- 2016 Year in Review -

The year 2016 was quite a year in Highlands and beyond. The USFS was busy renovating parks, working with local fire & rescue teams on deaths at area waterfalls and fighting fires.

The town saw new commercial expansion, policy changes and changes in administration and more. Here are some highlights.

January
• Highlands Ice Skating Rink officially opened Mon., Jan. 4. The Williams of Old Edwards Hospitality Group donated $314,841 toward the project.
• Room tax proceeds point to a healthy economy. Highlands area accounts for more than half of the total room occupancy tax collected each year in Macon County.
• A visit to Dry Falls turns deadly when Sean Kasey, 45, of Villa Rica, GA fell into the icy waters at the base of Dry Falls.
• The first snow of 2016 was Sunday, Jan. 17.
• First Baptist Church is set to expand fellowship hall.
• 4th Street Market planned

What is there to do in Highlands during the winter? Plenty!

Governor Cooper tells Washington that NC will seek to expand Medicaid

“Right now, North Carolina tax dollars are going to Washington, where they are being redistributed to states that have expanded Medicaid. To date, 31 states and Washington DC have expanded coverage through Medicaid; in 2016 these states received more than $70 billion in federal funds. “Why should North Carolinians pay for Medicaid expansion in states like New Jersey, Ohio and Indiana when we don’t even expand it to our own people?”

RALEIGH, NC — Gov. Roy Cooper served notice today that he is seeking federal approval that would allow the state to cover more uninsured North Carolinians through Medicaid.

Cooper, who has called for broader health care coverage by expanding Medicaid, sent a letter to the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) in Washington. If CMS approves a change, if local matching money can be secured, and if state eligibility requirements

Dealing with winter weather in Highlands

It’s that time of year, heavy snow resulting in opportunities to think and plan. Let me share some thoughts.

First, when there is snow and ice on the roads, the garbage collection schedule has to be adjusted. I am writing this piece mid-Monday morning where the 10-degree temperature is just now beginning to climb. Ice still remains on the smaller, tree shaded roads.

In these icy conditions primary consideration has to be for worker safety and the protection of equipment. On a normal day, crews make hundreds of stops where a worker jumps off the truck to retrieve and dispose of household garbage. If there is ice on the ground, one misstep could result in serious injury, so worker safety is paramount.

Also, operating a quarter of a million dollar garbage truck on icy roads can be a problem. One roll over or slide off could cost thousands of dollars. It is unlikely a damaged garbage truck can be repaired locally. These trucks are complex and specialized, so a repair could take weeks or even months.

Today our large trucks rolled out later than usual as conditions improved. They hit all the large streets that were mostly ice-free. Our alternative plan was to run our smaller four-wheel drive trucks on the smaller, icy streets. But, all the adjustments take time, and workers inevitably get behind the normal schedule.

One citizen called Town Hall to let us know that his street was so covered in ice that he thought the garbage crew should not even attempt to collect until the ice was gone. What a kind and thoughtful person. In freezing temperatures garbage isn’t going to spoil if not picked up on schedule. God bless him for being concerned for the safety of people more than his garbage.

I called WHLC to let folks know the garbage collection would be behind schedule. The radio is a good way of getting information out. I also talked with our new Town Manager, Josh Ward, about the situation. We thought about another way of communicating information fast. His idea is for the town to develop a messaging system on the town website where daily information can be posted. We will work on the idea.

Fortunately, this first snow produced no major power outages. Highlands’ crews provide immediate response to power outages.

Customers can call Town Hall at 526-2118 if there is a power failure or waterline rupture, during the normal business hours from 8 am to 4:30 pm. The office staff has radios and dispatches crews immediately.

For outages after hours, please call 911. The emergency operator will dispatch our people who are on call.

Now, I know some folks are reluctant to call 911 for fear of being charged with calling for a non-emergency problem. Loss of power and waterline breaks are emergencies. If someone calls the 911 when it is snowing to ask about the weather, well that’s another matter.

Nevertheless, folks can also call the non-emergency number at 526-4131. 911 operators will answer and respond if they are not taking a critical emergency call.

Let me once again thank our public works people who were ready, willing and did go on duty during this winter event.

Do you need help with staying warm this winter?

Getting paid:

Breaking down highest salaries for WNC county employees

By Michael Gebelein
Carolina Public Press

People rarely, if ever, get into a career in public service to get rich, according to popular wisdom. As it turns out, some salaries are more generous than others. Salaries of top county employees

Carolina Public Press recently requested records from each of the 19 counties in Western North Carolina to show what top officials make in each county. Comparing these records shows that some county government jobs and elected positions in the region are far more lucrative than others and not every county apportions its resources in a similar fashion.

In 12 of the state’s 19 westernmost counties, for instance, the county manager is the highest-paid public official, with salaries ranging from almost $250,000 per year in Buncombe County, the largest salary for a single public official in the region, to less than $55,000 per year for the county manager in Mitchell County.

Carolina Public Press submitted records requests for a summary of the salaries and benefits of the 10 highest paid employees in each county, as well as the compensation packages for elected officials employed by the counties. An analysis of those documents showed large disparities, in some cases, in how counties compensate their employees.

This article focuses on non-elected positions not connected to education. Upcoming articles will look at pay levels for county commissioners, sheriffs and other elected officials, as well as for school officials.

County managers lead the way

The county manager, whom county commissioners typically hire, is often the highest-profile unelected official in a county’s government. The manager, according to North Carolina law, is responsible for preparing the county budget, hiring and firing county employees, supervising the operation of county departments and implementing the rulings passed down by commissioners. Every county in WNC operates under a “county-manager plan.”

The manager is the highest-paid public employee in 12 of the 19 WNC counties.

However, in Clay, Graham, Haywood and Madison counties, dentists employed by the county health department are the highest paid employees.

Jackson County’s finance director, Cherokee County’s attorney and Mitchell County’s human resources director are the highest paid employees in those counties.

In Buncombe County, County Manager Wanda Greene receives an annual salary of $241,791 per year — the highest salary for any public official in the region. Greene became the manager of Buncombe County, the region’s most populous, in 1997.

Steve Wyatt, the manager of neighboring Henderson County, holds the second-highest salary for a county manager in the region at $185,000. Wyatt’s compensation package includes a $7,800 car allowance, a $700 phone allowance and more than $70,000 in bonuses.

Burke County Manager Brian Steen receives a $158,100 per year salary and a $5,000 per year travel allowance. Haywood County Manager Ira Dove makes almost $145,000 per year and Jackson County manager Don Adams Jr. makes $125,010 per year. Macon County’s Derek Roland ($120,000), Rutherford County’s Steve Garrison ($105,806), Transylvania County’s Jaime Laughter ($100,023) and Watauga County’s Deron Geouque ($118,213) round out the county managers in the region making more than $100,000 per year.

On the lower end of the spectrum, the manager in Graham County makes $41,000 annually.

are changed, then more than a half-million North Carolinians could receive health care beginning in January 2018.

“This is North Carolina common sense,” Cooper said. “We can receive between $3 billion and $4 billion to pay for care that hospitals and other providers now give away. That will create jobs, bolster our hospitals, could save some rural hospitals and work toward more stable private insurance premiums.”

The NC Hospital Association says the state’s hospitals provide about $1 billion in care annually to residents who cannot pay for it. Hospitals would receive a significant share of additional Medicaid dollars that would come back to the state under Cooper’s plan. Cooper believes the contributions can be paid through a combination of savings in existing state expenditures due to the new federal funding and a local matching contribution. Hospitals would contribute a 5% local match that CMS requires. Depending on how many additional residents enroll in the expanded program, the hospitals’ contribution could be between $100 million and $150 million in the first year.

The Cooper Administration says that a 2013 state law that prohibits the governor from seeking to provide health care for low-income North Carolinians does not apply to this draft plan.

“Right now, North Carolina tax dollars are going to Washington, where they are being redistributed to states that have expanded Medicaid,” Cooper said. To date, 31 states and Washington DC have expanded coverage through Medicaid; in 2016 these states received more than $70 billion in federal funds. “Why should North Carolinians pay for Medicaid expansion in states like New Jersey, Ohio and Indiana when we don’t even expand it to our own people?”

The state will accept comments for 10 days on North Carolina’s notice of intent to amend its Medicaid plan. The Cooper Administration then will file a State Plan Amendment with CMS.

Mitchell County Manager Charles Vines receives a salary of $54,446 per year, the lowest for a manager in the region and lower than that county’s human resources director, DSS director, finance director and tax assessor. Yancey County Manager Nathan Bennett receives a $65,586 salary per year and Graham County Manager Mike Edwards receives a salary of $67,995 per year.

Several counties have assistant county managers who make almost as much as their bosses.

Talmadge Blevins is the Haywood County assistant manager and director of the Haywood Health and Human Services Agency and receives a yearly salary of $109,240. Henderson County Assistant County Manager Amy Brantley makes $128,750 per year, in addition to a $3,900 car allowance, $772 phone allowance, $9,000 merit bonus and $3,553 retention bonus.

Top employees

Buncombe County’s top-tier employees are, for the most part, the highest paid in the region. County health center physician director, Jennifer Mullendore, makes $195,944 per year. New Year Home Resolutions

How many of you made New Year’s resolutions for 2017? It really doesn’t matter if you’ve already broken them, or if you haven’t started yet. It’s a fact that goals that are written down are more likely to be attained. Let’s talk about goals and resolutions for your house, whether it’s for sale, for rent, or simply your nest.

1) Curb appeal: every house has it; Consider your home having a theme song-what would it be? Its theme song could range from ‘Favorite Things’ from The Sound of Music, or ‘Happy’ from Despicable Me2. As long as you don’t hear ‘Dueling Banjos’ from Deliverance or the instrumental from The Good, The Bad and The Ugly – you should be fine, but do you need a different approach to your home- one that says, Welcome?

2) Kitchens: Take a look at your flatware, dishes, pots and pans and how about that accumulation of plastic ware and grocery bags. Homes for sale should show as much counter space as possible. Minimize the nonperishable items you leave if any. If a prospective buyer or renter plans to cook in your kitchen, it needs to look like they can walk right in and get started.

3) Windows and coverings: Are your curtains/draperies faded? Still sporting the ‘80s blouson, or the ‘70s ruffles? Some of these styles are timeless in certain places, but for the most part-no, they aren’t. Are you a purist that wants NO coverings at all? While that’s fine, and has a wonderful commercial/contemporary feel, it can leave a room feeling cold and unwelcoming. A designer can help you change a bare window without compromising your sense of style.

4) Bed, bath and kitchen linens: Just how long have you had those towels? Do they still say Welcome to my home? One of the simplest rooms to stage for sale or rent is your bathroom. Fresh looking bath linens and clean fixtures/vanities make a nice statement no matter how old the bathroom.

5) Bedrooms: another big statement, and yes-size matters. When someone walks into your bedroom, the visual size of the room is often dictated on your mattress size and accompanying pieces of furniture. People tend to want spaciousness without hearing an echo. In other words, make sure there’s enough room to walk freely, but if the room is large enough for a circus tent, you should divide the room with a group of furniture to help with a cozy feel. While we’re in the bedroom, if you’re selling furnished or renting your home, it helps to have a decent mattress. A mattress is an investment – it’s never fun to purchase but it’s a necessity that must be done every 8-10 years. Like window coverings, the bed linens should be freshened often – yes, it can be expensive, but it could mean the difference of someone walking in and out, or lingering to imagine their life in your home.

6) Closets: should be bare for rental homes, and sparsely used in homes for sale. Shelves, and floors should be neat with items neatly put away in storage boxes – but not every surface used. Prospective users need to feel they have plenty of storage room.

7) Floors and floor coverings: how do yours measure up? Carpeting and room size rugs should be clean, free of stains and loose threads. If they’re old wood, they should be mopped and treated with a protective finish, new wood or wood look should be without lumps and bumps and the finish work done correctly.

8) Furnishings: whether you’re offering your home furnished or not, what’s there is a statement-what it says is up to you.

9) The never ending ‘Honey Do’ list- Consider hiring out jobs that you’re afraid to tackle. Just because your neighbor knows how to re-wire, paint every surface, add a room or porch doesn’t mean you have to try to do the same. DIY isn’t for everyone, no matter how much you want to or think you should. It could be less expensive in the long run to go ahead and hire that professional.

These are just a few items that you need to consider. Take a good long, hard look at your home with fresh eyes- as if you were walking in for the first time—what do YOU see? Write down some goals and see what happens. It’s a new year, a great time for new beginnings and fresh starts.

nergy plays a vital role in human beings. It is needed for our physical activities. Physics teaches us that energy is a property of objects which can be transferred to other objects or converted into different forms. In Newtonian Physics, there is a universal law of conservation of energy which explains that energy can be neither created nor destroyed. However it can change from one form of energy to another form of energy.

All living organisms rely on external sources of energy to be able to live, grow and reproduce. We have different energy resources available in the universe. The main source of energy in our planet system is the sun. We get the energy to live from the food system that depends on the sun, as well as from sunlight, itself. The physical energy we obtain from the food, water and air systems allow us to live and grow in our physical life, giving us physical energy.

The human being is basically not only a physical being; he is also a spiritual being in nature. When we reflect on the human creature, all are composed of soul and body. The physical body obeys the law of physics in all our life activities. Concerning the soul, religions teach about a god who rules over our soul. In Christianity, the Holy Bible teaches about the creation, by God, of heaven and earth. We were created by God in the beginning. In the creation story from the book of Genesis we learn that human beings are created in the divine image of God. We are not only the physical body, we also are the spiritual self: physical human nature and divine nature.

In the New Testament of the Bible, we read about dependence on God. (Matthew 7: 25-34). In this passage, Jesus speaks about God's care for both our physical bodies and our spiritual selves. Jesus also speaks about our spiritual nature in Matthew 10:28: “And do not be afraid of those who kill the body but cannot kill the soul, be afraid of the one who can destroy both soul and body…”

The Lord makes it clear we need spiritual energy for our soul. God is the source of this energy. We are able to access this by praying, reading Scripture, reflecting on the passages and applying them in our life activities. This kind of spiritual energy enables human beings to manifest divine love and the life force that binds the soul to the physical body. Unlike with physical energy, spiritual energy is unlimited and Chase Kenter (7) and Jack Sumner (8) will lead a team to Nationals this summer.

Highlands Hurricanes head to the Junior Olympics

The AAU Junior Olympics will be in Detroit, Michigan from July 26 to August 6, 2017 and the Highlands Hurricanes plan to attend. The Hurricanes will send swimmers Chase Kenter, second grader from Summit Charter School, and Jack Sumner, second grader from East Franklin, to compete. Kenter will compete in the 50-Freestyle, 50-Butterfly, 50-Backstroke, and the 50-Breaststroke and hopefully the 200-Free Relay. Sumner will compete in the 50-Breaststroke. The Hurricanes hope to send at least three more swimmers to join Kenter and Sumner in the 200-Freestyle Relay event.

Kenter and Sumner are exceptional swimmers and are expected to do well in their events. Though they were a full year younger than many swimmers in their age group, Kenter finished 1st and Sumner 3rd in the Mountain Swim League (MSL) All Star Meet last summer. (2nd place was Highlands Hurricane Swimmer Connor Hughes, who is a year older and has aged up.) Kenter holds 3 MSL records and is expected to set more records this summer. The Highlands Hurricanes is a Highlands Recreation Park Team that practices at the Highlands Recreation Park pool in the evenings during the week and on Saturday mornings. Attendance at all practices is not required. The only requirement to join is that a candidate be able to swim one pool length unassisted.

For further information please call Steve Hott, Head Coach at 828.421.4121 or the Highlands Recreation Park Pool at 828.526.1595.

Crews rescue man lost on USFS land

Macon County EMS and rescue crews located an individual Sunday, Jan. 8, who had apparently spent the night in the forest near Standing Indian Campground.

Macon County 9-1-1 received a call just before 3 p.m. Sunday requesting assistance locating a 44-year-old Danny Thomas who had possibly experienced vehicle problems and was last known to be in the area of US Forest Road 67 on Saturday.

Search crews from West Macon Fire and Rescue, the U.S. Forest and the Macon County Sheriff’s Department were able to locate footprints in the vicinity of the subject’s last known location and followed them for several hours into the forest until the subject was located around 8:15 p.m. in an area between Albert Mountain and Cowee-ta Hydrological Laboratory-Southern Research Station in Otto, NC.

Crews from Otto Fire and Rescue accessed the area from the Ball Creek Road area and transported the patient to EMS crews in the area.

Extreme weather conditions including severe cold and heavy snow combined with the location of the patient made extrication very difficult.

EMS crews transported the patient to a waiting air ambulance and he was airlifted to Mission Hospital in Asheville in serious condition around 2 a.m., Monday where he is being treated for cold-weather related injuries. One rescuer suffered minor injuries. Temperatures early Sunday morning were in the single digits and were around 12 degrees F when rescuers were able to extricate the patient this Monday morning.

increasing as it transfers and transforms from God to us. It allows mankind to do good things for its fellow human beings and for society.

Physics can explain “how” the universe functions, but only theology (spirituality) can explain “why” the universe should exist. Physics teaches about the physical energy to act, but God gives the spiritual energy to do a good act. Physics deals with matter and clarifies the form of reality, Spirituality deals with the spirit and inspires insight about transcendence or the ultimate reality.

All of us are living in the universe. We all are energy transformers in nature, physically and spiritually, through our activities. Our physical self helps to work for our livelihood. Our spiritual self helps us to regulate our life on doing good things. So Physical Energy and Spiritual Energy are seen as two aspects of the same reality.

‘No Man’s Land’ via Satellite at PAC Sat., Jan. 14

One summer’s evening, two ageing writers meet in a Hampstead pub and continue their drinking into the night at Hirst’s stately house nearby. Also starring Owen Teale and Damien Molony, don’t miss this glorious revival of Pinter’s comic classic. The broadcast will be followed by an exclusive Q&A with the cast and director Sean Mathias. This production is rated 15 & up. Tickets are available online: highlandspac.org, at the door or by calling 828.526.9047. Highlands Performing Arts Center, 507 Chestnut Street, Highlands.
