State senators working to expand access to overdose drug

Sen. Jim Davis co-sponsors it; Highlands Police Chief Bill Harrell and MC Commissioner Beale weigh in

By Kirk Ross

State senators took the first step in approving legislation authorizing the state health director to issue a statewide prescription allowing broader access to the overdose drug naloxone – a drug that blocks the effects of opioids. The bill, co-sponsored by Sen. Jim Davis, R-Macon, was approved last week by the Senate Health Care Committee.

State Health Director Dr. Randall Williams called the move essential in preventing the rapidly rising number of overdose deaths in the state.

“The issue we’re looking at today is the public health crisis of

At the April Planning Board meeting, Tom Hill, the face behind the wheel of the Mountain Findings truck and president, said the purpose of the 40,131 sq. ft. storage building to be built on the vacant lot next to the Mountain Finding building at 432 Spruce Street is to consolidate stock which is currently stored in six storage units around town – not counting the basement of the previous funeral home next door.

“I don’t think the number of people visiting Mountain Findings will increase, we are just trying to get rid of all the storage units and have everything in one place,” he said.

Feds threaten to flush funds over HB2

Macon County Schools Superintendent and MC Commissioners respond

By Frank Taylor

Musicians, film productions, sporting events and major employers have said they will stop doing business in North Carolina over House Bill HB2, a measure that state lawmakers passed in special session this year that restricts transgender use of bathrooms and blocks local governments from enacting their own anti-discrimination laws.

Now the federal government is threatening to boycott the state as well.

The U.S. Department of Justice issued letters to NC Gov. Patrick McCrory and state university leaders last week warning that HB2 violates the U.S. Civil Rights Act. The letters threaten to withhold federal funding for education starting this week if

Our next town Budget Workshop is on Thursday, May 12, beginning at 3 pm at the Conference Center. The Board and staff continue to review funding priorities for the forthcoming budget.

One major topic of discussion will be the status and future funding of Altitude Broadband, the town's newly created department. Let me give a brief update.

This past January the Town Board appropriated funds to create a community-based broadband system. One new technician was hired and a WIFI broadband system was deployed throughout the town. Since the first of the year we have been connecting customers to the system, but there has been a backlog of installations. On average it takes about seven weeks for a customer to be connected to the system.

At the last budget workshop, Commissioner Amy Patterson raised the concern that these new positions would remain in next year’s budget.

I believe Commissioner's Patterson's proposal was an innovative way to quickly improve the service. Once the new technicians are on board, the town should be able to complete the WIFI mesh of the system very soon.

The next step in developing Altitude Broadband will be to deploy the fiber optic network that will provide total broadband access to residents and businesses. Altitude will begin this phase with the development of a fiber node in the downtown area. Once this area is operational, the plan will be to buildout additional nodes as fast as possible into our neighborhoods.

After the fiber network is in place within the city limits, consideration will be given to expanding the network, but this expansion could be years away. Meanwhile folks living beyond the town limits could continue to use the existing WIFI system. The network will continue to operate both wireless and fiber optic components.

So, as we plan the budget for the coming year, the appropriation of funds to move to the next phase will be under review. The expansion of the broadband network will be accomplished without a tax increase. As I have said in the past, world-class broadband is essential for the future of the town. The time to act is now. We cannot wait for external market forces to address this pressing need down the road. Small, isolated communities across the nation are taking similar initiatives.

For several years I’ve mostly avoided public political comment. I found out, the hard way, that some of my family, friends and acquaintances who disagreed did so with such vehemence that they stopped engaging with me.

Since relationships are ALWAYS more important to me than winning a point, or “being right” about something, I’ve kept my feelings and opinions to myself. Besides, no individual really ever changes anyone else’s mind, either through reasoned and unemotional discussion or via pithy memes and bumper stickers.

That said, I feel a need to express an opinion with regard to the upcoming national election. I can’t and won’t speak for anyone else, but for me this political season is a horror.

Politics in America has become like a sport that has more in common with football than with matters of public policy or, literally, life and death. The focus has been reduced to what some call “Russia gate” or, more often, developing talking points to counteract the opposition. The focus is more on who can make the better sound bite to drive views up on social media than on substantive policy differences. That said, the two candidates neither major political party stands for much, nor are they really going to be competing for my vote. I’m registered NPA because I believe that the parties are funding political campaigns without a shred of regard for what is in the best interest and general welfare of the American people.

I haven’t watched a single minute of a single televised debate as of yet. To me, they’re meaningless until we have the two candidates who are really going to be competing for my vote. I’m registered NPA because I believe that neither major political party stands for much, other than winning. Governing? What’s that?

When the election itself comes into focus, and this year the conventions might matter in terms of deciding what our choices will be, I promise to be engaged and fully present because from the top of the ballot on down this stuff is important.

Our democratic republic is still relatively young. In many ways we’re an adolescent nation trying to make sense of the mysteries involving a life filled with both stretches of paved open highway and bumpy dirt roads filled with potholes.

Then again, nobody promised it would be easy. The best any of us can do is to get informed, get involved, and, for God’s sake, think before you vote!
Dear Editor,

The article “Delinquent accounts, Mirror Lake, rifles and more,” in the April 28 edition of Highlands Newspaper is grossly in error regarding the part on "rifles." Specifically the statement: "These rifles are not fully automatic like most assailants use," quoted from Highlands Police Chief Bill Harrell.

Fully automatic weapons are at best very rare in civilian hands, as they are illegal by federal gun laws and without special and stringent exceptions are not available through any means for even the worst of criminals to obtain, legally or illegally.

Fully automatic weapons are only manufactured for military and authorized civilian law enforcement, and are strictly controlled by the federal government. Chief Harrell's statement perpetuates the use of this term by the avid anti-gun element to purposely or un-purposely misinform the public on guns in the U.S.

Yes, the term (automatic) has been used for over 100 years to describe weapons that are in fact semi-automatic and require the pulling of the trigger to fire each round just as the AR-15 semi-automatic rifles the police are obtaining.

This is a very important point to law abiding gun enthusiast, and all residents of Highlands. The issue evokes emotional images and erroneous conclusions by unknowledgeable members of the public. People in Highlands and everywhere should not be concerned with "fully" automatic weapons in the U.S., and they should know the facts. Terrorists do get them from military associates in the Third world. However, I am not aware of any terrorist or mass killing, e.g., Boston, Connecticut, or anywhere else in the U.S. since Al Capone and before Federal Laws were enacted, that used a fully automatic weapon to further their criminal or terrorist activities.

While I am only a six-month carpet-bagger in NC, I go out of my way to obtain and read a copy of your excellent weekly publication to keep up with Highlands and surrounds goings on. Keep up the good work.

HCP presents 'The Game's Afoot' beginning Thurs., May 19 at PAC

At last it’s May and the game’s afoot! at Highlands Performing Arts Center. Opening Thursday, May 19, the Highlands Cashiers Players (HCP) present Ken Ludwig’s comedy mystery “The Game’s Afoot,” with a plot based on the real life person, William Gillette, the actor who played the role of Sherlock Holmes for 30 years on the stages of America and Britain. Director Michael Lanzilotta has assembled a cast of eight experienced and talented actors from local and nearby areas—Highlands, Sky Valley, Franklin, Scaly Mountain, and Sapphire. Stuart Armor will be portraying the main character William Gillette.

As the final play of the Players’ 2015-2016 season, “The Game’s Afoot” provides a great climax to the year with lots of laughs, clever dialogue, and a puzzling murder mystery for audiences to figure out who done it. The play runs Thursday, May 19 through Sunday, May 22, and Thursday, May 26 through Sunday May 29, evenings at 7:30 p.m., Sunday matinees at 2:30.

The HCP box office opens Thursday and Friday, May 12 and 13, for season subscribers to make their reservations, and opens for general tickets beginning Saturday, May 14. our time,” Williams told senators at the hearing.
He said one in four autopsies conducted in the state are for overdoses. The new law would allow him to issue a prescription under a 2013 state law that allowed family members or others in a position to react to an overdose to anonymously obtain and administer the drug.
The change, Williams said, would greatly expand access to the drug and allow people to have it on hand in the event of an overdose if that person has good faith belief that a family member, friend or other person may be at risk of an overdose.
“This will save lives,” he said.
Alongside this legislation, the House and Senate have introduced study bills addressing drug abuse. H987 and S788 (Study Opioid Abuse/Incapacity to Proceed) which would direct the Governor’s Mental Health Task Force to continue exploring the reasons for the rising epidemic of heroin and prescription opioid abuse.

NCACC Past-President and Macon County Commissioner Ronnie Beale served on the Governor’s Mental Health Task Force and has focused attention on substance abuse and behavioral health issues by initiating the NCACC’s Mental Health Engagement Task Force. S734 will go to the Senate Judiciary I committee next and, if approved, would go to the Senate floor.

Senator Davis, who described the addiction problem as a “modern-day plague,” said he is working on additional bills. He said another measure would improve efforts to deal with prescription drug abuse.
“Most of these heroin abusers, about 80 percent, get started with prescription drugs,” he said. “So, we’re going to try and go further upstream and attack the problem there as well. The impact it’s having on our society is so incredible we need to do everything we can. Few people are not impacted by this.”

In fact, according to the Center for Disease Control and Prevention, North Carolina’s mountainous counties, which includes Macon County, have the state’s highest overdose rate. In Appalachia the overdose mortality rate is 18 per 100,000 residents.

Highlands Police Chief Bill Harrell said he fully supports the bill.

“Our department received training and has been carrying Naloxone since the spring of 2015. Like most tools we carry, I hope we should never have to use it, but the inevitable is that people are not going to stop using narcotics and if we can administer one more recourse to save lives, we should,” he said.

Real Estate Bargains Involve Knowledge

Your key to finding real estate bargains involves having knowledge of the market. Bargains are rare, truly few and far between, but every buyer would love to have one. The reality is that what seems to be a low price, may not truly be a bargain. What may appear to be a bargain could potentially be a money pit, or is priced low because it is not in a sellable location.

Although the Highlands area has had fewer foreclosures than most markets, some of the best bargains out there have foreclosure written all over them. One of the myths I have experienced in making offers on foreclosed properties is that it is rare for lenders to accept offers way below their asking prices. In most cases the lenders have already reduced their list prices far below market value when they are placed on the market. Also, the majority of lenders require proof of funds from the buyer when making the offer and usually allow only 10 days for all inspections.

The biggest problem with foreclosures is that they are in the lender’s hands and more often than not the lender is not looking after the property, at all. In cold winter climates this could mean frozen pipes and water damage. In general foreclosure properties are sold “as is” and the lender will be not putting money toward fixing anything. Air quality problems that may arise from mold, radon, gas leaks, will not be mitigated. Lead paint will not be replaced nor will asbestos be removed.

Another aspect to finding a bargain in the Highlands market is to have an experienced Realtor who will keep watching properties which have been on the market for a long period of time where sellers are continually reducing their list price. Many sellers who are no longer able to enjoy their second homes may be simply ready to sell and often at bargain prices.

When looking for the “best buy,” it is important to understand that contracts contingent upon the sale of the buyer’s property, lengthy closing dates and owner financing with low down payments usually do not work. There are so many factors involved with buying a home and a bargain can often be achieved simply by offering cash or a quick closing.

If you have your heart set on a foreclosed or bargain property, contact an experienced Realtor® to get a sales history on the house. Doing your homework...

could result in a better outcome. Allow your Realtor® to do the legwork in determining if the property has the potential that meets your financial requirements and the best location for your needs and/or potential resale value.

An experienced Realtor is your greatest resource for finding the best real estate bargain available at any given time. A Realtor® has access to the latest listings as well as to a database of contacts to locate the best bang for your buck in the market. A Realtor® can also help you decipher if a seeming bargain is truly a bargain.

Butterfly Ambassadors

6th grade group shot.jpg: 6th grade teacher Joy Archer and her students in the Butterfly Garden at Highlands School. Photo by Ursula Long

Last week Mrs. Archer’s 6th grade students at Highlands School potted butterfly host plants for the upcoming Mountain Garden Club Plant Sale on May 28.

“By doing this, students help create habitat for Monarchs and other butterflies,” said Dr. Becky Schilling of the Mountain Garden Club. “It’s a fun learning activity we’ve done for five years.”

Students potted swamp milkweed (Asclepias incarnata), a highly desirable plant for Monarchs.

In the caterpillar stage, Monarchs eat only milkweed leaves, and swamp milkweed is a great addition to any sunny garden with moist soil. It usually grows 3-4’ tall, has fragrant pink or white flowers that adult butterflies love for nectar, and is not invasive.

This year students also potted parsley and rue (Ruta graveolens), favorite lunch items for Swallowtail butterfly caterpillars.

Find these and other great plants for butterfly gardens at the 34th annual Mountain Garden Club Plant Sale, May 28, 9 a.m. to noon, at the baseball park on Highway 64 E, Corner of N 4th & Hickory. See you there!

Have you ever watched a bird make graceful circles high in the sky and thought,
"if only I could do that?" Chances are you were admiring the effortless flight of true masters of the sky, the group of agile and powerful avian hunters known as raptors.
These magnificent birds will be featured at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 31 at The Village Green Commons in Cashiers as part of the Village Nature Series (VNS). “Raptor” is not a scientific classification but a catchall term used to refer to eagles, hawks, falcons, kites and owls. Michael Skinner, of the Balsam Mountain Trust, will bring his feathered ambassadors from Balsam Mountain Trust that can no longer effectively hunt and therefore cannot live in the wild. Their range of injuries are numerous but usually are the result of accidents.

The Trust rehabilitates them and once they are acclimated to their surroundings and handlers they are utilized for educational programs like the Village Nature Series.
Skinner observes, “I have a distinct honor and privilege to be able to work with these magnificent birds and provide opportunities for the public to get up close and personal with species most people only see from a distance.”

The Village Nature Series is sponsored by the Highlands-Cashiers Land Trust and
The Village Green as part of their shared mission to protect and preserve the land and natural resources. The monthly presentations provide educational opportunities to learn about distinctive features of the area as well as offer cultural enrichment for residents and visitors to the Highlands-Cashiers community.

The programs are the last Tuesday of each month from May through September at The Village Green Commons on Frank Allen Road near the Cashiers post office.

Throughout her career as a physician, Dr. Farrow has had the honor of helping her patients improve their health and return them back to the active lives they love and missed. Hearing their stories each day always reminded Dr. Farrow of her love for the Highlands and Cashiers communities and her desire to return to the area to do what she loves most as a doctor in a place that holds a special place in her heart.

Returning as a permanent member of the community, Dr. Farrow has joined Mission Community Primary Care – Highlands. WELCOME BACK the governor doesn’t promise not to attempt to uphold HB2.

That threat, which potentially endangers tens of millions in federal dollars for schools, drew a mixed reaction from politicians and activists across the state, including in Western North Carolina.

GOP noncommittal defiance

Rep. Chris Whitmire, R-Transylvania, who was among HB2’s co-sponsors, supports a defiant stance taken by House Speaker Tim Moore, R-Cleveland.

“The letters serve to give notice that President Obama intends to sue the State of North Carolina unless we yield to his views,” Moore said in a statement. “They are not court decrees or automatic declarations of law and the issues raised in his letters are far from being decided. President Obama’s interpretation of Title VII and Title IX would radically change all universally accepted protections of privacy and safety that are based on the anatomical differences between the sexes.”

Governor McCrory’s remarks were similarly defiant.

“The Obama administration has not only staked out its position for North Carolina, but for all states, universities and most employers in the U.S.,” the governor said in a statement. “The right and expectation of privacy in one of the most private areas in our personal lives is now in jeopardy.”

Over the weekend, Governor McCrory and NC’s secretary of public safety sued the federal government for its "radical reinterpretation" of federal civil rights law in federal district court in North Carolina.

The law, which went into effect in March, requires transgender people to use public bathrooms corresponding to the sex on their birth certificate.

Macon County Commission Chair Kevin Corbin said he is not aware of a single problem that has arisen by folks being confused or discriminated against for choosing a certain restroom or bathroom facility.

"The action taken by the Charlotte City Council [from which this stems] appears unnecessary to me. When they passed that action, the legislature simply reacted by clarifying that you should choose the restroom of your birth sex. I don’t think that is unreasonable," he said. "Also, the NC action only applies to public buildings, schools, rest areas; it does not impact private business."

NC Attorney General Roy Cooper, who is challenging McCrory’s bid for re-election in November, said he would not defend the state in this matter.

Cooper issued a statement calling for the governor and legislators to back down.

“Enough is enough,” Cooper said. “It’s time for the Governor to put our schools and economy first and work to repeal this devastating law.”

However, U.S. Representative Mark Meadows said the federal government is being a bully because other states have similar laws.

Corbin said the action from the Department of Justice is purely political.

Monday morning numerous national companies said they would not do business in North Carolina if House Bill HB2 isn’t repealed and economic experts say this will have a trickle down effect which will damage Mom and Pop businesses across the state.

Corbin disagrees.

"In the end, I do not believe this will impact federal funding at all. In addition, NC has the 9th largest economy in the US and has had the fastest growing economy in the USA. Those on the far left have tried to make this a sexual discrimination issue and it does not appear that way to me. I have not heard anyone involved in this indicate that they were for discrimination of any kind," he said.

Meanwhile, Democrats had strong ideas, very different from Republican leaders, about what the state's next steps ought to be.

Democrats react

Sen. Terry Van Duyn, D-Buncombe, said undoing what she sees as harm from HB2 will take action from North Carolina leaders and not just federal intervention.

“Although I am grateful for this first step by the Department of Justice, it will not fix the most serious problems created by HB2,” Van Duyn said.

“North Carolina’s reputation as a wonderful place to live and work will not be restored until we repeal the entire law. The Legislature created this mess, and they need to fix it by saying, once and for all, that North Carolina does not discriminate. We are open for business to all. We can disagree and still treat each other with respect.”

Van Duyn also noted that the federal move shouldn’t have come as a surprise to state lawmakers. “The question of the potential loss of federal education funding came up during the special session debate and was dismissed,” she said.

Rep. John Ager, D-Buncombe, said the state could face a costly legal morass if it tries to fight the federal government.

“I voted against HB2 and believe that a full repeal is necessary to end the furor over this ill-conceived bill,” Ager said.

“If the Department of Justice determination provides an avenue for repeal, then it will prove to have been a timely and effective remedy. If on the other hand, it creates an expensive legal battle, North Carolina will pay dearly in dollars and loss of jobs for months and years to come.”

Also concerned about the economic impact of continued boycotts is Rep. Brian Turner, D-Buncombe.

“HB2 has already cost Buncombe County 500 jobs and millions of dollars in tourism revenue,” said Turner. “Now the leadership in Raleigh’s refusal to repeal this discriminatory bill will cost North Carolina public schools hundreds of millions of dollars. North Carolina can’t afford this.”

Macon County Schools Superintendent Dr. Chris Baldwin said the Macon County School system is cautiously monitoring the news coming from Raleigh and Washington D.C.

“We are confident that this issue will eventually be worked out and our students will receive the full federal allotment for their education,” he said.

During the current school year, state public schools received $861 million. In 2014-2015, the University of North Carolina system got $1.4 billion.

The Rev. Jasmine Beach-Ferrara, an Asheville Democrat serving on the Buncombe County Board of Commissioners and as executive director of the Campaign for Southern Equality, also applauded the federal move.

“This letter from the Department of Justice confirms what was clear from the start, HB2 is discriminatory and unconstitutional. We continue to call for the immediate repeal of HB2. We also call for the North Carolina General Assembly to pass full legal protections for the LGBT North Carolinians,” he said.

HB2 was passed in an acrimonious special session, which saw Democrats walk out of the Senate rather than participate in the final vote.

Eleven Democrats in the House joined with most Republicans in supporting the bill, supposedly due to concerns that a Charlotte ordinance could have put young girls at risk from sexual predators who would falsely claim to be transgender in order to hang around women’s restrooms.

Since its passage, some of those lawmakers have expressed regret, especially as provisions in HB2 that stripped away other anti-discrimination protections under state law have come to light.

In addition, though one thing has little to do with the other, the transgender bill also allows the state to have control over minimum wage rates, meaning local governments can’t set their own.

The portion of the bill doesn’t change

I'd like to begin by making a confession: pastors and ministers in the institutional church have, historically and generally, done an inadequate job in regards to explaining Pentecost and the Holy Spirit. It's a sensitive subject that many do not understand and are at least a little bit afraid of speaking about in a definitive sense. I admit to avoiding discussions on the Spirit from time to time so as to steer clear of reactionary angst. No more. The world is crumbling around us. It's time for Christians to rise up and activate the Spirit within us. Like an untapped and limitless artesian well, there is an infinite supply of power and grace within the life of all who believe.

On the night before Jesus gave his life for us, he prayed for all those who would eventually receive him as Lord and Savior, for people who desire real, eternal life. In part the Son of God prayed, “I do not pray for these (the disciples) alone, but also for those who will believe in Me through their word; that all may be one, as You, Father, are in Me and I in You; that they also may be one in Us, that the world may believe that You sent Me. And the glory which You gave Me I have given them, that they may be made perfect in one, and that the world may see that You sent Me. (John 17:20-23, NKJV)

Prior to that portion of his prayer but on the same evening, Jesus told his followers that he was preparing to leave them and go to the Father. However, God would not leave them (us) as helpless orphans. His heavenly Father would send his Holy Spirit, who was with them in Jesus, to then be in them by the Spirit of Truth. (cf. John 14) Almighty God fulfilled that promise on Pentecost as he poured out his Spirit, baptizing and anointing his disciples, outside in and inside out. The limitless supply of power and grace, of God's power and grace, was now in Christian believers. Salvation, healing and peace was now a possibility.

The cry of Jesus’ heart, to which he gave voice on the night before his death, was made available to every believer. God's presence in the world had, if you will, morphed from Emmanuel, God with us, to the Holy Spirit, God in us. We can now be one—Christ in us and we in

Power to fulfill
Jesus’ heart-cry

For almost a quarter of a century Mountain Findings has been the go-to thrift store in the area – a place Hill says has been green long before green was in vogue.

“It is so rewarding to know that we can accept these items, and recycle them back to a loving home,” said Hill.

The store is operated by volunteers so all the money raised through sales goes to scores of nonprofits in the area. Throughout its lifetime Mountain Findings has given back hundreds of thousands of dollars to the community.

The half-acre vacant lot is zoned B4 which is light commercial and requires one parking space per 1,000 sq. ft.

It’s not in the 100-year flood plain but there is a 25-ft. required buffer from the creek that runs along the property to the east and plans include augmenting the current buffer.

The structure will be a Morton Building whose exterior will be Hardi-Plank painted a light shade of gray to match the adjacent building and the metal roof will match the color of the roof on the Mountain Findings building as close as possible.

Customers will enter through double doors facing Spruce Street and furniture will be loaded and unloaded from the back loading dock.

The driveway will circle the building in a U shape entering and exiting on Spruce.

Though not an enthusiastic unanimous vote, the project did get the OK – the board had little to say about the project.

Hill will seek a special use permit from the Zoning Board at its meeting tonight, Wednesday, May 11 at 5:30 in the Community Building next to the ballfield.

him and all in the Father. This, my friends, is the core Truth of Pentecost. God in us to effect his plan of salvation, healing and peace to all who would receive him.

That’s the reality of Pentecost. It’s also the potential of Pentecost. The visceral and spiritual unity for which Jesus prayed is within the souls of all Christian believers. God’s infinite power is available 24/7. Yet too often, he remains just that, within and available. The power and gifts of the Holy Spirit remain unactuated, like that proverbial untapped artesian well. Consequently, the world crumbles around us as the Church of Jesus Christ, the Body of believers, hold the Spirit within. May that not be so any longer!

Our Savior’s prayer was not only for the unity of believers in his day but more for “…those who will believe in me through their word.” The Spirit has the power to engender belief and he is within us. Through our word (the Word) and his presence in us, unity along with salvation, healing and peace in the world is a true possibility. Church, let us unleash that potential for the sake of his kingdom.

• Shop with a Cop – Interact students assisted with helping deserving children shop for themselves and family members with funds ($100 for each child) donated to the program.
• Angel Tree – children and families identified by the Emergency Council were “adopted” and helped by the Interact Club at Christmas with the purchase of clothing and toys.
• Distribution of Rotary Club’s “Four Way Test Coloring Books” to all K-3rd graders.
• Purchase and distribution of snacks for Highlands Faculty Meetings.
• Along with Mrs. Cashion’s Teen Living class and Ms.

Garrett’s Art Class the Interact Club purchased stuffing and helped deliver over 100 handmade items to residents of the Eckerd Family Living Center, including neck pillows, wheelchair “carryalls,” catheter bag covers, quilted pillows and 15 paintings of birds.
• Stop Hunger Now – Interact members went to Sylva to help pack 10,151 meals in 1 hour and 50 minutes – this amazing work filled one pallet.
• Community Dinner – students helped serve dinner to the community at the April Community Dinner, hosted by the Rotary Club of Highlands.
• International Project: In a moving presentation at this meeting, Carter Potts, Blakely Moore and Chance Gilbert gave a check for $400 to Rotarian Kenton David to benefit the South Asia Council for Community and Children in Crisis. In acknowledging this gift, Kenton said “at 1 am this morning I received a call from the South Asia Council telling me more funds were needed. This is an incredible and timely gift.”

As each group of Interact students presented their projects, the positive effect of volunteering was noticeable. Many service opportunities were Rotary projects and presenters thanked Rotarians for “allowing us to be a part of your work.” Interact student volunteer time donated in 2015-2016 school year is over 300 hours.

the minimum wage; it doesn’t directly affect what people will make. What it does do is take away another option.

While no local municipalities in North Carolina have set different wages than the state, some wanted to make changes and now they can’t.

Macon County Commissioner and NCACC past president Ronnie Beale said regardless of the stance on HB2 – for or against – the real story is the loss of local control.

“…This shows how easily any local ordinance passed by locally elected officials can be totally decimated,” he said. “As far the economic impact HB2 could possibly have locally, I think we will have to wait and see but the federal funding is withheld from education.”

Justice Department ruling could have a major impact if HB2 failed in court.

We’ll have to see what comes out of it, said Belle.

When asked if they would support HB2, many reported wanting to make changes but were they would be opposed. They expected to see the new legislation overturned in court
