on Dauphin Island available for guests as a dormitory and central base for planning and operations. The three days of intensive bird watching were organized and led by Highlands resident Brock Hutchins, a highly experienced birder and HPAS Board member. Brock had the assistance of Romney Bathurst, a recognized international birder.

The three days of birding started early each day with vigorous outings in the morning and also in late afternoon. Venues included the Dauphin Island Audubon Sanctuary, the Shell Mounds and nearby "Goat Trees," an area of wetlands near the small airport and the expansive public beach.

In pursuit of shore birds, some hardy birders undertook a long trek across dunes and along shorelines. Host John Stowers took two groups by boat to Cat Island, a small island heavily populated by White Pelicans, White Ibis, Great, Reddish, Snowy and Cattle Egrets, Tri-colored and Great Blue Herons and Dunlin. Each evening the group carefully updated their list of sighted birds.

What else was seen? Although there were no fall-outs, 115 avian species were seen and countless hundreds of individual birds. Among the most notable were: Blue-winged Teals, some flashing their blue speculums edged in emerald green, the males having a creamy crescent on their faces; Great Egrets in breeding plumage with lively green facial skin; Hermit Thrush; Clapper Rail, Indigo Bunting; Orchard Orioles; many Prothonotary Warblers in blooming Bottlebrush bushes; and various herons, terns, egrets, and more.

For more information on this and other spring birding trips and outings as well as speakers and activities for the spring, summer and fall, go <http://www.highlandsaudubonsociety.org>.

5 Things to Look for When Replacing Your Home's Windows

(StatePoint) Unlike some home improvements, window upgrades are complex, involving many moving parts. If you are in the market for an upgrade, don't rush into a decision until doing some research and evaluating what will work best on your home.

Seek ENERGY STAR Certified high-performance windows, ideal for the weather extremes particular to your region. They should have multiple panes and feature technologies, such as the ComforTech Warm Edge Glazing System, which offers reduced heat loss, warmer glass temperature and reduced interior condensation.

• Warranty: Windows can cost thousands of dollars. Protect your investment by opting for windows that come with a lifetime warranty that includes glass breakage and seal failure. A comprehensive warranty should also be transferrable to the next homeowner, such as those

Home-Hunting Tips in a Seller's Market

(StatePoint) Are you on a serious hunt for a new home? Whether it's your first time as a real estate buyer or you've done this many times before, you may experience a learning curve. After all, the market is forever in-flux, and experts advise that, these days, there are some distinctive challenges involved in becoming a homeowner.

"If you want to snag your dream home in a seller's market, then you'd better be on your game," says Grant Simmons, who drives the consumer marketing strategy for Homes.com, a leading online real estate resources site, with close to three million real estate listings for sale or for rent.

Simmons is offering expert tips to give buyers a leg up in today's competitive marketplace.

- Know what you want: Make a list of the features you desire in your next home, and then separate them into wants and needs. Having your priorities in order will help you better determine whether a house truly suits your needs and where you're willing to compromise.

- Use your imagination: Buying a live-in ready home offers convenience, but you can potentially save thousands of dollars on the front end on an ugly or tired home with great bones or personality. Choose a real estate agent with vision who can help you find the diamond in the rough in your desired location. Remember, there can be large return on small, affordable updates.

- Know the deal-breakers: In a seller's market, you may feel pressured to sign on the dotted line as soon as you find that home you really like. Before committing to a mortgage, do your due diligence. A shoddy roof, bad plumbing, foundation issues, outdated wiring and water damage are costly headaches you may not want to take on in a new home.

- Do smart research: The Internet is your friend. So rather than cast a wide net, conduct smart searches. Sites like Homes.com make real estate searches easier by connecting buyers with timely and accurate listing information, as well as the listing agent. The site also features comprehensive, valuable data on the quality of life in local neighborhoods, including market reports, commute calculators, school scores and cost-of-living analyses. For more information, as well as such free resources as downloadable house-hunting checklists, tips and mortgage calculators, visit www.Homes.com.

- Get serious: Busy real estate agents with a tight schedule prioritize serious prospective buyers. Be first on their list. Before you discover your dream home, get your financial ducks in a row, because when competition is fierce, you can't afford to wait for mortgage approval.

It may be a seller's market, but with smart research, foresight and planning, you can make a wise purchase.

Spring Cleaning: Eliminate Kitchen Counter Clutter

(StatePoint) Birds are chirping, flowers are blooming and the ever-daunting spring cleaning checklist is looming. As you take on tasks this year, make the kitchen a top priority.

In addition to a little extra deep cleaning, it could be time to rethink its organization. With a few inspired solutions, counters can be freed from clutter, allowing more space for food preparation and cooking.

Cast Off and Get Creative

The easiest way to make room in the kitchen is to clean out excess. Go through dishes, pots, pans, appliances and utensils. Consider giving away anything you haven't touched in the past year or simply don't like.

Find creative ways to clear the counter. Use a Lazy Susan to store supplies in hard-to-reach corners. Reimagine a cake stand as a shelf to elevate favorite spices, salt, pepper and olive oil, while leaving an area around the base for additional storage.

Rethink nooks and crannies, such as the top of the fridge, which could house a decorative display of cookbooks, bowls or baking canisters. Tops of kitchen cabinets can hold stainless steel or copper pots and pans, allowing for easy access when needed.

Arrange by Use

When choosing appliances to occupy prime countertop real estate, think about how often they are used. Everyday multi-tasking tools deserve a spot on the counter.

Save space with versatile appliances like the Vitamix S55, a personal blender with four convenient pre-programmed settings that can prepare everything from smoothies and whole-food juices to soups, sauces, vinaigrettes, frozen desserts and more. Plus, because of its compact size, it leaves plenty of room for other kitchen tasks.

You can also arrange serving ware according to how often it reaches the table. Store items such as holiday dishes and platters in the back of cabinets or open shelving. Place everyday items like bowls and salad plates in easy-to-reach cabinets and drawers. Cooking utensils should be housed in a holder close to the stove.

Work With Your Walls

The usual kitchen organization employs drawers, cabinets, shelves and countertops. However, you can also work with your walls to make your kitchen more efficient. Apply hooks to hang pot holders and aprons, ensuring they are a safe distance from the stove. Install a pot rack, which will make room in cabinets for appliances that are not used often – just make sure your walls or ceiling are strong enough to support the extra weight.

To squeeze extra space out of your kitchen, hang magnetic strips for items like knives and kitchen scissors, freeing up drawers and removing the knife block from the counter. Spices can also be hung on the strips with the use of magnetic canisters.

If you simply minimize what's kept on countertops and reimagine everyday items, you can optimize the functionality of your kitchen, making it a more user- and guest-friendly destination.

Make a Style Statement: Top Interior Design Trends on the Horizon

(StatePoint) You likely set goals to eat right and save money. But what goals do you set for your home?

"Now is the perfect time to experiment with décor trends," says Taniya Nayak, interior designer and DIY television personality.

Here are six home décor trends Nayak predicts will soon be filling your Pinterest feed.

Presswork Palette

Generate conversation and set the tone for your space by incorporating text -- think monograms, family names or inspirational quotes.

"Use various fonts and sizes to create different moods," says Nayak. "Letters can be sharp and defined to create a contemporary and stylish aesthetic, or soft and casual for an elegant and timeless feel."

Nature's Patterns

For clean interior spaces with lots of detail, try simple designs inspired by nature, such as honeycombs, florals and leaves.

"Pair these with neutral colors for a soothing atmosphere, or blow them up and paint them in a bright color for a bold statement," says Nayak.

You can also integrate natural patterns through accent pieces, such as light fixtures that have reflective metals to mimic sparkling water, or a textured jute rug.

Digitally Defined

"Geometric shapes and angles have become associated with technology; evoking creativity and innovative design," says Nayak.

Incorporate this trend with geometric floor tiles in different colors. Or use pixelation for a modern, clean look. Pixelated artwork made up of monochromatic cubes can be simplistic and versatile.

Fresh and Fab

Multiple bright colors mixed together elevate the mood in any space. Paint a bold accent wall for an eye-catching statement. Or brightly paint a piece of antique furniture for an unexpected combination of modern and traditional.

"When it comes to painting an accent wall or furniture, one of the most important tools you need is a premium painter's tape, like FrogTape brand painter's tape," advises Nayak.

verticals and horizontals, will give you triple weather stripping that acts as a true barrier against drafts, keeping you comfortable and helping reduce utility bills.

• Beauty: Your windows, like any exterior element on your home, should complement its architecture and add beauty to your house. While certain architectural styles, such as Colonial, once reigned, there's a new trend toward American Craftsman homes. Forward-thinking window manufacturers are responding to the call by offering grid patterns, stain and paint finishes suitable for this growing need.

Interestingly, a new window program at ProVia offers three new series of windows at a range of price points. The series includes ecoLite, Aspect, as well as Endure windows which come with top level innovations in window performance. To learn more, and to find resources on identifying the right windows for your home, visit www.proviaproducts.com.

Make an investment in your home with lasting impact. Seek windows that offer comfort, functionality and beauty for years to come.

Though he permitted the building of the deck about two months ago, when the request came in to add a screened portion to part of the deck, he decided a SUP was needed and so the case was heard by the Planning Board Monday night and was unanimously approved.

The Zoning Board heard the SUP request Wednesday night. The outcome of the Zoning Board meeting wasn't available by press time, but it's presumed the SUP was issued.

The boards agreed to amend the UDO so it's clear that a SUP is required for any change to a commercial building and to nix the number of business occupants.

At a special meeting March 16, the Planning Board OK'd construction on Main Street so Rosenthal's which has moved to 375 Main Street could renovate the façade of the store front.

Textured Terrain

From transformed wood pallets to worn leather or tin ceilings, aged raw materials offer texture and help give a space dimension.

"Incorporate it into an application you wouldn't typically think to use the material," suggests Nayak. "For example, use concrete on a wall instead of the floor."

Home décor items can easily be made to look aged by adding paint and other fin-tion on Main Street is restricted to three days a week beginning April 15, Dan Chapman and Laura Rosenthal of Rosenthal's wanted to get permission to begin the work so it would be completed on time. The normal Planning Board meeting would have been March 28 which would have cut into renovation time.

Other UDO changes included requiring the Planning Board's OK before any fence along the corridors can be constructed with unconventional materials – like pallet wood.

The boards also nixed the requirement for the issuance of an SUP for arts and crafts shows. They said it should be a simple permit process issued from the planning department.

Over the next several months, the Planning and Zoning boards will be going over the UDO to ferret out and correct additional inconsistencies.

Global Style

Create a warm, friendly space with a parade of patterns from different cultures.

"Don't be afraid to mix multiple prints within a space," says Nayak. "Tie these patterns together by carrying a similar color throughout each element in the room."

"When trying a new trend, make sure it accurately represents your style -- and remember you don't have to go all out," adds Nayak. "Any concept can be incorporated as little or as much as you'd like."

SPIRITUALLY SPEAKINGInstruments

By Chaplain Margaret Howell,
Pastor, Holy Family Lutheran Church, Highlands

How many of you took music lessons at some time in your life? When you first tried to play or sing, you may have been dismayed by the sounds you produced---nothing like you imagined it would be. I had the great pleasure to teach music for 18 years in a variety of settings. At one point I team-taught with a band director and we would travel from school to school, with me teaching the stringed instruments, and he teaching the brass, woodwinds and percussion. We taught first and second year students and I could always tell when my team-mate's kids fired up their instruments for the first time---even if they were clear across the campus. Windows would rattle; people stuck their heads out of their classrooms in disbelief, and dogs in the adjoining neighborhoods howled at the unholy din. One time we even got a fan letter from the seismograph folks up at the university.

Well, that last bit might have been a bit of an exaggeration, but if you've ever heard 75 earnest little people with band instruments in their hands blow and beat as hard as they could.....it's something you never forget! You have to give the children credit—it takes a bit of courage to be willing to sound that bad. It takes faith to believe that it CAN get better. It takes trust in one's teacher to show them the best way. And it takes faithfulness—many years of sometimes tedious practice to be able to play an instrument well.

We taught in the inner city for 10 years. Many of the children we instructed there faced obstacles that many of us have never had to deal with. Many came from single parent homes. Many lived at or below the poverty line. Many lived in less-than savory neighborhoods. Many had to live with adults who had their own share of problems and addictions. Most of the children I taught could not afford their own instruments, so they would borrow instruments in my department's inventory—Because funding for the arts is always limited, I sometimes handed out instruments old and battered with years of use, but the children loved them anyway.

Now here is the really cool part. Despite the odds against them, these children, who at the beginning of the school year couldn't even hold a violin or a clarinet properly, would play their hearts out at their final concert in the spring. Granted, it wasn't the New York Philharmonic, but they were making music!!!

Even though I retired from teaching after 18 years, I still hear from some of my former students. For many of them, making music changed their lives.

When I read verse 15 in Acts 9 for today, it jumped out at me; "but the Lord said to him (Ananias), 'Go for he is an instrument whom I have chosen....'"

Now many folks when reading this lesson focus on Saul, about to become Paul as God's instrument. But the real hero here is Ananias. Paul might hear a flash of light and hear God's voice, but Ananias has a vision and a conversation with God! First of all, it takes courage to even answer when God calls. Talk to any seminary student and you will find that many of them resisted and even tried to flee from the task they saw being put before them. For

Ananias, just saying "Here I am. Lord," shows great courage.

Poor Ananias! His dismay and reluctance to carry out God's instructions are understandable. Saul is a persecutor and murderer of the followers of Jesus. He again shows courage as he actually makes excuses to God as to why this might not be a good idea! The Lord shows patience with Ananias, just as He did with Moses, when he tried to wriggle out of going back to Egypt. God tells Ananias why he is to heal Saul, and for what purpose. "So Ananias went and entered the house." (Acts 9:17) Can you imagine walking into a house where Saul, one of the most powerful and dangerous men in the region and some of his soldiers were residing and invoking the name of Jesus? The mere mention of Jesus could get him arrested and killed. Ananias truly trusted God!

It is with courage and trust that Ananias faithfully carries out the Lord's instructions.

We never hear about Ananias again, but this one act of courage, trust and faithfulness by this one seemingly insignificant man, Saul becomes Paul, and becomes perhaps the greatest apostle of the church.

When I was music major in college, a friend of mine a flutist, read a book called "No Where to Hide." It was about playing the piccolo. Now any of you who have heard John Phillip Sousa's march, "Stars and Stripes Forever" knows what I am talking about. The piccolo, the tiniest instrument in the band plays the most important part. That small cylinder of silver can outshine the largest tuba! Without the piccolo, "Stars and Stripes Forever" just wouldn't be complete!

Like the piccolo, there are no insignificant instruments

All of us, no matter how small, play an important part in the symphony of God's plan of salvation for all creation. We can all be instruments in the hands of God.

Without Ananias, Saul would never have become the instrument named Paul and traveled the known world spreading the good news of Jesus Christ.

Throughout the gospels, Peter is a good example of a fallible and imperfect instrument. Nevertheless, Jesus chooses him to be the rock on which the church will be built.

All of us have different gifts and different tasks, just like different musical instruments. Without each of us, some melody of God, the great composer, goes unheard.

How are you, instrument-wise? Are you sitting in an attic, silent and un-played, or are you allowing yourself to be used to sing the greatest story ever told, touched by the Master's Hand?

PAWsitive News from the Highlands-Cashiers Humane Society

The Rotary Club of Highlands was brought up to date on the wonderful work being done at the Humane Society by fellow Rotarian David Stroud. David has been director of the CHHS for the past four years. In that time adoptions have tripled and the facility has acquired their new mobile medical rescue vehicle. The vehicle also transports potential adoptees to various sites such as the Library, Civic Center and Founders Park so potential forever families can be found for the animals. David's main concern is the future of animal welfare. He stressed the importance of neutering the pets and the fact that the Humane Society provides this service for the small fee of $30. Pet therapy is now part of the community service provided. Also, CHHS now has a Canine Coach program which is led by a certified professional dog trainer and features advanced dog behavior training to increase the adoptability of the shelter pups, and also included are free after-adoption obedience training sessions to help the new CHHS Adopting Angels with the newest member of their family.

The new adoption center, which will house 40 additional animals in need, will have its Grand Opening July 23, 2016 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. This much needed facility has been made possible by generous donations of the Highlands-Cashiers community. The hard working staff and many volunteers are very appreciative of all the community support. Remember, think Pawsitive!
