Families invited to unite in memory of children lost

What started as one family’s request to remember and honor their son has blossomed into a way for all Highlands families who have suffered the loss of a child to memorialize them in a warm and communal way.

Chaz and Billie Cannon’s son Michael died in late October 2015 and they wanted to remember him in a special way. A musician and songwriter, Michael was known as a wanderer and a troubadour, and could often be found around a campfire singing and strumming his guitar.

According to his parents, he loved the Pine Street park and even performed on stage there at least once.

The idea was to remember him with a plaque somewhere in the park which has become a gathering place in Highlands. The trouble is only five plaques are allowed in the park and since their purpose is to raise funds, the cost is high.

Over the past several years, there has been an increase in unsporting behavior across the country in various arenas.

In North Carolina the North Carolina High School Athletic Association (NCHSAA) has seen an upswing in the number of ejections from games but that is not the case at Highlands School.

“Highlands High School was awarded the NCHSAA banner for being ejection-free in athletics for the 2015-‘16 school year. I am really proud of our coaches and athletes,” said Highlands School Head Coach Brett Lamb.

The NCHSAA believes North Carolina can and must do better.

If it’s not trash, it’s roads and traffic

Two important issues during the fall season are roads and traffic.

At the last Town Board meeting I reported about DOT preliminary plans to improve NC 106, the Dillard Road, from the state line to Main Street Highlands. I am on the Transportation Advisory Committee for the Southwestern Rural Planning Commission. This proposed project is now on a priority list for Western Carolina.

The Town Board was unwilling to endorse the project without further information. What I could tell them last month was that DOT wanted to make improvements to the road such as straightening out some sharp curves and replacing the narrow bridge just beyond Scaly. Like the Gorge Road, there would be pull-offs where possible.

Since the meeting, I have discussed the project in more detail with the DOT Division 14 Project Development Engineer. He informed me that the project is now just in the conceptual stage. It could be at least as decade away from construction. Before construction there will be extensive discussions and feedback from those living on the road. In Highlands the town government would be involved in the road design.

The DOT engineer told me the over-arching concept would be to bring NC 106 up to current design standards for a highway of its kind. The current 9-foot lanes would be widened to 12 feet, but it would remain a two-lane road. Also, where possible there would be 4-foot emergency side lanes. These lanes would also function as a lane for cyclists. In Highlands the plan would involve the addition of curbs, gutters and sidewalks.

So, that is all the information I have about the project. It’s a long way from fruition and plans are fluid. There is a good possibility I won’t be a part of the ribbon cutting ceremony way down this road.

Another item concerns that traffic monitoring sign the Highlands Police Department deploys daily. It is also a recording device. In a given period of time it will record the number of vehicles traveling on a road. Also, when it starts flashing with the slow down message, that indicates the vehicle is speeding. The number of speeding incidences is also recorded. Chief Harrell told me that if the data reveals a high incidence of speeding, the police increase patrols on that section of road.

The chief also stated that normally there is a very low percentage of speeders recorded by the device, although folks frequently report high rates on a particular road. The percentage is frequently around 3% to 5%. It is problematic to determine whether a vehicle is speeding without electronic devices. Police officers trained to make such determinations even have a challenge doing so. Variables such as size of the vehicle, tire size, rpm and engine noise all make folks think a vehicle is speeding when actually it is not.

We can all drive within the posted speed limit. If the traffic sign flashes to slow down, please take the message to heart.

Dear Editor,

As a part of trying to digest the information bombardment during this almost interminable election cycle I have come to the non-partisan conclusion that our country has lost its ethical rudder. Our affinity to defend our exceptionalism is arrogant, alienating and inhibits learning. There is a whole lot the USA does well, but there is a lot we could do better now and did better in earlier times. Some countries that borrowed our early commitment to the dignity and worth of all have taken our community based, compassionate attitudes, as articulated in the preamble to our constitution and used them to improve their own education, healthcare, work ethic, and justice systems. We have, in many aspects, lost our way in these realms.

We bomb and defame, are quick to fight and to blame, over incarcerate, build walls and fences and increase regulations rather than show compassion, or lead with curiosity about differences, whether in race, ethnicity, religion or political convictions or values. Our sense of community is fractured. We forget we are all in this together. That awareness surfaces briefly in tragedies or natural disasters, then recedes to hatreds as usual. We lose awareness that compassion heals and community matters.

So many in our country seem motivated by fear and desperation. Assuming good will of the part of others is NOT the common way. Kindness, remembering basic human decency, compassion for others has taken a back seat to fear, endless competition and punitive-ness. Is this what is meant by a declining civilization?

Many seem to be driven by a sense of never having enough or being enough...but of what? Money, power and things cannot fill this emptiness. It is fueled by deprivation of genuine connection with others built on compassion and the ability to appreciate what is good. We can and must do better. I sometimes feel that we will, as a culture, have to descend into chaos to reemerge as a moral, compassionate community. It is what happened in Germany and many other cultures throughout history.

I would like to thank all the people of Highlands who have been so gracious to me since the passing of my wife, Joanna. Donations in her name for the construction of the residential facility at the foster home compound have exceeded $30,000, allowing the mission to complete phase one and two over the next year and complete the project in two years rather than the three years in the original plan. Thank you all once again.

But where there is a will there is a way. As the story goes, developers Samuel Truman Kelsey and Clinton Carter Hutchinson, drew lines from Chicago to Savannah and from New Orleans to New York City and decided where they converged would be a great place to develop a town. So Highlands was born and the K-H Founders Park on Pine Street is named after them.

Each founder of Highlands will have a monument erected to them in the park – Kelsey’s monument is a replica of the existing fireplace that was in his home which was behind the Falls on Main complex.

What better place to epitomize a communal gathering reminiscent of a campfire than around the Kelsey monument?

About $45,000 is needed to erect the fireplace and the infrastructure associated with it – electricity, a buried propane tank, the stone plaza in front of it and the welcoming arm-type rock walls/benches that embrace it.

For Highlands families who donate in memory of a child lost too soon, the name of their child will be included on a plaque in the fireplace area.

To make a tax deductible donation to remember the child, make checks payable to Friends of the Park and mail it to PO Box 1703, Highlands, NC, 28741. Please include the name of the child you would like to honor so it can be included on the plaque. Space is limited.

weather observers monitor the climate to see if the generally warmer-than-normal conditions of 2016 continue through the fall, or if temperatures start dropping and follow the patterns of a “normal” year, Collins said.

The Asheville office of the National Centers for Environmental Information has reported that July was the 15th consecutive record warmest month globally. State climate officials say the monthly average temperatures recorded at the Asheville Regional Airport since mid-February have ranged from slightly above normal to almost seven degrees above normal.

“If our warmer-than-normal weather continues into fall, the colors will be later, more subdued and spottier,” Collins said.

Along with the heat, the summer months brought generally drier than normal conditions to many parts of the mountains, and dry weather in the spring and summer can produce bright fall colors, but only if the fall weather follows its historical and normal trend of increasingly cooler days and colder nights, Collins said. Some long-range forecasters are predicting a cold snap in mid-October, and that would be good for producing colorful leaves, but “we can’t predict October weather with 100 percent confidence,” she said.

Each fall, the region’s fall colors emerge as chlorophyll in leaves breaks down, revealing yellow, orange and red pigments that were hidden by the green. Color appears first in the forest understory with the reds of shrubs and vines such as sumac, Virginia creeper and poison ivy. The yellow, orange and red of early-turning trees such as walnut, tulip poplar and maple show up next, and the season ends with the darker reds and browns of oaks, she said.

With elevations in Western North Carolina ranging from around 2,000 feet in the valley towns to more than 6,000 feet on the ridgetops, weather conditions in the region also vary greatly. That factor, combined with the rich diversity of tree species, can lead to a long and diverse color display, Collins said. The best bet for foliage fans is to plan on peak color the weekend of Oct. 15-16 for the highest elevations over 4,000 feet; the weekend of Oct. 22-23 for the middle elevations of 2,500 to 4,000 feet; and the remainder of October for lower elevations, she said.

The family of Buck Trott would like to express our sincere gratitude to the Highlands community for the thoughtfulness, concern and kindness expressed during our time of loss and bereavement. We thank the staff and congregation of the Episcopal Church of the Incarnation for their support in our time of need. The employees of the Town of Highlands paid a moving tribute to the former mayor that the family will always remember. We are grateful for the graveside ceremony that was made possible by the Highlands Fire, Police and Public Works Departments, the American Legion, the Franklin National Guard, the Boy Scouts, and the US Air Force. Buck would have been very pleased and proud.

is difficult to learn the lessons expected through high school athletics in an environment that is lacking good behavior, sportsmanship and respect for all, say spokespersons.

“Highlands’ student-athletes should be commended for the manner in which they represent their school and the Macon County School system,” said Macon County School Superintendent Dr. Chris Baldwin. “I am thankful that the faculty, staff, and administration of Highlands School strongly promote good sportsmanship with our student-athletes.”

According to its website, the NCHSAA expects student-athletes, coaches and game officials to conduct themselves in a respectful and courteous manner. Disrespectful behavior in the playing area or from the sidelines can result in an ejection. As has been the case in the past, profanity directed at players or officials is a penalty and an ejection as well.

The NCHSAA has empowered officials to step up their enforcement surrounding bad behavior and language. They have also requested the help of coaches in getting the message about behavioral expectations to their assistant coaches, players and fans.

Coaches and administrators should exemplify role model excellence in their behavior on the sidelines. This year, in every NCHSAA sanctioned sport, there will be a strong emphasis on positive models of good behavior and professional conduct between coaches and game officials.

In many sports, there will be new procedures for questioning an official’s call and stiffer penalties if those procedures are not followed.

The NCHSAA places this responsibility in the hands of each constituent members (players, coaches and officials) in an effort to curb the completely preventable actions that cause many of the ejections seen over the last several years.

“We know that if all players, coaches, officials and fans work together towards a common goal of exhibiting good sportsmanship, we can truly make an impact on the lives of student-athletes,” say spokespersons.
Way back when I was in my mid-fifties and in tip-top shape, a guy whose dad owned a local Highlands’ grocery store stopped me in the store one morning and asked if I would like to see a different view of Whiteside Mountain. Knowing I was in the rappelling business, he knew I wouldn’t refuse the offer.

I want to keep him anonymous so I’ll just call him Buddy. We agreed on a date and met in the Whiteside Mountain parking lot. The weather was perfect. Buddy brought a friend who thought the hike might also be fun.

Buddy took us up the steep side path of Whiteside and when we got to a prominent landmark I won’t reveal, we turned right and headed up and into the woods. Easy stuff so far, I thought.

Soon the almost nonexistent path headed downward and as we proceeded, it became steeper and steeper. I was so concentrating on my footage I never looked up. As we proceeded, the trees and vegetation became sparser. When the path leveled off, Buddy stopped and told us to look up. I was stunned. We were directly below a part of the mountain known as “The Nose.”

While the three of us took in the magnificent view, I’m sizing up the location for a rappel sight.

Then Buddy said, “From now on it gets a little hairy. We can turn back at any time.” No one responded.

We proceeded downward, then upward, then downward as the hike got more challenging. Then Buddy, said, “From now on I suggest you not look down. Keep your face against the granite and inch along slowly.”

I couldn’t believe my eyes. Straight ahead was a level granite pathway about three-feet-wide with sheer vertical granite off the opposite side. Piece of cake, I thought. “Thank God I’m not afraid of height,” I said to my two friends.

Buddy went first and I went second. After about ten feet, Buddy’s friend decided to crawl. As we inched along, careful not to look down, the granite path became more narrow. At this point, Buddy’s friend said, “I want to turn around but can’t ‘cause I’m afraid I’ll fall.”

I looked down and wished I hadn’t. It was at least another five hundred feet down to the next ledge which appeared to be about six feet wide. I couldn’t see beyond that. As I inched along the path, I asked Buddy, “Are we almost to the end?”

Buddy laughed, “Nope, not yet.”

Finally, the path widened to a point where sparse vegetation and small trees began to appear along the path. We walked about another five hundred feet and the path came to an abrupt end.

Buddy announced, “This is it, guys, end of the line. What da ya think? By the way, guys, I was out here alone once, sitting right here eating my lunch when a rappeller appeared from the top. He was stunned to see me out here wearing no rappelling or climbing equipment.”

Buddy’s friend said, “I don’t think I can return. I may have to spend the rest of my life out here.”

At the time the guy said that, I don’t think he was kidding. But we did all make it back safely and what an experience it was.

PS – The following week, I applied for and received my sixth federal permit. It was to rappel the “nose” at Whiteside Mountain. It was our scariest rappel and only for advanced students. Now I get chills when I think I spent hours out on the very edge of the cliff helping students rappel off that ledge.

This brilliant Neil Simon comedy about two old vaudevillians who for 43 years were a tremendous comedy team onstage, but who irritated and eventually hated each other offstage is a gem of comedic acting and timing will be at the PAC October 13 to October 23, Thursdays through Sunday.

Based in fact on a pair of real vaudevillians who barely spoke to each other offstage, Simon has found another bickering Odd Couple with which to mine great humor. Willy Clark (Jim Gordon) is an irascible old coot that can’t give up showbiz and has his poor harassed niece (Deb Likens) flogging up commercials etc. which he invariably messes up. He has not spoken to the other half of the team Al Lewis (David Spivey) in years, still angry at perceived onstage slights and the fact that Lewis retired. The niece gets the idea to reunite them to do one of their classic routines on TV and that’s when the insults begin to fly

One of HC’s outstanding actors, Lance Trudel, makes his directing debut with this very funny show. Assisting him is another long-time resident and actor at HCP, Chris Hess.

Tristan und Isolde: Nina Stemme as Isolde

The Highlands Performing Arts Center will be screening the Live Via Satellite Series again this year: The MET Opera live from New York City, the Bolshoi Ballet live from Moscow and the National Theatre of London, all shown on our large theater screen. Saturday, October 8th, the first of the series will be the MET Opera's production of Tristan und Isolde by Wagner, beginning at 12 NOON. Tristan und Isolde is a story of unrequited love and intrigue. Saturday, October 15, 1pm the National Theatre of London will present an encore performance of their production of A View From the Bridge. Tickets are available online: highlandspac.org or by calling 828.526.9047. Highlands Performing Arts 507 Chestnut Street, Highlands also have two grandchildren. Davis has a Bachelor’s Degree in Biology from Southern Adventist University and went on to continue his education at Loma Linda University School of Dentistry. He also attended graduate school at Loma Linda. Davis operates an orthodontics practice in Franklin.

According to Davis, he is running for office to “continue the progress in making our state fiscally sound including fully funding the pension and retiree healthcare benefit liabilities, enhance the business environment for job expansion and creation, adequately fund the legitimate functions of state government especially education, and continue to represent the interest of local governments, especially in my position as co-chair of state and local government.”

Davis served as a commissioner in Macon County from 1996 until 2000 and then again from 2004 until 2010 at which point he was elected to the North Carolina Senate.

Hipps has spent her campaign focusing on public education and believes that her stance is what separates her from Davis.

“My opponent will tell you that average teacher pay in NC is over $50,000 a year and he will tell you that we’ve increased education spending in North Carolina,” said Hipps. “Well, how many teachers do you know that earn that kind of money? The teachers I know? They’re reaching into their own pockets and spending their hard earned money on colored pencils and construction paper to make sure their students have the supplies they need to succeed. When you cut a half billion dollars from our local classrooms and give that money to the wealthiest citizens and special interests, there’s no other phrase for it than a reverse Robin Hood! Public education in North Carolina is suffering and no amount of political spin can change that.”

Finishing up his third term in office, Davis stands on his record in Raleigh and wants to continue the work he and his fellow legislators have started in terms of public education.

“The Republican led legislature has increased education funding every year it has been in leadership,” Davis said. “State K-12 funding has increased by about 23% since 2011. Our efforts to appropriately fund education will continue to be a priority as our economy improves and our revenues increase. Beginning teachers have advanced in starting salary from $30,800 to $33,000...

to $35,000 per year. The average teacher salary will be greater than $50,000 once the current policy is fully implemented. Benefits of about $14,000 per year are in addition to increased salaries. Having high speed internet in every school is a high priority. Education spending is 56% of the state budget, 37% of that is K-12.”

While Davis touts the work he has been a part of while in office, he believes more work can be accomplished.

“Improving current and adopting new policies that show progress and appropriately funding them,” Davis said of how public education can be improved.

With North Carolina’s economy being touted as one of the fastest growing economies in the country, both candidates took time to discuss their views for economic development in the state.

Hipps believes that the key to economic development lies in the state’s infrastructure. With a commitment to infrastructure, Hipps believes the state should develop long term plans to address the needs of mountain communities instead of fixing problems when they arise. Broadband and internet connectivity in WNC is also a priority for Hipps and believes it something that needs to be pursued fervently.

Davis views the role of economic development as being something that should be left to the private sector, as the state can only create public jobs, which he believes should only exist to efficiently satisfy the legitimate functions of government. To aid the private sector in job growth, Davis noted that the state should establish tax and regulatory policies that foster job growth and sustainability. He also believes that the state is responsible for ensuring that the workforce is trained and equipped sufficiently in order to adequately fill the available jobs.

Hipps spoke to Macon County voters last month during a voters forum held by the League of Women Voters. LWV President Susan Ervin read a letter from Senator Jim Davis during the beginning of the forum that stated Davis would not be attending the LWV because his campaign made the decision to only participate in debates at SCC and WCU due to Davis’ busy schedule.

Davis has since changed his mind and appeared at a forum for The Mountaineer. Davis and Hipps are scheduled to debate at SCC on Tuesday, October 11 at 7 p.m. in the Burrell Building Conference Center.

Scholarship Golf Tournament

Space is rapidly filling up for the 2016 Town of Highlands Scholarship Golf Tournament! 2016 is looking like it could be the most successful year ever!

On October 20, Wildcat Cliff Country Club will once again host the annual Scholarship Golf Classic. The Town of Highlands Scholarship fund began in 1975 thanks to a local businessman named Jack Taylor. His gift of $5,000 was the initial funding for this scholarship program enabled by special legislation in the NC General Assembly making Highlands unique in the state with the ability to administer a fund for the benefit of Highlands School graduates who are committed to higher education through college, university or vocational training.

In succeeding years, Jack Brockway along with other prominent concerned citizens became increasingly involved in the development and promotion of the Town of Highlands Scholarship Endowment Fund which exceeds $780,000.

Over the years, various clubs including Highlands Falls, Cullasaja, and now Wildcat Cliffs, have provided their golf course and clubhouse facilities for the annual one-day tournament. This generosity has been essential in building and sustaining the endowment fund whose goal is providing financial support to our young highland school graduates.

The event kicks off at 7:30 a.m. with breakfast and practice on the range tee and putting green. A 9 a.m. shotgun start is followed by cocktails, lunch and awards ceremony. The cost for the event is $150 per player. For sponsorship information or to sign up, please contact event co-chairs, Brian Stiehler (787-2778) or Rebecca Shuler (526-2118).

Anyone purchasing a home today is a well advised to have a Professional Home Inspection. However, it is past time for Buyers and Sellers to use more perspective regarding the results of these Home Inspection Reports. The following questions and information may be of interest to you.

“Home Inspectors are for the Buyers”: This is true, especially when the buyer orders and pays for the inspection. Most Buyers understand that it is to their advantage to share the Report with the Sellers so they can also understand the issues. “For Sellers?”: It is always helpful for a Seller to have an Inspection prior to putting their home on the market. This allows the Seller to repair serious issues if need be, instead of losing a sale later…or at least they can understand pricing their home in a price range comparable to their home’s condition.

After the Inspection, “How Much Shall We Reduce our Offer?”: Generally the offering price of a home is based on market value in its current condition, not in the condition of a new home. Please remember…you are not buying a new home. A professional Realtor can give you a good idea of the comparable sales regarding the location, age and condition of a home.

“Home Inspectors are too Nitpicky and Will Identify Every Little Problem in a Home”: Yes…but no. Home Inspectors in NC are required to be licensed and are expected to notice as much a possible. However, Buyers need to understand that the Inspector is only responsible for what is visible and in most cases they cannot predict the future.

“Is the Seller Responsible for Repairs?”: Just because a reputable Home Inspector brings an Inspection showing every possible issue they can see in a home does not mean that the Seller is responsible for the repair. Many pre-owned homes have issues, but again the Buyer needs to understand they are not buying a new home. On the other hand…if the seller is happy with their Contract price, a Seller may want to consider poynying up some bucks for repairs.

“Are Home Inspectors using Scare Tactics”?: Why on God’s green earth would a Home Inspector want to use scare tactics such as suggesting to a buyer: hire a…structural engineer, an HVAC specialist, a septic system specialist, a roofer, an electrician, a well specialist, a roofer, an electrician, an environmental specialist?? As we have seen life move into such a litigious society, there is only one good reason in my opinion…they must cover themselves as they cannot be the professional regarding all things. And most of them have never been licensed contractors. Although the Buyer has every right to have any and all inspections during their Due Diligence Period, I have found that the majority of things on most Inspection Reports can be handled by a handyman. This however, is always decided by the Buyer and/or Seller.

Between a Buyer and Seller, the Inspection is usually where the rubber hits the road. However, it seems to make more sense to look at the whole picture. A likely sale price in our area is between $300,000 up to $2,000,000. I’ve seen Buyers and Sellers walk away from a sale for $600.00 worth of repairs. What logic lies behind this? Many of us are emotional people, each afraid of being taken advantage of, but it’s time for us to be free of this fear. We can be free by being willing to look at the issues collectively from the perspective of each individual involved. Just think…we can all be kinder

Cancer treatments and breakthroughs presented at Highlands Rotary meeting
At their September 13 meeting, Rotarians received an informative overview presentation about cancer by Radiation Oncologist, Charles Thomas, M.D. of Macon Cancer Center, a 21st Century Oncology facility.

Dr. Thomas discussed the various forms of cancer diseases. He described the different treatment methods including surgery, chemotherapy, hormonal and systemic therapies, radiation therapy and palliative care. While one in three people will experience some form of cancer, and it is the second leading cause of death, Dr. Thomas reported that he is seeing more cases that are less severe.

The evolution of technology and treatment methodologies have significantly improved over the past 10 years. Dr. Thomas strongly encourages everyone to obtain their screenings as he experiences first-hand how early detection positively affects successful cancer treatment outcomes.

People dying on the Plateau

By Dr. Gary Hewins
Community Bible Church

Our local funeral home in Highlands closed up recently but it seems to have had no effect on whether or not people in our community are dying. People are still dying on the plateau. As you know, death and taxes are fairly reliable. Ministers occasionally marry and they occasionally bury (same black suit, just different occasions). Officiating a funeral can be an incredible privilege.

I recently officiated a memorial service for a fascinating man and friend. Bill Pugsley died some weeks ago. Perhaps you knew him? I, and others watched Bill slowly die over a period of months. Actually, I saw Bill’s body slowly deteriorate but I never did see Bill’s attitude diminish much. Bill’s faith never did die. His faith only seemed to grow stronger as his body only grew weaker.

Bill had a pretty colorful past like many of us have had. I guess one could say Bill’s fancy motorcycle had lower mileage than its owner. It is safe to say that for many years, Bill Pugsley had little to no time and little to no desire for church, Christianity and Christ.

Colorful past aside, what mattered to Bill the most was the end, besides his wonderful wife Susan, was the spiritual condition of those he was leaving behind. We would meet at Sweet Treats for lunch and talk about some of the things we had in common concerning the party side of life. We would also talk about his travels and his experiences traversing the country. We talked about R.V.’s, knife making, jewelry, and what matters most in life.

It was in the fourth quarter of the game of life that Bill began to get a hold of the incredible love of God through Christ His Son. Bill “got saved” as they say. In the end, Bill wanted others to experience what he had experienced…not oxygen tanks and breathing aids, not medication and a fear of dying in the night…but the reality of knowing that Christ was good enough to make Bill good enough by faith to receive eternal life.

Some people talk a big game about Jesus and faith and how He and it are not for them. I used to be the same way. Big talkers should listen sometimes. There is a power in God that transforms. There is a compassion in Christ that bends our hearts toward his forgiveness. There is a patience in Christ that waits for us to willingly surrender to receive victory in Him. There is a demonstration of patience in Christ that waits for us to willingly surrender to receive victory in Him. There is a demonstration of love in Christ that speaks for itself. People who don’t believe in the resurrection power of Christ are often searching for significance, mission, purpose, peace, acceptance, value and a huge bear hug. The irony of such a quest is that all of those very real wants and needs are found in a personal relationship with Christ. Eternal life is a reality. The question is where your eternal life will be spent. If you have a spiritual chip on your shoulder, just know that you are loved, wanted, and on the mind and heart of God. He only wants you to be mindful of Him to start a faith-based friendship. Talk to Him so that you can talk with Him. Ask Him to reveal Himself to you. Ask Him to place something of Himself in your heart. Ask Christ to pursue you as you pursue Him.

There is only one thing that changes when you see Christ for who He really is—that one thing is everything. Spirituality, AA meetings, hard work, money, status and even philanthropy are no replacement for Christ. Reach out to Him. Bill Pugsley knows the reality of a life full of the love of God through Jesus Christ and because of that his memorial service was a celebration. Will your funeral warrant any celebration?

Here is a verse of scripture written by the Apostle Paul, a former jerk and royal pain in the neck who hated Christ. Perhaps this verse of scripture can be your heart-felt prayer today: I want to know Christ—and the power of his resurrection and the fellowship of sharing in his sufferings, becoming like him in his death, and so, somehow, attaining to the resurrection from the dead. (Philippians 3:10-11).

Death is approaching all of us. Let’s be sure to keep it real.

Community celebrates with new owner of Drake’s Diamond Gallery

A combined Chambers After Hours and ribbon cutting was held at Jannie Bean’s Drake’s Gallery on Thursday, September 22. A great crowd of about 65 people attended and it was a beautiful evening full of fellowship and great food. A special 3-day event is planted for Thurs.-Sat., Oct. 13-15 where all are invited to see the VERGANO Italian 18 KT fine gold jewelry collection. Many pieces are set with colored gemstones. There will be cocktails and bistro food. On Thursday, Oct. 13 it’s a Men’s Only affair from 4:30-7:30 p.m.

Novice Dahlia grower wins big

Novice grower Clyde Howell poses with one of his ribbon winners from The American Dahlia Society’s 50th National Show, which was held in Asheville on September 17-18. Clyde and his mother, Beverly Howell, grew these dahlias in her garden in Highlands. Clyde and Beverly won seven blue ribbons and four red ribbons.
Cullasaja Women’s Outreach tops the million-dollar mark – donates an additional $177,850 for the benefit of community!

Local women’s organization has donated over $1,030,000 to Highlands-Cashiers Not-for-Profits since 2006.

Cullasaja Women’s Outreach (CWO) announced the results of its 2016 fundraising efforts. This independent collective of women raised a record $177,850, which is being invested solely to advance the projects, works and efforts of Highlands and Cashiers area not-for-profit organizations. Since its founding in 2006, this grassroots collective of women has invested over $1,030,000 in the Highlands and Cashiers community—a considerable accomplishment for a group of about 80 women from the Cullasaja Club community.

Funds raised this year are being awarded to 22 organizations in the Highlands-Cashiers area through a sophisticated grants process led by CWO Grant Co-Chairs Joy Abney and Lindy Colson. Individual awards range from $2500 to $10,000. This year’s grant recipients include: Blue Ridge School’s music program (through its educational foundation); Blue Ridge Free Dental Clinic; Boys and Girls Club of the Plateau; Cashiers-Highlands Humane Society; the Center for Life Enrichment; Community Care Clinic of Highlands-Cashiers; Counseling & Psychotherapy Center of Highlands; Fishes & Loaves Food Pantry; Friends of Founders Park; The Gathering Table, Inc.; Highlands-Cashiers Chamber Music; Highlands Community Child Development Center; Highlands Emergency Council; Highlands Historical Society; Highlands-Cashiers Land Trust; Highlands Playhouse; Hudson Library; International Friendship Center Food Pantry; Literacy Council of Highlands, Inc.; Martin-Lipscomb Performing Arts Center; The Peggy Crosby Service Center; and the Summit Charter School.

“Over the past ten years, Cullasaja Women’s Outreach has taken the time to listen and respond to the voices of need around us, providing food, warmth and healthcare,” noted Executive Director Fraser McCrorey. “Our dollars have brought the joy of music, the empowerment of literacy, and the appreciation of nature and our local history to many.” “Moreover,” added Lindy Colson, “We have invested in organizations that make a difference in children’s lives today—encouraging their studies and expanding their dreams, so that they can see what is possible tomorrow.” Her co-chair partner Joy Abney expanded, “We strive to make each grant dollar count. Not to build our own legacy, but instead to have a meaningful and positive impact on the lives of those around us.”

“There are many needs here on the plateau. Many we simply cannot see,” noted Executive Director Margaret Eichman. “Importantly, there are many, many charitable, civic and cultural organizations that work—not for profit, but to strengthen the community. Cullasaja Women’s Outreach strives to connect with these wonderful people, to use our resources locally, to make a better world, by focusing first, within our own backyard.”

Partnering with the Community Foundation of Western North Carolina, CWO established a CFWNC-CWO Charities fund, which enables the group to raise funds each summer and award them through a judicious grants process to make a meaningful difference in the local community. To date, Cullasaja Women’s Outreach has assisted thirty-four local not-for-profit and charitable organizations in their efforts to enhance the community.

• Cullasaja Women’s Outreach is an independent collective of women, who believe in reaching out to each other and to local organizations through philanthropy, volunteerism and friendship to build a stronger community.

Have You Fixed Your Dirt Crawl Space?

There are three things that destroy materials in general and wood in particular: water, heat and ultra violet radiation. Of those, water is by far the most destructive.

Protect your home from:
• Mold
• Bugs
• Structural Damage
• Smells & Odors
• Loss of Storage Space
• Radon Gas
• Rising Energy Costs

The earth in your dirt crawl space is the major source of moisture in your home! This moisture is carried up into your house from the natural upward air flow created from rising heat.
