How President Trump’s budget will affect MC
Part 2 of a series – What the defunding of the Appalachian Regional Commission will mean

In the same year, the Southwestern Commission and the Appalachian Regional Commission were created with similar goals. The Southwestern Commission was created in November 1965 by concurrent, joint resolution of the counties and municipalities within the seven counties in Western North Carolina region. It was within this same time period that Councils of Governments (COGs) all across the U.S. were formed. Initially, the driving factor behind this movement was money. Between 1965 and 1975, state legislatures and the US Congress created thousands of grant-in-aid programs. The idea being, if class sizes are reduced, school districts will need more money to add more classes.

One answer? House Bill 481 works to increase the amount of lottery funds allocated to local districts, and includes specific provisions on how the funds should be spent. HB 481, which was co-sponsored by Rep. Kevin Corbin, 50 percent of lottery funds allocated to local districts would be spent to support reducing class size in early grades so classes have 18 students to every teacher. The lower classes are intended to eliminate achievement gaps.

Gov. Cooper says a ‘cloud has lifted with HB2 repeal’

Tuesday morning, the North Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) announced they were lifting the ban on holding championship events in North Carolina after the state repealed House Bill 2, also known as the bathroom bill. House Bill 2, commonly known as HB2, restricted which public restroom transgender people could use and limited protections for LGBTQ people in the state by requiring that individuals had to use the bathroom associated with the sex on their birth certificate, rather than how they identify.

Last week, the North Carolina General Assembly struck a controversial deal to repeal the bill and replace it with HB142, a compromise that included provisions for LGBTQ people in the state by requiring that individuals had to use the bathroom associated with the sex on their birth certificate, rather than how they identify.

Corbin co-sponsors bills to improve NC education

The NC General Assembly has been working for years to reduce class sizes in early grades in the state’s public schools. While legislation has been in place to address class sizes, the legislation has rarely been accompanied with additional funds to reduce class sizes. The idea being, if class sizes are reduced, school districts will need more money to add more classes.

"Town Hall Day' in Raleigh

Town Manager Josh Ward and I had a good, informative trip last week to Town Hall Day at the state capital.

Despite my frequent quips about "the goings on in Raleigh," I developed a new appreciation of the legislative process and those who serve our community and state. The day was well organized by the staff of the NC League of Municipalities.

I know people think the legislative process is slow and at times ineffective, but as I sat in the gallery of the House of Representatives I gained another perspective. The legislators were very polite and formal as they debated on the floor. I am thankful we still have a process of making laws that has some semblance of civility where multiple voices are heard and compromises can be made. The alternative would be frightening.

Later that afternoon legislators reconvened to start the process of repealing HB 2, or rather replacing it with HB 142. Here again, probably all factions came away saying they didn’t get everything they wanted, but for me it was a good faith effort to push the “reset button” and move forward.

Josh and I, as representatives of Highlands, had the opportunity to meet with both of our legislators, Senator Jim Davis and Representative Kevin Corbin. They made time to listen to us and discuss impending legislation. We briefed them on the town’s broadband initiative and encouraged them to support the Bright Futures legislation. HB 68 will help bring broadband to the rural and underserved communities of the state. Both legislators understand and support this critical need.

We also talked about supporting legislation to give municipalities more flexibility and options in raising revenue. These options could alleviate the pressure of relying on property and sales taxes. I am very interested in local options that slightly increase the room occupancy tax. This revenue could be earmarked for infrastructure improvements related to tourism.

We also thanked our representatives for their leadership in introducing and moving forward legislation for more funding of remote K-12 schools. If passed, this legislation will benefit the Nantahala and Highlands Schools right here in Macon County.

Our capital was very busy, and I was grateful that our representatives took the time to meet not only Josh and me, but also many other town representatives from the area. I asked Kevin Corbin, our new representative, what his weekly schedule was like. He responded that he stays at the Holiday Inn near the capital about four or five nights out of the week and then travels back to his district each weekend. That is a long round trip of over 600 miles. While he gets travel and daily expenses, his salary of about $13,000 a year is less than what he made as a Macon County Commissioner. Senator Davis has a similar routine and situation. Their duties require a lot of time and commitment for minimum compensation.

Now if they would always vote just the way I want them to vote, all would be wonderful!

The proposed legislation would also mandate that 40 percent of lottery funds be spent for public school building capital funds, which is currently what all lottery funds are used for. The remaining 10 percent of lottery funds would be spent to provide scholarships through the State Educational Assistance Authority.

House Bill 481 combines the intent of both the Senate and Governor Roy Cooper, although the breakdown of how it is spent differs between the groups.

Legislation filed in the Senate in early March would use more lottery proceeds generated from expanded advertising to build more schools in poor counties and increase compensation for principals and assistant principals.

Both the House and the Senate want to increase capital project spending by a grant program with matching local money used for school construction; the Senate’s bill focuses on the neediest counties. The Senate’s measure would be in addition to lottery funds already distributed statewide for school construction.

The Senate proposed that other lottery funds also would give principal and assistant principals compensation gaps.

Helen B. Radder (nee Hy)

Born November 6, 1917, she would have been 100 this year, but she was a little short! (story of her life!) She finished her race Tuesday morning, March 28th, 2017 and gathered the prize that was set before her! (Philippians 3:14)

She joins her husband, Rollie G. Radder, her daughter, Marilyn Sprague, her mother Anna Hy and 10 siblings who have gone on before her. She is survived by daughters Janet Mumm of Grand Island, NY and Carole Murphy and Sue Radder of Franklin, NC as well as 8 grandchildren, 12 Great Grandchildren, 10 Great-Great Grandchildren and 2 Great-Greats on the way!

Born in Buffalo, NY she lived in the Buffalo area and on Grand Island until moving to Florida in 1973 and then moved halfway back to Franklin/Highlands, NC in 2011. She was a member of Franklin Covenant Church in Franklin, NC. Her treasured relationship with Jesus Christ and strong faith made her a shining light to many. She lived by her favorite Bible verse, “laughter doeth good like a medicine” Proverbs 17:22

A Memorial Picnic is being planned for this summer in Western New York. In the meantime, join us in celebrating the life of Helen Radder by going to your local DQ and have an ice cream in memory of her! And if you want to do it right, you’ll have vanilla. No matter how many flavors were ever available, she always chose vanilla!

Mattie Elizabeth Zachary Crawford

Mattie Elizabeth Zachary Crawford, life-long resident of Highlands, suddenly and peacefully entered eternal rest on Saturday, April 1, 2017.

One of 11 children of Lyman and Dora Zachary, Mattie was born February 22, 1923. She was an exceptional mother to Charles, Betty, and Jimmy and a devoted wife to her late husband James Crawford. Mattie was also preceded in death by a son, Charles Crawford; four brothers, Claude, Carl, Lloyd, and Jim Crawford; and two sisters, Rena James and Bernice Hedden.

Mattie is survived by her daughter, Betty Fisher (Don) of Highlands, NC and a son, James Crawford, Jr. (Kathy) of Lawrenceville, Ga., She was a doting grandmother to Caroline McCown (Neil), Eric Crawford (Cindy), and Ryan Crawford (Jessica); a very special great-grandmother to Connor McCown, Charlie, Clark, and baby Quinn Crawford; and four sisters, Mildred Wilson, Ernestine Reed, Lillian Waller, and Lucille Potts.

A fiercely independent individual, Mattie’s priority in life was her family. She loved her home and especially her yard and garden. She was noted for her beautiful dahlias, gladiolas, and nasturtiums, as well as her vegetables which she shared generously. Well into her 80s, she would spend an entire day raking and blowing leaves and carrying off every stick or branch that fell from the many trees in her manicured yard.

Noted for her hospitality, Mattie readily wanted to share whatever she had. If she knew you, she cared about your well-being. Always looking to help someone in need, she often took jobs to earn money to give to someone in need. Many locals have been a beneficiary of her generosity, receiving a hundred dollar bill to use as needed.

Mattie loved music, she saw that Betty and Jimmy learned to play the piano, and she especially loved gospel music. She appreciated the churches who provide music at the Eckerd Living Center. Banjo was her favorite instrument.

A celebration of Mattie’s life was held Tuesday, April 4, 2017 at First Baptist Church of Highlands where she was a member. The Rev. Roy Lowe, a childhood neighbor and friend of the family, delivered eulogy. Pallbearers were Eric Crawford, Ryan Crawford, Morris Reed, Burch Waller, Ronnie Waller, and Donnie Calloway. Honorary pallbearers were Zeb Cabe, William Creswell, Jimmy Lowe, Jody Zachary, Doyle Calloway, Bill Zachary, and Kevin Waller.

Memorials can be made to First Baptist aid programs totaling billions of dollars in funds available to local governments. One of those grant programs was the Appalachian Regional Commission. The Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) is a regional economic development agency that represents a partnership of the federal, state, and local governments. Established by an act of Congress in 1965, ARC is composed of the governors of the 13 Appalachian states and a federal co-chair, who is appointed by the president. Local participation is provided through multi-county local development districts.

The Appalachian Regional Commission’s programs address the five goals identified in the Commission’s 2016–2020 strategic plan:

1) investing in entrepreneurial and business development strategies that strengthen Appalachia’s economy;
2) improving the education, knowledge, skills, and health of residents to work and succeed in Appalachia;
3) investing in critical infrastructure—especially broadband, transportation, including the Appalachian Development Highway System, and water/wastewater systems;
4) strengthening Appalachia’s community and economic development potential by leveraging the Region’s natural and cultural heritage assets; and
5) building the capacity and skills of current and next-generation leaders and organizations to innovate, collaborate, and advance community and economic development.

Each year ARC provides funding for several hundred projects in the Appalachian Region in a wide range of program areas:
- asset-based development;
- community infrastructure;
- education and training;
- energy;
- entrepreneurship and business development;
- export and trade development;
- health;
- leadership development and capacity building;
- telecommunications;
- tourism development; and
- transportation and highways.

Special resources are targeted to the most economically distressed counties.

Furthermore and specifically, the projects funded in these program areas create thousands of new jobs; improve local water and sewer systems; increase school readiness; expand access to health care; assist local communities with strategic planning; and provide technical and managerial assistance to emerging businesses.

When President Donald Trump proposed his budget, it included defunding and eliminating the ARC, so the Southwestern Commission stepped up to formally oppose the measure and ask Congressman Mark Meadows to take action to prevent it.

The Southwestern Commission, representing governments in Cherokee, Clay, Graham, Haywood, Jackson, Swain, and Macon counties, unanimously approved a resolution opposing portions of President Trump’s budget that would defund ARC and similar programs.

“The President’s proposed budget eliminates and reduces important federal programs that make local community and economic development efforts possible,” reads the resolution. “The Southwestern Commission obtained numerous grants for its local communities in the past 52 years totaling millions of dollars that leveraged millions of dollars in local and private investments ... examples of those projects include infrastructure such as water, wastewater, roads, projects critical to business and industrial development and job creation.”

The ARC provides social and economic support to the 13-state region encompassing 22 million residents, according to the NC Department of Commerce. In January, Gov. Roy Cooper “recommended eight community and regional projects in WNC for Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) funding. The recommendations total more than $3 million in ARC funds,” according to a press release.

One of the five bullet points in Trump’s proposed 2018 budget blueprint states, “puts America first by keeping more of America’s hard-earned tax dollars here at home.” But some of the agencies the president seeks to cut, like the ARC, already keep tax dollars “at home.”

The purpose behind cutting some programs, including the ARC, the Chemical Safety Board, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and the U.S. Trade and Development Agency, while offering tax cuts to the super wealthy, is to provide a $54 billion increase in defense spending.

However, in fiscal year 2017, the ARC requested $120 million, and if the ARC budget were to remain the same, the elimination of the program would only account for 0.22 percent of the $54 billion increase in defense spending.

Zeb Smathers, a Canton Alderman and 2nd Vice Chair of the Southwestern Commission said the commission’s resolution was intended to stress the importance of the funding for rural North Carolina and credits the ARC and similar programs with economic development in the region.

sistant principals big pay bumps next year and create performance-based bonuses to principals.

Gov. Roy Cooper ran on the promise of working toward providing free community college tuition and has been working to garner support in the state to do so through using lottery funds.

As it stands, high school students can enroll in community colleges for free through the North Carolina Career and College Promise and schools such as Macon Early College. Cooper wants to expand that program to garner support in the state to do so through using lottery funds.

Cooper isn’t proposing an entirely free program, but wants students to apply for college, which is $76 per credit hour, with a cap of $1,216 per semester. After a student also applies for financial aid, Cooper proposes a program to cover whatever costs may exist after that.

Cooper wants to establish the program, which he calls NC GROW using lottery funds. He has said that $19 million would be needed to start the program, which has seen success and increased enrollment in states that have similar measures.

In addition to tackling lottery funds, Corbin also co-sponsored House Bill 495 which would increase funding for instructional resources such as textbooks, supplies, and equipment.

House Bill 495 would also allow local school boards to have more flexibility on how to spend the funding based on their individual needs.

The legislation allocates $35 million for 2017-2018 and an additional $35 million the following year across the state to purchase textbooks and digital resources such as iPads and digital textbooks. If a district has other needs such as instructional supplies or equipment, HB 495 wants local districts to determine how to best use their allotment.

Corbin also co-sponsored House Bill 540 which would provide a $2,400 pay increase to teachers and state employees who earn less than $100,000. The legislation also appropriates funds to make it happen.

“We wanted to have one voice opposing cuts to crucial programs like the ARC,” said Smathers. “We wanted to ask Congressman Meadows to closely watch these programs during the budget negotiations and to find a way to save them. Those programs are so important for economic development in our region and for all rural communities. We are hopeful that Congressman Meadows will support our resolution and see that these measures are funded in President Trump’s budget.”

In Macon County, the ARC has provided funding for economic development, increasing access to affordable housing, and increasing broadband connectivity all in the last few years.

In Congressman Meadows District, the Southwestern Commission reports that the ARC is providing $454,567 towards $707,563 in projects for 2017. Projects vary from economic development to increasing access to broadband and connectivity.

Eliminating the ARC would be detrimental to the progress in all of Appalachia.

“We are working to see that the ARC is included in the budget, and we certainly want to make sure that people in Western North Carolina do not get short-changed in economic development assistance,” said Meadows.

Macon County Commissioner Ronnie Beale believes the impact to Macon County would be widespread, with President Trump’s proposed budget impacting everything from regional economic development initiatives to the public school system.

“The first budget proposal we have seen will impact several areas in Macon County,” said Beale. “From a local perspective, not even a political perspective, people in rural areas across the country, in places like Macon County, should be paying attention to this budget and the effect it could have.”

He said one of the most significant cuts to impact WNC and Macon County would be proposed cuts to the ARC which “addresses the persistent poverty and growing economic despair of the Appalachian Region.”

(StatePoint) Curb appeal is important in setting a welcoming tone. And if your home is for sale, an attractive exterior becomes crucial.

“Realtors tell us that potential home buyers make a ‘street decision’ in less than 12 seconds on whether or not to view a home,” says Niki Decker of Fypon, a leader in the synthetic millwork industry. “That’s a very short time to make a good impression.”

August marks the first National Curb Appeal Month, a great time to focus on ways to add value and design appeal to your home’s exterior, whether or not you have plans to sell.

The experts at Fypon are offering their top exterior upgrade tips:

• Swap a rotting wooden porch system with a new structural synthetic balustrade system that includes porch posts, top and bottom rails, balusters and all the other pieces essential to create a weather-resistant porch.

• Trim out exterior windows. Use crossheads for over a window and top with a solid, decorative or recessed panel keystone accent piece. On the sides and below the window, use moulding pieces with plinth blocks in the corners to eliminate miter cuts.

• Replace older, rotting wooden louvers with low-maintenance polyurethane louvers. Such functional louvers should have a non-corrosive fiberglass screen backing to keep insects out while allowing maximum airflow and ventilation to enter an attic.

• A conventional older wooden door may be inefficient, worn out or plain ugly. Consider replacing your old wooden door with a solid fiberglass door, which is up to four times more energy efficient and resistant to rot, rust, dings and weather. Constructed as a complete system of components, Therma-Tru fiberglass doors, for example, are engineered to work together for lasting performance, security and energy efficiency.

Throughout August, homeowners can enter the online “Door Do-Over Sweepstakes” for the chance to win a new Therma-Tru fiberglass entry door. To enter the sweepstakes, visit www.TodaysHomeowner.com/DoorDoOver.

• Make smart upgrades with a proven return on investment. For example, adding energy-

The Best Bang for Your Buck Kitchen Remodeling Tips

(StatePoint) Kitchen remodeling can significantly increase home value. However, this can get extremely expensive. But simple kitchen fix-ups can add both value and comfort to your space.

With this in mind, consider sprucing up your kitchen without breaking the bank. Don’t know where to start? Try these tips from HomeAdvisor, a leading website offering resources for home repair and improvement projects:

• Fix the countertops: Changing the material of kitchen countertops is a simple way to make an impact in the room. Materials such as ceramic, laminate, granite and siltstone are all great options. Laminate is the most cost effective and granite is the most popular.

• Refinish the cabinets: Even though cabinet replacement can be pricey, giving your existing cabinets a new look can come at an affordable price tag.

• Redo lighting: Altering the lighting in your kitchen can give it a different look and feel. Track lighting is a good aesthetic choice with many different options. Add a few task lamps to improve the functionality of the work space area. Dimmers are easy to install and can make the atmosphere of the room more versatile.

• Upgrade appliances: Buying even just one or two new appliances can significantly increase the kitchen’s value. Large appliances, such as the refrigerator, oven and stove, should be upgraded first.

• Restyle the floor: Laying a new floor doesn’t have to be a costly project. Materials such as peel-and-stick vinyl tiles are inexpensive and can be easy to install. Other excellent options include linoleum, porcelain, cork and stained concrete.

More great ideas for your kitchen and beyond can be found at www.HomeAdvisor.com.

You don't need to start from scratch to give your kitchen a makeover. With small improvements, you can get a great return on your investment.
According to the March 2017 www.ncdrought.org site, there are eighteen counties under the severe drought status, with Macon and Jackson being two of them. Maybe some of our April showers will help move us down a notch; it’s not a contest we want to win. The water shortage isn’t the topic of today’s discussion however. There’s another drought that’s been in real estate news lately—the housing drought.

According to Realtormag.realtor.org, we are in the “worst housing drought ever.” The article, published March 27, 2017, goes on to say “the number of homes on the market is at the lowest level on record according to NAR (National Association of Realtors), who began tracking 18 years ago.”

The article blames contractors for fewer new-home builds, and the ones that are being started are for higher-end homes, not starter homes for first time buyers.

Add that to the fact that more people are taking the equity from their homes and choosing to rehab their existing homes rather than investing in second and third homes.

Many have stated this is being done to ride out the market. Our MLS shows about 1,000 active listings (residential, condos, and town homes), which is close to 25% less than 2013 active listings.

Could there be an upside to this? In our area? Yes, there may be a silver lining to our spring shower clouds.

Our market lags behind the national trend because of the uniqueness of our area. We don’t have the number of first-time buyers of other areas, nor do we have industry led moves like other cities.

Buyers invest here mostly for retirement, income producing properties, and get-away places for their families – often and usually a mixture of all three.

We’ve seen a good bit of real estate activity this winter, and while it’s not unusual to have winter sales, if the first quarter of 2017 is any indicator, this drought shortage may be a contest worth competing in.

The Highlands-Cashiers MLS showed 109 sales of residential/condo/town homes as opposed to an average of 63.44 first quarter sales from 2008-2016. Just like there’s two sides to every story, the upside of the housing drought may be one-sided as well. We’ve been in a buyer’s market for years, and now the tables may be starting to change just a little.

But, wait a minute. Before Sellers start counting their possible earnings, there are a few things to remember.

1) There is no bubble. What was experienced from 1998-2007 is not likely to happen ever again.

2) Sales prices are almost always based on the current market. Pricing is more important than ever when listing. You cannot list a property based on what you paid, or what the property has the ability of becoming in the future.

3) As newly constructed homes are built, the playing field will level out, meaning more competition for current homes on the market.

4) Timing is everything. This one is the hardest part, because we just don’t know when the right person will come along and buy a property. What we do know is that our area follows the nation’s trend in real estate. What we don’t know is when or to what extent.

The real estate market in the Highlands and Cashiers area seems to have taken off like a rocket. There is also a huge need for rentals – both year round/annual leases and vacation rentals. Some of the people here on vacation this year will be residents or seasonal residents next year.

Color me busy. Before I retired, I kept encountering articles about the dangers of being at loose ends in retirement with too much time on your hands. Conversely, I'd speak to folks who'd say, "Oh, you'll be busier than you are now." Guess which contingent was right?

It's a rare day I don't have a list of things to accomplish. They may not all be exciting or noteworthy, but they are time-consuming. I can count on one hand the days I haven't had at least one thing I needed to get done, and when I have one of those days, I think to myself, "Gee, I may actually get to sit down and read a book in the middle of the day." So far, reading novels still mostly happens at night.

If you're not one of those retirees who told me how busy I'd be, you may be wondering just what fills my time. Lots of things. I do lunch with friends. I still work out at the gym and take Yoga, and it's been a plus to ride bicycles with my husband on weekdays. Going to a movie on a weekday afternoon is also a treat.

When I worked, I didn't read the morning paper until the evenings, but now I read it with my coffee, check my news feeds and emails, and play a few rounds of Words with Friends. If I don't have errands to run, I head upstairs to my office to do some writing for the Crier, my blog, Highlands Newspaper, or BeaufortCountyNow.com. And I still edit the occasional article for my former manager and provide feedback here and there for others I used to work with. I was pretty busy last year pulling together the collection of my columns that came out November 21, and now I'm busy marketing it. (You can find "The Ink Penn: Celebrating the Magic in the Everyday" on Amazon and on my website theinkpenn.com.)

One of my retired girlfriends is delighted to have a playmate and has a list of outings she wants us to take. We've already visited two of the three historic homes in Roswell, Georgia, spent a morning antiquing, and have Atlanta's Swann House still on our list.

Add to those fun activities all of the chores I've been putting off until I had time and my days are full up. I've accomplished a few things on my "I'll get to it someday list" and still have plenty to go. Simple things like taking a lamp to the repair shop, rearranging my office, getting the office painted, and pictures hung, and filling five bags with books to donate for library sales combine to fill the time.

I enjoy not having a "Must Do" list but instead a list I can pick and choose from as the mood strikes. I've gone through two rooms gathering knickknacks I don't know why I had and taking them to consignment shops and thrift stores. I plopped down in front of my cookbooks one day and purged that collection, and I was inspired to clean out yet another file cabinet when I read about a shredding day at a local real estate office.

The winter months were a bit slower, but spring promises to be busy again with book signings and festivals around the Atlanta area, a girls trip to St. Simons and a couples trip to Black Mountain. With that schedule, I can't see boredom setting in anytime soon.

efficient vinyl windows, like those from Simonton Windows, as a mid-range project to a home can have a cost recoup value of 78.7 percent, while adding vinyl siding can have a 78.2 percent recoup rate, according to the 2014 Cost Versus Value Study conducted by Remodeling magazine.

• Add “top down” color to the home by starting with the roof. Polymer slate and shake roofs, like those from DaVinci Roofscapes, come in 49 standard colors and unlimited custom colors.

• Color plays a major role in creating curb appeal. Add and maintain colorful shrubbery and planters to give your exterior a natural burst of color. Look to the front door, your shutters and trim to add pops of color additions that complement the rest of the exterior.

For more tips, visit www.fypon.com. Throughout August, Fypon will include daily curb appeal tips, along with detailed curb appeal information and color advice from national color expert Kate Smith of Sensational Color.

This National Curb Appeal Month, make your home a more welcoming place by giving its exterior a facelift.
Southwestern Commission looking to improve bicycle routes in Macon County

The Southern Blue Ridge Bike Plan developed by Chipley Consulting for the Southwestern Commission is geared toward improving Macon, Graham, Cherokee, and Clay counties bicycle routes and building up the bicycle tourism industry.

Based on a comprehensive study produced by Chipley Consulting, bicycle tourism generates $2.8 million in income and supports 129 jobs in the state’s four westernmost counties. The industry also accounts for $1.05 million in tax revenues.

For WNC, the industry accounts for $15.3 million in tax revenues and supports 1,702 jobs, according to Chipley Consulting’s study.

Capitalizing on the industry and finding a way to grow and improve bicycle tourism in the region was the purpose of a series of public input meetings held over the last two weeks. “Now that the meetings are complete, we will finalize the report and recommendations,” said Sealy Chipley, owner of Chipley Consulting. “Community input will be incorporated into this document. We will likely have one final steering committee meeting. The final step of this project will be adoption of the plan. After this is complete, implementation can occur.”

Chipley Consulting is a woman-owned firm with offices in Asheville and Raleigh. It provides a range of economics, planning and communications services. The firm researched bicycle tourism in the region and developed recommendations on how to improve routes.

For Macon County, improvements included looking at existing NCDOT projects and working with state agencies to make sure bicycle lanes are included as work is completed.

The plan also identified existing bike trails throughout the county, including the 3,277 elevation gain bike trail from Franklin to Highlands that includes a steep climb, light traffic, but concern for poor sight distance on Buck Creek Road.

Addressing issues such as poor visibility is part of the plan’s overall goal to make those routes more user-friendly. The plan also identifies areas in each community where bike storage racks can be installed so cyclists can utilize community amenities while traveling by bike.

Following one more planning meeting, the plan will be presented to the Southwestern Commission which will work to secure grants for each segment of the route.
How far would you go to rescue someone? Would you jump into a flooded river? Run into a blazing fire? Stand in front of an oncoming bullet?

Honestly, I don’t think any of us knows the answer to those questions unless and until we might indeed have to act. But, I do think we could agree that whether we do or don’t seek to rescue someone, we would make that decision based on what’s going on inside of us.

What is my relationship with the person who needs rescuing? Are they a stranger, enemy or loved one? What is my philosophy of the value of a life? Can I let the poor, disenfranchised, mentally and physically challenged person perish while I rescue the “beautiful people”?

We’re just about 10 days away from celebrating the single greatest day in history when a Holy God answered all of the above questions.

The resurrection of Jesus Christ from the grave following His death on the Cross was without precedent. In that Cross/Resurrection event, God decided to rescue the human race through His Son, Jesus Christ. It was the highest price ever paid. It yielded the highest dividends ever possible. One man – the God-Man – perfect and sinless, died a slow death of torture and humiliation. That death made possible a personal relationship with God Himself through Jesus Christ the Son.

This event was heaven’s signal! It signaled the human race that God would do anything to rescue us from our sins and ourselves.

It signaled the worth of every human being on the planet. Red and yellow, black and white, they are precious in His sight. Jesus loves the little children of the world and He loves the big children, too. That’s us.

Maybe you have known Jesus Christ personally for a long time. Or maybe you’ve only known about Him yet never met Him.

Or maybe you’ve never even considered Him. The simple truth is: He loves you. He died in your place on the Cross, was resurrected on the third day by the power of God and now lives in heaven. He longs for you to know Him.

I can’t think of a better time to get to know Him than right now. The hymn says, “The way of the cross leads home. It is sweet to know as I onward go, the way of the Cross leads home.”

Is it time for you to come home?

promise bill approved by the Republican-controlled legislature and signed by Democratic Governor Roy Cooper.

“We are actively determining site selections, and this new law has minimally achieved a situation where we believe NCAA championships may be conducted in a nondiscriminatory environment. If we find that our expectations of a discrimination-free environment are not met, we will not hesitate to take necessary action at any time,” the NCAA Board of Governors said in a statement.

House Bill 2 was legislation passed by the previous General Assembly. A new wave of elected officials took office in January, including House Representative Kevin Corbin. Although Corbin was not responsible for the initial legislation, last week he was part of the majority who voted in favor of the repeal bill.

HB 142 resets House Bill 2 and completely preempts local governments from regulating multi-occupancy bathrooms, showers, locker rooms and changing rooms across the state.

Gov. Roy Cooper signed the measure into law last week, saying, “For over a year now, House Bill 2 has been a dark cloud hanging over our great state. It has stained our reputation. It has discriminated against our people and it has caused great economic harm in many of our communities.”

However, Cooper did say the new law is “not a perfect deal and it is not my preferred solution.”

Details of HB 142

The new legislation fully repeals HB2 and sets the law back.

HB 142 does, however, effectively maintain a key feature of HB2, which makes it state law that leaving regulation of bathroom access solely in control of the Legislature, and preventing local governments from regulating bathroom facilities.

The repeal law places a moratorium until 2020 preventing local governments from passing or amending their own non-discrimination ordinances relating to private employment and public accommodation.

According to Rep. Corbin, attorneys in the legislature advised that HB2 would have been struck down this week in the 4th Circuit of Appeals Court if a repeal didn’t occur.

“HB142 allows for the protections under Federal Law which is non-discrimination on the basis of race, color, national origin, religion, or disability,” said Corbin. “Passing this bill was the right thing to do.”

Federal law prohibits any public accommodation from discriminating on the basis of “race, color, religion, or national origin.” It makes no mention of sexual orientation or gender identity (nor does it address other issues such as age or marital status), so there are no LGBT protections in the state now.

Corbin said the repeal law actually strengthens the state’s bathroom laws, while ensuring that local governments can’t pass legislation to supersede state preferences.

“The effect of this clarity is that the General Assembly will not have to constantly react to the next trend being played by out-of-control cities,” said Corbin. “This wording clearly reaffirms the authority of the State to regulate bathroom, shower, and changing facility policy. It stops the threat of another out-of-control city council or university from passing another crazy ordinance or policy. Furthermore, it takes us back to bathroom policies that have been consistent for decades and uses only common sense to enforce: laws that deal with ‘peeping toms,’ indecent exposure, and trespass.”

Candidate and now Governor Roy Cooper has long spoken on how HB2 affected the state’s bottom line.

“We now know that, based on conservative estimates, North Carolina’s economy stands to lose nearly $4 billion because of House Bill 2. That means fewer jobs and less money in the pockets of middle class families,” he said.

He said legislators needed to fix the problem.

“We needed to end discrimination and bring jobs and sports back to North Carolina.”

Governor Cooper said the compromise was a first step to repairing North Carolina’s reputation and economy.

While he said more work remains to be done, last week’s compromise was an important step forward and he will continue the work to fight for statewide antidiscrimination protections for LGBT North Carolinians.

After he signed House Bill 142 that repealed House Bill 2, he said he believed sports were coming back to the state.

“Having the NCAA, ACC, and NBA come back will help restore North Carolina’s reputation. But this was more than about sports and jobs. It was about discrimination. For over a year now, HB2 has been a cloud over our great state,” he said.
