Room tax proceeds point to a healthy economy

Highlands area accounts for more than half of the total room occupancy tax collected each year in Macon County.

With pristine waterfalls, National Forests with miles of outdoor recreational opportunities, and lush views of some of the most beautiful mountains in the United States, it's understandable why thousands of tourists from across the world travel to North Carolina each year for vacation.

As such, tourism remains one of the strongest industries in North Carolina and in Macon County, and while other industries are still recovering from the recession, the tourism industry is booming.

In addition to being a multi-billion dollar industry across the state, locally tourism accounts for thousands of jobs and revenue that benefits the county at large.

In 2014, Macon County generated $148.78 million in direct

Visit to Dry Falls turns deadly

On Sunday, Jan. 10, around 1:30 p.m., rescue crews recovered the body of Sean Kasey, 45, of Villa Rica, GA, from the icy waters at the base of Dry Falls.

At 12:01 p.m., Saturday, Jan. 9, 9-1-1 received a call from a man who said he was with a group of people at Dry Falls and one of his friends had fallen off the falls and “they don’t see him anymore.”

According to Mike Wilkins, USFS District Ranger, Kasey, and the friends he was in town visiting, crossed the chain barricade at the parking lot blocking the falls path.

He said near the falls, Kasey hopped the gate blocking passage under the falls and slipped from a concrete pillar he had climbed upon. He fell into the water near where the falls crash into the river.

Highlands Fire & Rescue, Cullasaja Fire & Rescue, Cowee Fire & Rescue, Cashiers Fire Department and Glenville-Cashiers Rescue Department along with Macon County EMS units and the U.S. Forest Service were immediately dispatched to the area.

On Saturday, about 60 rescue, fire and EMS workers were on scene – 10 from Highlands.

Under water cameras were lowered into the water at the bottom of the falls until they hit bottom 20 feet below but due to the rain which caused muddy conditions nothing could be seen.

Around 12:30 p.m., 9-1-1 reports said bystanders saw Kasey floating down the river from the white water below the falls.

According to Highlands Fire & Rescue Assistant Chief Robbie Forrester they later confirmed that they only saw him float to a certain point near the falls and not down the river.

Regardless, all during the day and until night fall rescue and swiftwater crews scoured the river from the falls to Turtle Pond Road.

“Years ago there was a person who slipped into the river and clung to a rock, so who is to say that couldn’t have happened. You just don’t know so you follow protocol,” said Forrester.

Dry Falls is a popular visitor attraction on US 64 west. Since around Christmas, access to the path leading down to the falls from the parking lot has been chained off due to icy conditions. In addition, in the winter the path that leads under the falls is gated off due to ice that forms from the falls spray.

Franklin businessman and mayor of Highlands want to clean up Macon C.

Twenty-two years ago, Franklin businessman owner Jerry Anselmo searched all over the country for a place to move his family. After researching and visiting some of the best places in the world, Anselmo fell in love with Macon County and decided to start his business here.

“I believe we live in one of the prettiest places in the entire world, but it is such a shame that now we can’t drive on our roadways and enjoy the view because the roads are littered with trash.”

With a business on NC 28 which depends on tourism and the natural resources Macon County is known for, Anselmo

Trashy people

Let me talk about trash and trashy people who defile Highlands and Macon County. Trash and litter is a growing problem. With little green vegetation on highway right of ways this time of year, trash is very visible to residents and to our visitors.

Based on my participation in trash pickups, let me share several personal observations. I have noticed that while on trash patrol my bags fill up with two kinds of garbage.

One category is small, single items like beer and soft drink cans, tobacco packages, fast food containers, styrofoam cups, and plastic containers. This trash comes from workers and tourist who are simply “trashy people.” This lower echelon of humanity think nothing of defiling and desecrating this magnificent landscape of creation.

I can’t fathom how someone can consciously throw trash out of their vehicle, but it is done every day. Sometimes the painful truth needs to be said. In Highlands some people buy single cans of beer from stores at day’s end to drink on their way home. To get around open container laws, these low class people simply toss the cans out the window. Left behind as evidence are the many Bud Light and Miller Light cans on the side of the road.

As I frequently pick up trash, I will encounter one of these beer cans filled with tobacco spit. Yes, I put it in my trash bag. I guess in the perverted mind of the offender, they didn’t want to defile the inside of their vehicle, just the public right of way.

A second category of trash throwers are those ignorant people who think loose trash in the back of a pic up truck will stay there as they go 60 mph down the highway.

Dear Editor,

I am writing in reference to Griffin Bell’s letter to the editor on page 18 of the Dec. 17 edition entitled “What are non-violent Muslims doing?”

I am not a history expert, but I consider myself reasonably well versed. I am told the Civil War ended in 1865. If so, why haven’t I seen or heard stories about what non-secessionist Southerners are doing about the secessionists in their midst, the “Confederates in the Attic,” as coined by one book title?

Are they alert for Ku Klux Klan members?

Are there organizations formed to preach Unionism and racial harmony?

Do they kick secessionist leaders out of their churches and Waffle Houses?

Do the non-secessionist Southerners pledge allegiance to the United States of America and all the benefits they accrue by living in a free and generous country, or instead to the Confederate States of America and their lost ability to own other human beings as property?

Do they proudly wave the Stars and Stripes and celebrate July 4th, or instead wave the Stars and Bars and celebrate the founding of the Confederate States of America?

Do they acknowledge our black, African Hawaiian by way of Indonesia, possibly, not really, but are we really sure he’s not, Muslim President?

Just curious.

The absurdity of the above should be apparent, just as the flawed reasoning of Griffin Bell’s recent letter regarding non-violent Muslims should be as well. Not to the extent Mr. Bell calls for non-violent Muslims to call out, stand up to, and take action against violent extremists, a proposition with which I am in agreement, but for the tired implication that unless we hear otherwise, all Muslims are the same and intend us violent harm. Another tired notion is that pledging allegiance to the flag, or otherwise waving it around, is a measure of Americaness.

Mr. Bell has not seen or heard stories about non-violent Muslims. Maybe it is just hard to see or hear those stories from an ivory tower in Highlands, North Carolina. Or, more likely, it is because you do not see or hear stories about ordinary, law-abiding Americans going about their lives, whether they are Muslim, black, purple, Martian, gay, transgender, or anything in between. You do not see or hear stories about such people promoting non-violence or helping law enforcement, even if they are. Because fear is what sells.

Stoking that fear is not a solution. Painting every person in a particular group with the same brush is not a solution. Xenophobic hysteria is not a solution. That is the kind of mindset that led to the internment of Japanese-Americans and countless other epic mistakes. Let’s focus on the bad guys, who, though they may adhere to a particular creed or ideology, and may be senseless, are individuals all.

Just saying.

An annual whack at Al

Dear Editor,

With turning the page on the calendar, it’s time to take our annual whack at Al Gore. Fortunately, he has been mostly quiet of late, however, he is learning you can run, but you can’t hide.

Ten years ago, as of January 27, he peered into his crystal ball and announced that unless drastic action transpired, our globe would be, in a word, history. So, if you are a believer, better get right with the Almighty, because drastic action has been absent.

So, while Al’s carbon footprint is about the size of Montana, he is likely sitting in the sun, which, in reality determines the heat of the planet, counting his green (isn’t that ironic) and living large.

has taken it upon himself to begin a campaign to clean up Macon County and hopefully bring to the forefront the litter problem in the community.

“Tourism is a big part of my business,” he said. “I have noticed more and more that we have a tremendous litter problem and it is not just a detriment to my business, it’s detrimental to all businesses in Macon County and something needs to be done about it.”

Launching an “Assault on Litter” campaign, Anselmo has been reaching out to businesses in the county that depend on tourism and the area’s natural resources such as local Realtors and Outdoor 76 on Main Street in Franklin to help circulate a petition which will eventually be presented to local government officials.

“Realtors have been really helpful because they depend on the beauty of the area to sell houses,” said Anselmo. “Since I started, a lot of people have told me that they, too, have noticed the litter problem and want to see something done about it, and hopefully this is the first step.”

The petition acknowledges the litter problem and urges county and town leaders throughout Macon County to work to increase awareness through penalties and signage promoting the consequences for littering.

“The litter is bad along NC 28 where my business is, but it is a countywide problem,” he said. “My wife and I took a drive to Highlands recently for lunch and it was despicable to see the trash and beer cans along the banks of the Gorge Road. You can’t enjoy the waterfalls because of all the litter on the road.”

Highlands Mayor Pat Taylor agrees that litter is an increasing problem in the area.

“Trash and litter is a growing problem,” he said. “With little green vegetation on highway rights-of-way this time of year, trash is very visible to residents and to our visitors. Based on my participation in trash pickups, I fill up bags with two kinds of garbage.

dark and resumed around 8 a.m. Sunday, Jan. 10.

“Higher than average water conditions, gusty winds and near freezing temperatures made searching difficult,” said Forrester.

At 10:51 a.m., Sunday, Asheville Fire & Rescue’s Dive Team of 10, plus officers, arrived and began preparing for the search.

They joined 75 other rescuers on scene – 14 from Highlands.

Highlands Fire & Rescue members are open water certified, but according to Forrester this incident required a more specialized group.

“We don’t have rescue divers and these were special circumstances,” he said.

Asheville began its search at the base of the falls because it’s best to start at the last seen area, said Forrester.

An inflatable raft holding five divers was lowered into the water to the base of the falls.

Lead lines held by rescue workers along the cliffs held the raft as steady as possible in the turbulent waters.

Cameras lowered that day revealed clear water.

“On Sunday, the mud had cleared out,” said Forrester.

“The Asheville crew checked the water. We were worried about turbulence, but the clarity is what they were worried about.”

The plan was for divers to go down one at a time. But around 1:30 p.m. Sunday, after being in the water 19 minutes the first diver found Kasey.

“While it ended in tragedy, I appreciate the dedication of everyone involved and their agencies,” said MC Sheriff Robert Holland. “I am honored to work alongside each and every one of them.”

A portion of Highlands Road from near the town limits to Turtle Pond Road was closed on Saturday and remained closed until Kasey was found. Traffic was detoured to Buck Creek Road.

“It is a tragic loss and our condolences go out to the family, said Mike Wilkins, USFS District Ranger. “At the same time it is a sobering reminder that our fences and posted instructions must be followed if visitors are to have a safe experience while visiting their treasured National Forest.”

Forrester summed up the tragedy. “Stay away from where you aren’t supposed to be,” he said.

The last tragedy on the Cullasaja River occurred six years ago when a father drowned saving his son at Bust Your Butt Falls.

Tourist spending; produced $25.26 million in worker income; created 1,220 jobs and reduced the average household local and state tax bill by $716.

While 2014 was a tremendous year for tourism, the industry has continued to grow through 2015 and is higher than ever before in Macon County.

“The steady increase in room occupancy tax collections over the past three years is indicative of a strong and growing economy in Macon County,” said Macon County Manager Derek Roland. “I am confident we will see these numbers continue to increase, especially as Parker Meadows has its first complete tournament season in FY ‘16-’17.”

Room Occupancy tax collection through November for 2015 alone was $402,918.76, a $36,213.96 increase over 2014’s collection during the same period which was $366,704.80. And 2014’s collection was a $41,923.94 countywide increase over 2013’s collection of $324,780.86.

Since the state returns a portion of the room occupancy tax to the county in which it is collected, Macon County and the towns collecting the tax -- Highlands, Franklin, and Nantahala -- are seeing additional revenues and the tourism industry growing.

While Franklin’s and Nantahala’s combined room occupancy tax collections increased in 2015 by $10,879.43 over 2014, the Highlands area accounts for more than half of the total room occupancy tax collected each year in Macon County.

In 2013, the Highlands area saw $224,484.65 in room occupancy tax, $262,964.74 in 2014, and through November of 2015 saw $288,299.27.

Highlands Mayor Patrick Taylor believes the increased revenue speaks to the overall economic improvements in Highlands.

With additional room occupancy taxes being collected, the Highlands Chamber of Commerce, the Macon County Tourism Development Commission and the Franklin Tourism Development Authority will each have additional revenues to invest in promoting Macon County as a destination.

“The tax numbers underscore the economic impact Highlands has for the area when it comes to tourism,” said Mayor Taylor. “The Highlands Chamber of Commerce directs much of that room tax rebate to promote tourism here in the area. These increases in occupancy tax are reflective of a stronger economy. People are traveling more, taking vacations and spending more. Also, the Highlands area has had increases and upgrades in hotel room capacity. I see these trends continuing,” he said.

...ger allowed work release to clean up the roads.

“Maybe it’s time for people serving community service for things such as D.U.Is to serve their time by helping to keep our roads clean,” he said.

Anselmo said another solution would be to begin a litter awareness campaign in local schools to educate students on littering, its impact and maybe start a program for students to help keep roads clean.

Stricter enforcement of litter violations is also something Anselmo thinks could help the problem.

“Our Sheriff does a tremendous job in the county and I would like to work with him to talk about ways to give out tickets or raise awareness and work with his department to see what we can do,” said Anselmo.

Mayor Taylor is taking his own approach to getting community input on litter in Highlands.

The first Mayor’s Coffee for the year is scheduled for Friday, January 22, at 11 a.m. at the Hudson Library. The topic will be how to address the problem of trash in the community. “There is an emerging coalition of citizens in Macon County who want to seek solutions to this chronic problem. Please join us. Bring your ideas and a commitment to action,” said Taylor. “Together we can fight this blight on our community and land.”

Real Estate Resolutions ... Happy New Year!

By Wanda Klodosky
Landmark Realty Group

Let's begin 2016 on solid Real Estate footing. Below are some excellent ideas for achievable Real Estate Resolutions:

Home Already on the Market?
• Review your correspondence and conversations with your Realtor. Have you followed through with their suggestions? If not, research and begin that process.
• Have a meeting with your Realtor either in person, on the phone or even via email. Discuss the 2016 plan for marketing and selling your home. Discuss the past plans and the successes and failures of those plans.
• The Highlands-Cashiers Plateau market is constantly evolving. Ask your Realtor to give you a snapshot of what sold (and didn’t sale) in 2015, especially in and around the price range of your property. Be prepared to adjust your pricing if necessary.

Looking for a Home in the Highlands – Cashiers Area?
• Don’t fall into the internet trap. You can do a lot of the preliminary research on line when you begin the housing search, but you will need a local Realtor who is working with you and has a good idea of your requirements. The internet ‘picture’ of the homes for sale only go so far. To learn what is really on and around the property, you will need to either visit each site (which is difficult if you have limited time in the area) or have a local Realtor who either knows or can preview the properties for you.
• Have realistic expectations. Yes, this area is still an overall Buyer’s market and yes, we do still have a large inventory of homes for sale. This doesn’t mean that every Seller is ready to ‘give away’ the property that you want. This also doesn't mean that you will be able to find everything you are looking for at a discounted price. Make a list of the things you need, the things you want and the things you’d like to have in order of importance.
• Have your financial situation in order. If you will need a loan, get pre-approved. If you are purchasing with cash, have a proof of funds available. Even in a Buyer's market, homes that generate multiple offers become available. An offer that is presented with a strong statement of the Buyer’s ability to follow-through with the purchase gets highest consideration.

The best Real Estate Resolution for 2016 is to find and closely work with a local Realtor to have your smoothest and most profitable real estate experience.
