Superior Court upholds original ruling in Shearl's favor

After years of back and forth court cases and thousands of taxpayer dollars spent, the NC Superior Court upheld a 2014 Court of Appeals ruling in favor of John Shearl in Shearl vs. Town of Highlands.

So it would seem that the commercial uses on Shearl's split-zoned property on NC 28 south stand – unless the town appeals.

Mayor Pat Taylor said the town hasn't reached an agreement with Shearl's lawyer so a decision hasn't been made.

"We are negotiating with him," said Taylor. "It could be that we don't appeal, but we may exercise that option depending on negotiations."

In 2014, the Court of Appeals vacated the previous Superior Court ruling in favor of the town and remanded the case back to the Zoning Board where both parties were charged with providing evidence in their favor.

First Day of 2016-'17 School Year at Highlands School

A little before 8 a.m. the halls were filled with enthusiastic students returning to school, the cafeteria served up free breakfast for all and teachers greeted everyone with smiles. Members of the Highlands Police Department were on hand to greet students as they disembarked from buses. In Highlands "Community Policing" starts early.

Recent court ruling could effect Highlands' Altitude Broadband

Town is considering options

Several weeks ago, a federal appeals court ruled that the U.S. Federal Communications Commission (FCC) could not block two states from setting limits on municipal broadband expansion.

The decision has been seen as a win for private-sector providers of broadband internet and a setback for the FCC and communities like Highlands that want to supply broadband.

Cities in Tennessee and North Carolina had sought to expand municipal broadband networks beyond current bound-

The logistics of a growing population

I still hold a community coffee hour on the last Friday of every month at the Hudson Library. Karen Hawk and the library staff are so wonderful in organizing the event. I appreciate all the community organizations, like Big Brothers Big Sisters this past month that provide the coffee and refreshments.

This past Friday Mayor Bob Scott of Franklin joined us to discuss our common concerns and issues. Bob is on the board of the North Carolina League of Municipalities representing Western North Carolina. He recently returned from a league meeting in Raleigh where discussions centered around the upcoming legislative session and future state trends.

Bob and I both know that Raleigh is not like Las Vegas. What happens in Raleigh, it affects us all, both counties and cities in North Carolina. Bob's remarks to our coffee group centered around the fact North Carolina is changing and the League is looking down the road into the future of towns and cities.

A major trend in North Carolina, especially in the western region, will be migration from other areas of the country. People will be relocating to Western Carolina, not just to retire, but to work and live. I see this trend already taking place in Highlands, and I believe it will increase as we develop a broadband network. Generation X, those mid-career professionals, have the growing option to live and work anywhere in the world. A small community like Highlands is a very attractive location for these folks. And, just behind this generation will be the Millennials.

Also, tourism will continue to expand and local municipalities will have to work to provide access and services. Dr. Steve Morse of Western Carolina University is an expert who tracks the hospitality industry in the region. He contends tourism is, and will continue to be, a main driver of economic development in the region. Preliminary figures indicate tourism in the state is up about 10% over last year. In our region final figures after the leaf season may even be stronger.

At our coffee, Mayor Scott stated Franklin is even seeing a strong increase in international tourism. Franklin is an insertion point to the Appalachian Trail. Bob notes that with the filming of the recent movie about walking the trail, foreign tourist, especially from Asia, are coming to walk the trail in record numbers.

Mayor Scott informed us the League of Municipalities is studying legislation that would allow towns to have the option of adding one cent to the room occupancy tax charged to our overnight visitors. Currently, this "head and bed" tax is earmarked for the promotion of tourism. The problem is that with increased tourism comes the need for cities to provide more facilities such as parking, bathrooms and sidewalks. The one cent option would be used by municipalities for providing the critical infrastructure.

I am very interested in this proposed legislation, although I know it might generate controversy in some quarters. The big increase in visitors to Highlands this summer makes me realize parking, sidewalks, bathrooms and other services will be critical if this growth in tourism continues.

Now I know some of my friends will tell me we should just shutter the windows and blow up the bridges, that we don't need more folks up here on "our" beautiful plateau. My response would be that it is not going to happen. In today's world everyone knows where everything is located. There is no place to hide. We must address future trends by planning wisely. Highlands has a tradition of making good decisions.

HCP's 'Don't Dress' continues this weekend

The PAC rocked with laughter on opening night of Marc Camoletti's, Don't Dress for Dinner. The French Farce witty dialogue and hilarious physicality had the audience roaring. The action started when Robert, played by Highlander Ricky Siegel, jumped over the couch to stop his best friend, Bernard, played by David Spivey from Franklin, from involving him in a dalliance that was sure to fail. Megan McLean, from Sapphire, who is Bernard's wife, stays above the melee until later in the first act. Lynleigh McLain, from Highlands, who played Suzette the cook, falls for Robert and on the couch while, Katy Potts who lives in White-side Cove and Craig Eister, Suzette's husband, bring down the house and a number of their fellow actors in the second Act.

Audience comments at the opening night reception were "fast paced" and "one of the best shows from HCP". The audience, probably because of the cast being from all over the plateau, came from everywhere. Fourteen of Craig Eister's co-workers from Atlanta drove all the way to Highlands just to see him act. Which, according to Craig, made him "very nervous." But no nerves were apparent from any of the cast who visibly brightened at the first ripple of laughter.

Call 526-8084 for tickets. The box office is open 10 a.m. till 4 p.m. Please leave a message for a call back if the phone is busy.

The Phoenix Vocal Ensemble to perform at First Presbyterian Sept. 4 Sunday service

The Phoenix Vocal Ensemble from Pebblebrook School in Cobb County, GA will sing during the 11a worship service at Highlands First Presbyterian Church on Sunday, September 4. The group is directed by Katie Woolf.

The Cobb County Center for Excellence in the Performing arts (CCCEPA) is a magnet program housed at Pebblebrook High School in Mableton, GA, a suburb of Atlanta. Students are drawn from across Cobb County in a wide variety of cultural and socio-economic neighborhoods. In addition to regular academic studies, each student in the magnet program is enrolled in a major area in voice, dance, drama, or technical theatre. Many students also study in a secondary area.

Phoenix Vocal Ensemble is a chorus of approximately 20 students taken primarily from the junior and senior classes. Phoenix is considered Pebblebrook's most selective choral ensemble and performs jazz and pop repertoire in addition to music from the Western classical tradition. All members of Phoenix also participate in Pebblebrook's 50-voice Chamber Chorus and 200-voice Chorale. Some members of Phoenix are also selected by the faculty to serve as Chorale Section Leaders.

Everyone is welcome to attend this and all services at First Presbyterian Church. The church is located at the corner of Main and Fifth Streets. Handicap entrances are located on Church Street and Fifth Street.

• THE FREDSTER •

Is Highlands really safe?

And the answer is.... of course it's safe.... especially when you compare it with Los Angeles, Detroit, Chicago, Atlanta and all the other crappy big cities where crime is rampant. And here's even better news. Highlands will remain safe because criminals are basically lazy.

Fred Wooldridge

Get out a road map or go on line and take a look at the southwestern part of North Carolina. There's no easy way to get to Highlands. We have two-lane winding roads no matter which route you take to get here. Why come to Highlands when Atlanta is full of rich people who criminals can rob and steal from? Also Highlands' getaway roads are horrible.

And on the topic of Highlands being safe, here's a fun little thingy that will upset some of my liberal friends. If you're white and not a liberal, you're automatically a racist. Actually I'm proud to be a racist.

In Chicago, where our president hails from, seven or eight black people are murdered every night. Is that a racist comment or what? Shame on the Fredster. Oh, and this is even more racist. These dead people, almost always black or Hispanic, were killed by murderers who are mostly black or Hispanic killers. Now how racist is that?

Now I'm feeling very sorry for our president. Let's not forget he's half white. Since all white people are racist, I'm sure it's his racist white side that allows all those black people to be killed each night in his own home town. Apparently he doesn't give a big fat rat's ass one way or another.

Our president is truly conflicted and it's his white half that makes him feel the way he does. SAD!

Back in the good ole days of the old wild west, I'm here to tell you there was little crime. Yeah, yeah, yeah, I know you think crime and shootings were rampant but it was the dad gum over-the-top liberal media who made a fortune writing good ole wild west stories. Yes, even back then there was a liberal media. In reality, everyone in the old west carried a gun on his hip and had a rifle strapped to his horse. Folks back then minded their P's and Q's, whatever that means.

Now just for a moment, close your eyes and pretend every American citizen is carrying a gun on his or her hip. Instantly crime would decrease. Instantly there would be much less than eight or nine murdered black or Hispanic people in Chicago, Detroit or Washington, DC.

Finally, here's a fun test you should take after reading this newspaper. Lay the paper down, set your stopwatch and see how long it takes you to go for your weapon. If it took longer than five seconds, you're a dead person if someone really wants to kill you.... like a terrorist.... or the husband of the woman you're sleeping with or even worse, the wife of the husband you're sleeping with.... or even worse, worse, worse than that, the husband of the husband you're sleeping with. Write in with names, if you know of such shenanigans.

Note: Buy my two books titled "Deceived" and "I'm Moving Back to Mars" on line if you like mystery/thrillers or over the top foolishness.

First foster friendship within yourself ...

"Friends are a man's priceless treasures, and a life rich in friendship is full indeed. When I say, with due regard for the meaning of the word, that I am your friend, I have pledged to you the ultimate loyalty and devotion." Bobby Jones

In the game of golf, there is no greater display of friendship than the final meeting of Bobby Jones and the people of St Andrews in 1958. A physically sickened

Jones stood to say the above words as he received the "Freedom of the City" award. Jones is the only American besides Benjamin Franklin to receive the great honor.

This friendship didn't start out with such pleasant-tries. Years earlier, a young Bobby Jones insulted the people of St Andrews by disrespecting both them and the game of golf when he walked off the golf course while playing in the 1921 British Open. You see, "The Old Course" at St. Andrews is where the game of golf started and not only does it challenge your golf game but your character. An angry Bobby Jones failed both that day. A scorecard displaying internal unrest was the only one turned in at the end of the round.

What changed from such a rocky start to maybe the greatest display of friendship between a man and an entire community? Humility and forgiveness.

First, Jones had to find an internal peace so he could have external friendships. Bobby Jones' golfing accomplishments and friendships started when he found a friendship with himself. Second, the people of St. Andrews had to be willing to forgive. Like all genuine friendships, it is a two way street. The people of St. Andrews needed to see past the shortcomings of a young man on the surface and be willing to risk insult again. Fortunately, their character that is symbolized in the game of golf, welcomed Bobby Jones back and celebrated his later golf and personal victories with him.

Their friendship was based on more than just Jones' golf accomplishments. In 1936, a retired Bobby Jones was traveling and decided to make an unscheduled visit to St. Andrews. With only his name on a tee sheet announcing the visit, a town closed their doors to come unknowingly watch Jones play his final round on The Old Course. Many of the closed store signs read, "Our Bobby is back!"

Whether you've been in Highlands for hours or generations, the experiences in Highlands (a round of golf, a meal, a stroll through town, a bottle of wine, a hike) is meant to be shared between friends. Even the founding of Highlands was a shared experience between two friends...Kelsey and Hutchinson. Even Bobby Jones visited Highlands to enjoy the summer weather and play a few rounds of golf with friends at Highlands Country Club.

In closing, I want to thank my two long-time friends Jay Calloway and Jimmy Tate. Both of you exemplify the definition of friendship and I'm forever grateful. This friendship was forged thanks to the town of Highlands. Both new and old friendships alike are available for all who grace this beautiful plateau. Now, let us all do our part by extending the hand of friendship to someone and inviting them to spend time with us in Highlands.

THE CURIOUS MIND
KNOWS NO BOUNDS

It's time to be dazzled by Dahlias

The Dahlias are dazzling this summer in Highlands! As I stroll through town, I see the most exquisite dahlias growing everywhere this time of year. To celebrate this beautiful flower, the Sixth Annual Dazzling Dahlia festival returns September 8th - 10th to benefit the Highlands Historical Society.

The Festival kicks off with a Patron Party on Thursday evening, September 8th at the Highlands Falls Country Club. Guests will enjoy music and dancing to the Joe Gransden Trio. Another highlight of the party will be to have the opportunity to buy beautiful works of art that have been generously donated by nationally acclaimed artists Katherine Bell McClure, Ruthie Watts, Dr. Murphy Townsend and Jill Wolfe for the silent auction. Patron Party tickets are $125. Come enjoy a night of dinner, drinks and dancing for a great cause.

The Dahlia Show begins Saturday, September 10th from 1:00p.m. - 5:00p.m. at the Highlands Recreational Park. New this year is the selection of a "Best in Show" blossom, which will be featured in the publicity for the 2017 Dazzling Dahlia Festival. For those who wish to enter dahlias in the Show, bring them either Friday, September 9th from 5:00p.m. to 7:00p.m. OR Saturday, September 10th from 8:00a.m. to 10:00a.m. to the Highlands Recreational Park. The entry fee is $10 per exhibitor. There is a special category for youngsters 17 years and younger to show their growing prowess. For those wishing to enjoy the beautiful dahlias on display, including the winners, the admission fee is $5. Local dahlia expert, Jodie Zahner will give a presentation at 2:00p.m. on tips to grow the prettiest dahlias. Dahlia floral arrangements will also be available for purchase and they are the best bargain in town. Remember to drop by the Prince House at the Highlands Historical Village next door to enjoy the music of Les Scott on his Appalachian Dulcimer from 2:00p.m. to 4:00p.m.

Come to the Dazzling Dahlia Festival September 8 - 10! There is something for everyone at this delightful event that supports a great cause, the Highlands Historical Society. For more information, call (828) 787-1050 or go to www.highlandshistory.com.

A book that I read recently said that four important elements of maintaining a good relationship are attention, appreciation, affection and attraction. As I thought about the four "A"s, it occurred to me not only do they apply to relationships with our partners, our children and our friends, but that they also apply to our homes. Here is how:

1. Attention. When another person is speaking to us, it is important to pay attention to make them feel important instead of thinking about something else or letting your eyes wander around the room. Concentrate on the moment. Likewise, with your home, pay attention to what it is communicating. If the refrigerator is louder than normal, have it checked out. If the sink is not draining, have it fixed. Listening to the small issues regarding your home and taking care of them will obviate the need for big fixes in the future.

2. Appreciation. One of the benefits of traveling is to come home and appreciate what we take for granted on a daily basis. Write down the reasons you purchased or built your home and think about the traits that appealed to you initially. If you are selling your 1 home, share these with your listing broker as the sunny window seat in the morning might not be obvious to someone else. Emphasize the positive on a daily basis, and appreciate how fortunate you are to have a beautiful home.

3. Affection. Show your house you care by taking care of it. Deferred maintenance is a major turn-off when showing homes. One can easily tell the homes that have been lovingly cared for and those that have been ignored. This will allow you to enjoy your home more, and, when selling, prospective buyers will view your home as a well maintained residence instead of a place that you refused to invest in.

4. Attraction. We all try to keep ourselves groomed and attractive for those around us. This pride in appearance should extend to our homes. We want to be around people that are happy and handsome. The same principle applies to homes. The curb appeal of a home is the first impression we give to others. Sometimes prospects refuse to even get out of the car at a showing. I am embarrassed as I have made an appointment, and I excuse myself to run in to leave a card. Go outside and pretend that you are a stranger to your home and a potential buyer. Would you want to come inside? A welcoming exterior is a foreshadowing of a warm and attractive interior.

Practice the four "A"s and these same traits will be returned con County 31st among North Carolina's 100 counties in tourism spending," said Bob Kieltyka, executive director of the Highlands Area Chamber of Commerce. Tourism spending contributes significantly to reducing local taxes as state and local tax revenues generated in 2015 from tourism spending saved each Macon County resident $560.36.

Tourism impact highlights for Macon County in 2015: The travel and tourism industry directly employs more than 1260 employees a 3.9 percent increase over 2014; Total payroll generated by the tourism industry was $27.28 million - an increase of 8.0 percent over 2014; State tax revenue generated totaled $6.95 million through state sales and excise taxes, and taxes on personal and corporate income. Additionally, $12.22 million in local taxes were generated from sales and property tax revenue from travel-generated and travel-supported businesses.

Governor Pat McCrory announced in May that visitors to North Carolina set a record for spending in 2015. The $21.96 billion in total spending represented an increase of 3% over the previous year.

These statistics are from the "Economic Impact of Travel on North Carolina Counties 2015," which can be accessed at partners.visitnc.com/economic-impact-studies. The study was prepared for Visit North Carolina by the U.S. Travel Association.

All eight economic development regions of the state had spending growth of 2 percent or more, and 91 percent of the state's counties saw direct tourism employment growth from 2014 to 2015," said Wit Tut-tell, executive director of Visit North Carolina.

Live a well-lived life

By Rev. Dr. Curtis Fussell
First Presbyterian Church

One day a little girl asked her Sunday School teacher a question, "The Bible says that the children of Israel crossed the sea, and the children of Israel built the Temple, and the children of Israel did this, and the children of Israel did that. Didn't the grownups do anything?"

Yes, the grownups did a lot of things. And, a grown-up will surely ask this little girl, "What do you want to be when you grow up?"

That question reminds me of the story about another little girl who came home with an assignment from her teacher to write a brief essay on the subject, "What Am I Going to Be When I Grow Up?"

The girl's father happened to be a preacher and he told his daughter, "what your teacher really wants to know is what you are going TO DO to make money when you grow up?" As a preacher this father was keen to find lessons in life related to spiritual matters. He saw one here and said to his daughter, "What you ought to tell your teacher is this: when I grow up what I want TO BE is a real person like Jesus, but right now I haven't made up my mind what I'm going to do to make money."

Well, I doubt that this father's answer would have gone over very well with his daughter's teacher. But the point is well made. There is a difference between what you are going to DO and what you are going to BE.

We know we are accountable for our actions, for the things we do. But it is also true that we are accountable for our character, for who we are. Not only do we decide what we are going to do today, but we also decide who we are going to be today. Am I going to be cheerful or grumpy today? Will I frown or smile at people today? Will I encourage others or discourage? Will I act towards others with patience or with anxiety? Over time, people know what we're going to do by our character -by who we are.

The Apostle Paul said that "whatever you sow, that you also reap" (Gal. 6:7). Paul knows clearly that we decide what we will be. He goes on to say, "do not grow weary in well-doing, but at every opportunity do good to all people." This remark sets out a basic principle for tying together being and doing for daily living: never grow weary of well-doing but with every opportunity do good to all people.

If you seek to be a person with a life-giving spirit, a person who is at peace with self and others, who is a non-anxious presence in the midst of anxious events and people, then seek to do good for others. Have you ever noticed that if you smile at people, people will smile at you? If you speak good to others, others will speak good to you. Before too long, who you are becomes what you do; and what you do becomes who you are. It's a wonderful strategy for a life well-lived.

aries, but faced laws forbidding or placing restrictions on the expansions.

In 2015, the FCC voted 3-2 to issue an order seeking to pre-empt those state laws, saying a 1996 law required it to remove barriers to broadband investment and that the municipalities in Tennessee and North Carolina wanted to expand service into areas with little or no internet service.

“It is essential that the state is aware of the broadband needs of its underserved, isolated, rural communities,” said Mayor Pat Taylor.

According to the FCC, since 2015 more than 50 communities have taken steps to build their own broadband options.

“The efforts of communities wanting better broadband should not be thwarted by the political power of those who, by protecting their monopoly, have failed to deliver acceptable service at an acceptable price,” said a FCC representative.

In 2005, Wilson, NC – the community Highlands has tried to emulate concerning broadband – constructed the backbone of a fiber-optic network connecting all city-owned facilities and it was expanded to a municipal broadband network called “Greenlight.”

The city offers phone, internet and cable services which it says are cheaper than its private-sector competitors. The city also provides free Wi-Fi service to its entire downtown area.

It all began on Aug. 19, 2009, when the town of Highlands issued a zoning violation notice to John Shearl, owner of J&J Lawn and Landscape, saying he was making commercial use of a building on property zoned as residential.

His company uses two buildings on the split-zoned property, a shop building near the road on the commercial portion and a storage building further back on the property which is zoned residential. But was it, is the question.

The 1988 zoning map line of demarcation shows 230 feet from the center line of NC 28 which would put the buildings in question in the commercial zone; the 1990 amended zoning map – which can't be found – has the commercial buildings in the residential zone.

Since the town couldn't produce the 1990 zoning map that showed the line of demarcation moved from 230 feet to 150 feet from the center line of NC 28, the case was vacated and remanded back to the Zoning Board.

"We believe that where, as here, a town fails to comply with its obligations under local ordinances and state law by failing to keep

is something Highlands opted not to do reasoning that free Wi-Fi offered by many businesses in Highlands was one way for them to draw patrons and the town didn't want to compete with them.

Mayor Pat Taylor said the federal court's unanimous vote has put Highlands and its new Altitude Broadband service into a "wait and see" mode.

"We need to see how North Carolina responds. We don't know where we stand but we are studying and will be sharing ideas with the public very soon. – possibly within the month. Our specialists both here and in Washington are looking at the current law to see how and if we can move forward with this issue. We are not backing away from having to have broadband in this community. It is an essential utility," he said.

– Kim Lewicki

official zoning maps on record for public inspection, the appropriate remedy is to place the burden back on the town to establish the location and classification of zoning districts when the landowner began his or her nonconforming use. Because the BOA placed the burden on Mr. Shearl to establish the location of the zoning line when he began his nonconforming use in 1993, the Superior Court's order affirming that allocation of proof must be vacated and the matter remanded for a new hearing. At the new hearing, the town must: (1) present evidence establishing the existence of a current zoning violation, and (2) present evidence that the 1990 zoning ordinance moved the zoning line on the subject property from 230 feet to 150 feet from the center line of Highway 28. Mr. Shearl must be allowed to offer additional evidence in rebuttal," wrote Judge Robert Hunter, Jr.

In the past, Highlands has amended its zoning ordinance and the adoption of its maps by logging such actions in its Town Board minutes.

Though Town Attorney J.K. Coward agreed at the time that the town's record keeping had been "sloppy" in the past, he said steps have been taken to change that.

And that is what he hung his case on – winning in the eyes of the Zoning Board with a 4-1 vote.

"All of the previous ordinances were properly adopted by the previous boards and are fully enforceable; they just weren't housed in the right book," he said. "The town has now created the correct record keeping process."

board upheld both 2009 Zoning Board rulings and the 2013 Superior Court ruling affirming a zoning violation issued by the town to Shearl for having commercial activity on the residential portion of his split-zoned property.

At that time Shearl vowed to return to Superior Court – which he did – winning, he said, once again.

"When the time comes, I am going to let everyone know what a waste of taxpayers money this was,"

said Shearl on Tuesday.

Exactly how much this has cost taxpayers wasn't available by press time. Finance Director Rebecca Shuler said her department is working on it.

Meanwhile, in a Closed Session Tuesday night, Mayor Pat Taylor said the Town Board directed Attorney Coward to "continue negotiations with Shearl's attorney and the judge in resolving the case."
