State budget boosts mountain medical training to alleviate doctor shortage in Western NC

Rivers Woodward grew up in a small town, but hadn’t planned on beginning his medical career in one.

Rivers Woodward, who took his medical training at the Asheville campus of UNC School of Medicine in 2014, hopes to open a family medicine practice in the mountains after completing his residency.

That changed when the Franklin native took part in an innovative program at the University of North Carolina’s School of Medicine that takes medical students interested in rural medicine away from the city.

Highlands Hurricanes defeat Jackson County Dolphins

On Thursday, July 13th, 41 members of the Highlands Hurricanes Swim Team traveled to Sylva, NC to take on the Jackson County Dolphins. The Hurricanes won 376 - 250, after a shortened meet due to lightening.

The Hurricanes brought home 153 ribbons, 66 of them blue. Thirty-seven of the 41 swimmers scored, setting 25 personal records (PR’s). Nine swimmers had 12 All-star qualifying swims, and seven team records were set.

The Hurricanes were led by Anni Geren who turned in a PR, had an All-star swim, set a team record on a Freestyle Relay and scored 24 points.

Andre Halldin, Savannah Byrd and Junior Olympic bound Finneas Garner each scored 18 points. Halldin set two PR’s and had an All-star swim. Byrd had a PR, a team record, and an All-star swim. Byrd had 12 All-star qualifying swims, and seven team records were set.

New swimmer to the Hurricanes, Matti Cohen set two PR’s, and had an All-star swim. Cohen set two PR’s, and had an All-star swim. Cohen set two PR’s, and had an All-star swim.

Walk your way through the ‘story’ on the Greenway at The Bascom

For the last six years, Read2Me of Macon County, a non-profit group whose mission is promoting the importance of early literacy, has worked to get books into the hands of children in the community and raise awareness on ways to raise a reader. This year, Read2Me teamed up with The Bascom and the town of Highlands to establish the Highlands community’s first StoryWalk®.

“We are thrilled to be celebrating the unveiling of our third StoryWalk – this one in the Highlands community,” said Diane Cotton, president of Read2Me. “We are excited to be partnering with The Bascom and are thankful for Mayor Taylor’s help in selecting the location.”

I want to revisit the impending August 21st Great American Solar Eclipse. On Wednesday, July 26 at 9 a.m., there will be a community meeting concerning the eclipse weekend. The meeting will be at the Highlands Community Building on N.4th and Poplar streets. Representatives from the Chamber of Commerce, the Highlands Eclipse Committee and the town public safety sector will be there to provide updates.

The meeting is intended to update folks in the business community about planning, preparation and providing for a possible large number of people forecasted to be in the community on the weekend before and the day of the eclipse. I encourage everyone concerned about the eclipse to attend this important meeting. The Chamber, Eclipse Committee and town first-responders will make brief presentations followed by a question and answer period.

I hope that representatives from the nonprofit service organizations, especially our downtown churches, will attend. I know several churches are planning late afternoon dinners for visitors in an effort to slow down a mass rush to leave the area after the eclipse. Traffic gridlock will be a prime concern that day.

I, along with other community leaders, continue to study and monitor issues related to the eclipse. I keep getting asked by concerned citizens about how many people will be in Highlands on eclipse day. The answer is that no one really knows, except we have to expect more than on a normal Monday. I don’t think the high predictions of 25,000 will occur, but we have to plan for that possibility.

I read an interesting article about The Great American Solar Eclipse in July/August issue of WNC Magazine. The article confirmed that Western Carolina will be in the total darkness zone of the eclipse. Highlands will be a “totality town.” Nevertheless, one illustration in the article revealed another fact. Cities as far away as Boone and Atlanta will experience periods of about 96% darkness during the eclipse. Now if local media in these areas get the word out that these areas will also experience substantial darkness, the attraction for driving up to places like Highlands for a mere 2 minutes and 33 seconds of total darkness may be diminished. To travel or not to travel, that may be the big question! How many people will be willing to traverse miles of traffic congestion for just a 4% difference in darkness?

A turnout like a July 4th weekend would be very manageable and great for business. That is my hope. Sallie and I are inviting out-of-town friends to come spend the night at our house and enjoy the eclipse. I’m following my own “eclipse in place” advice. Hopefully, I won’t be called away from the house that day for an emergency situation.

For those folks who can’t attend the Wednesday, July 26 meeting, another opportunity will be on Friday, July 28.

The main topic for the Community Coffee with the Mayor will be “Eclipse Prepping 101.” The Friday, July 28, 11 a.m. coffee is in the Hudson Library Conference Room.
Walter O. Sheppard, Jr, 97, Captain, USAF, passed away peacefully Monday July 10, 2017, surrounded by his family. He was born in Fort Myers, FL, at the old wooden hospital on Victoria Street June 20, 1920, lived and served the community his entire lifetime, but for five years of his early life in service of the US Army and the US Navy in combat of the Pacific Theater of WWII.

The son of Walter O. Sheppard, Sr., and Helen Digges Sheppard, Captain Sheppard graduated from Fort Myers High School in 1939, learned to fly while in school, and enlisted in the Army Air Force shortly after Pearl Harbor. Because of his talents and knowledge of aircraft, he was assigned as a Flight and Gunnery Instructor in both fighter and twin-engine bomber planes early in the war, at Stuttgart, AR.

After his repeated requests for combat duty were denied by the Army, Captain Walter applied for combat pilot needs in the Navy. He was only one of 30 pilots to receive Army Air Corps/US Air Force and Navy wings in WWII. Serving in the Pacific Theater, he was in command of a Flight of Navy Rescue planes, widely acknowledged as one of the most dangerous jobs in the war service. His squadron, his beloved PBY-5A aircraft “Super Duck” and crews were responsible for saving over 500 Marine, Naval and Army Air Force lives, including finding the battleship USS Indianapolis and Australian flight crews. Captain Sheppard received numerous awards for his service, qualifying for three Bronze Stars, Air Medal and other combat and service awards.

Walter continued his education after WWII at Stetson University, then attained his law degree (JD) from the University of Florida in 1950. During that time he married Ruth Spires Sheppard, his beloved wife of 47 years, who died in 1993. Walter was also predeceased by his beloved wife Ginger Bass Sheppard of nine years; his mother, father and two sisters, Virginia S. Holloway and Elizabeth S. Shands.

Funeral service were held at St Lukes Episcopal Church, Fort Myers Saturday, 15 July 2017. The family requests remembrances be made to St. Luke’s Episcopal Church, the Edison and Ford Estates, Ostego Bay Foundation Marine Science Center or the charity of your choice.

Online Condolences and memories may be shared on Walter's tribute page at www.Harvey-Engelhardt.com.

from the Chapel Hill campus to study in Asheville for their final two years of medical school.

Now Woodward, who received a medical and business degree this spring, hopes to open up his own family medicine practice in one of North Carolina's mountain towns after completing his residency. He sees the WNC program, which is centered around patients and places students in long-term internships in rural clinics, as a template of how doctors should be trained.

“It's the direction medical training and health care training is heading, and I think it's the direction it has to go,” Woodward said.

“The UNC School of Medicine's Asheville campus not only gives students exposure to the challenges and benefits of training in rural areas early on, it’s also creating a pipeline where promising medical students end up putting down roots and practicing in Western North Carolina,” said Dr. Robyn Latessa, the program director and assistant dean for the UNC School of Medicine-Asheville campus.

It's not that medical schools aren’t churning out enough doctors, rather it's that that many choose to stay in the urban settings where most of the nation's medical schools are based.

“The whole problem in the United States is that we may have enough providers, but they're unevenly distributed,” she said.

That's the primary reason why state lawmakers carved out an additional $15.5 million over the next two years in this summer's budget negotiations for the medical school's Asheville campus, said state Rep. Chuck McGrady, a Hendersonville Republican and one of the House of Representatives' main budget writers.

“Policy makers recognize that we have a shortage of doctors in rural North Carolina,” McGrady said. “This was a way of addressing that.”

Studies show that doctors tend to practice where they study and do their residencies, said Dr. Jeff Heck, the president of the Mountain Area Health Education Center (MAHEC), which houses the medical school and other health-care education programs.

“We want to make sure, as much as possible, we're training people who have a great chance of retention to rural areas,” Heck said.

The state money will not only increase the number of practitioners, but communities will be strengthened overall, he said.

“It's an amazing gift and an amazing opportunity for any area like ours that has so many health care needs and is really desperate for more professionals,” Heck said of the additional funding.

Woodward, the recent medical graduate, says the Asheville-based program gave him learning opportunities that may have been tough to come by, had he stayed in Chapel Hill with his classmates. He had close relationships with senior practitioners at nearby hospitals, and frequently reached out on slow days to see if there were any procedures he could observe.

While observing and doing clinical hours at a Spruce Pine clinic, he followed patients' cases closely, with patients able to reach him directly with their questions, and soon found he was invested in the area.

“I really began to feel like I had a responsibility to that community,” he said.

Western North Carolina needs more young doctors to follow Woodward's path, Latessa said.

The campus began in 2009 with just four students, and has 26 enrolled for the upcoming school year, she said.

The recent influx in state funding is part of a years-long plan to boost the numbers of medical providers in the rural, mountainous part of the state. Complementing the medical school at MAHEC are similar collaborative programs with UNC's Gillings School of Public Health and Eshelman School of Pharmacy, as well as Western Carolina University's nursing and nurse practitioner programs.

Those teaching those who plan to practice in rural areas need a different approach than what most medical schools offer, where many specialize early on and build their careers around specialties in surgery or other disciplines, Latessa said.

But rural practitioners tend to need to be generalists, with doctors treating a variety of ailments on a regular basis.

“Rural areas need physicians trained in the broad scope of medicine,” Latessa said.

Some of the biggest holes in coverage are in family medicine, surgery and psychiatry, Latessa said.

That's where the state money will come in, with plans to start up residencies in general surgery and psychiatry this year.

Change deniers say human activity doesn't have an effect on climate, even though most of us believe it does! (High school science shows simple cause and effects.)

What is more, even if you think it isn't a direct cause, why not err on the side of caution? The last time I looked, we all live on this one little Blue Planet we call Earth, and it needs us to take care of it.

I'm not concerned about me, but what kind of world are we leaving those who follow us?

So, thank you to our Franklin, Highlands and Macon County elected leaders for taking this “step” – all our “steps” together will add up.

You have shown true leadership in a cause that is certainly greater than us, in the here and now, for the future of Mother Earth.

3rd Annual ‘Peaceful Journey’ – A charity dining event at Paoletti Ristorante to benefit Hospice House is Sept. 27

Paoletti’s Restaurant in Highlands, NC will once again host the charity dining event “Peaceful Journey” in support of Hospice House Foundation of WNC (HHFWNC). Dining patrons will indulge in a decadent 4-course menu and wine pairing specially selected for the evening. The evening will be accompanied by a silent auction of fabulous items, including assortments of distinguished wines.

$300/person
($125 is tax deductible)

This year’s fundraiser is being thoughtfully planned by a committee comprised of three Highlands residents: Karen Grierson, Kathy Hart, and Cynthia Rosen, along with Hospice House Foundation of WNC Board members, Arthur Paoletti and Kathy King-Cotton of Highlands and Tania Duncombe of Cashiers.

“Peaceful Journey” 2015 and 2016 netted a combined total of $260,000! This is indicative of the astounding generosity of the Highlands / Cashiers communities and so very much appreciated.

HHFWNC is a 501(c)3 organization whose mission is to raise funds for a hospice inpatient facility for the far western region of North Carolina and northeast Georgia. Western North Carolina’s demographics speak volumes to the need for a hospice inpatient facility...roughly 25% of our area’s population is 65 or older; yet the closest hospice houses are over an hour’s drive for most people. The proposed hospice house in Franklin, NC will help ensure life’s final journey is one of compassion, comfort and dignity for the people of our mountain region.

HHFWNC has raised over $3 million towards its $5 million goal for its Capital project (including $1.3 million in challenge grants). Tentative plans are to “break ground” next August, 2018, contingent on raising an additional $1 million (when total funds raised reach $4 million). Our regional Hospice House could be serving hospice patients and their families as early as fall, 2019.
As part of an ongoing project, Read2Me set out to establish Story Walks throughout Macon County.

The first walk was unveiled in May of 2016 at the Rotary Loop along the Little Tennessee Greenway in Franklin. Through a partnership with Macon County and Mainspring Conservation Trust, Read2Me’s second Story Walk was erected on a stretch of the mile-long walking track that outlines Parker Meadows Recreation Complex in Franklin.

To branch out, Read2Me worked with Highlands Mayor Pat Taylor and The Bascomb’s Community Outreach Director Will Barclift to bring a Story Walk to Highlands in 2017. The Story Walk’s installation was completed last week and is ready for public viewing.

A Story Walk is a fun, educational activity that places a children’s story along a popular walking route in the community. Conceived as a way to inspire parents, teachers, and caregivers to take young children out of doors for physical activity and to learn, Story Walk helps build children’s interest in reading while encouraging healthy activity for both adults and children.

The three Story Walks in the county are interchangeable so each of the stories can be switched out and moved around so members of the community can enjoy different stories over a span of time.

The story, “And Here’s to You” is currently located in Highlands on The Bascomb’s property along the town’s greenway and will remain there for the next few months. Then, volunteers with Read2Me will switch that story with one of the other book titles located elsewhere in the county.

The Story Walk at The Bascomb is a permanent structure that will remain on the property for five years.

The 2017 Story Walk sponsors not only established the Highlands location, they also established a third Franklin location which will be installed later this summer featuring the book, “How Do You Wokka Wokka.”

Also new this year, Read2Me partnered with Macon County Schools STEM program to establish a STEM Story Walk featuring the book “Mouse Tales.”

The STEM Story Walk will be a portable story walk which can be moved to reach different groups and events in the community.

Read2Me partnered with Mainspring Conservation Trust to develop a board that specifically educates readers about all of the native animals that can be found in and around Macon County, which falls in line with the theme of the story.

The project was funded through the sponsors and local businesses and organizations like Signs Express, Russell Hawkins with Edwards Jones, Duke Energy, The Highlander, John Hamlin State Farm, the Macon County Public Library, Lions Club of Franklin, Entegra Bank, Franklin Tubular Products, Culpepper’s Architectural Salvage, TeTone, Tate Landscaping, and Jimbo’s Plumbing.

The idea for Story Walks was created by Anne Ferguson in Montpelier, VT., when she worked for the Vermont Department of Health. Ferguson was thinking about ways to prevent or lessen the impact of chronic disease on adults and children by increasing physical activity. She also wanted to find something that was fun for families to do together in natural settings.

If you are interested in partnering with Read2Me on future Story Walks, contact Britteny Burns at bparker.maconnews@gmail.com or visit Read2Me on Facebook.

As usual, I've been preparing for our upcoming vacation, a river cruise through the South of France, by reading books set in that locale. In a few instances, I've ventured beyond the South of France into other regions, and I've also been reflecting on past books I've enjoyed.

There are two mystery series I return to from time to time: M. L. Longworth's Verlaque and Bonnet Provençal mysteries and Martin Walker's French countryside series set in the Dordogne region of central France. The Longworth series set in Aix-en-Provence features Judge Antoine Verlaque and law professor Marine Bonnet tangled in various crimes. The descriptions of the countryside and the gastronomic delights are as entertaining as the whodunit aspect.

Walker's series features Chief of Police Bruno Courrèges, and the countryside has the same appeal. Bruno was wounded in the French peacekeeping force sent to Bosnia during the siege of Sarajevo before he settled in his fictional town to become Chief of Police. In the third book in the series, I discovered that tension exists today between the Chinese and Vietnamese communities in France, and I also learned about the history of these locations as I do for the mysteries that must be solved. I plan to download at least one of Walker's books to my Kindle to take along.

Who knows how I stumbled across Jean-Luc Bannalec's "Death in Brittany," the first in his Commissaire Georges Dupin series. Brittany borders Normandy, where we cycled in 2014. Because Normandy was beautiful, I'd like one day to explore Brittany as well. For now, that exploration will have to come via books. This series is set on the Breton coast in Pont-Aven, a town that Gaugin visited. The descriptions of the people, the food, and the seaside colors paint a vivid picture.

One of my favorite books starts out in Paris and travels French waterways to Provence. It's "The Little Paris Bookshop," and it's not a mystery. I'd describe it as sad, whimsical and uplifting all-in-one. I especially enjoyed the setting because our bike and barge trip in Burgundy sailed some of the same rivers.

I find that readers of what they consider serious literature often diss' mystery lovers, but I enjoy my mysteries as much for the settings and what I learn about the history of these locations as I do for the mysteries that must be solved. Another enjoyable read was Mark Pryor's "The Paris Bookseller," a thriller set on the banks of the Seine. Because I'd shopped the stalls along the river and seen the booksellers, I could envision it all in my mind as I read.

Finally, I can't forget the many books I've read that are set in France during WWII. Two stand out for me: "The Nightingale" and "All the Light We Cannot See." I've read so many books that detail the horrors and hardships of that period, that I'm finding it more and more difficult to get through them. I picked up an Alan Furst book, "A Hero of France," and after reading fifty pages, I thought to myself, "I just can't do this."

Instead, I read "A Year in Provence," an entertaining true story of the adventures you can have when you decide to live in a spot where you've always vacationed. I'm ready to start my tour of Provence and perhaps even dream of living there, but I'm sure the visit and some daydreaming will be enough for me.

FDR & origins of the modern presidency at CLE

The current presidency is the source of more scrutiny and controversy than any time in recent history. The Center for Life Enrichment is offering a relevant lecture with some insight on the topic—the evolution of the U.S. Presidency from Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal through WW II. Dr. William Lasser a Harvard Ph.D. graduate and current Distinguished Professor at Clemson University will be at CLE on Thursday, July 27 to speak from 10-12 about the role of the presidency in its various interactions through both the Democratic and Republican administrations up to the present day.

A teacher and writer in the field of American Government, Dr. Lasser will in his own words “Survey how the vast powers of the American Presidency in both foreign and domestic affairs have their origins in the New Deal and wartime administrations of Franklin D. Roosevelt. In many ways FDR transformed the presidency, and made it possible for the United States to become the world's largest economy and earn the title as a world superpower. But presidential power has also been used-and- abused-to wage undeclared wars, undermine the authority of Congress, and weaken our system of checks and balances.”

Anyone interested in American politics and concerned with the presidency in its current state, will not want to miss Professor William Lasser when his lecture will explore the implications of FDR's legacy for American politics in the 21st century.

To register for this event or for more information please call 526-8811 or visit www.clehighlands.com. Members $25 nonmembers $35. Students attend all $25 lectures for FREE.

I’m a firm believer that life just goes better with a cup of coffee. Can I get a witness? A hot cup of coffee adds a richness to both food and conversation. It would be hard for me to imagine a pleasant morning or an enjoyable breakfast without a cup of coffee.

Have you ever noticed the coffee cup at your table setting when you attend a banquet? It’s generally positioned upside down on its little round plate. If you would like some coffee, you place the cup in the upright position. That’s the cue for the server that you want coffee, and eventually your cup will be filled with delicious, fresh brewed coffee and life will once again have meaning and purpose for you. If you don’t wish to have coffee (which, by the way....what would you be thinking?), you simply leave the cup turned down and your coffee cup will remain sadly empty.

In each of the Synoptic Gospels (Matthew, Mark and Luke), Jesus tells the parable of the sower. In the parable, Jesus speaks of the critical role that soil plays in determining whether sowed seed will be able to germinate, grow and bear fruit. While seed struggles to grow on the hard ground of the path, or the shallow earth of rocky ground, or among life-choking thorns, beautiful and abundant fruit springs forth from good soil.

As I reflect on my life as a Christian believer, I recognize that my faith journey has been, and continues to be, a mixture of all types of soil. Even though I’ve tried to live a life of authentic Christian Discipleship for a few decades now, I confess that it is still very possible for the seed of God’s Kingdom to find the soil of my soul hard, shallow and uninviting.

Like an upside down coffee cup.

If you’re anything at all like me, you’ve probably experienced that the faith journey landscape is dotted with fulfilling mountains and discouraging valleys. On some days faith comes easy, and on other days it’s a struggle just to hang on.

Over the years I’ve come to recognize that the transformation of seed into fruit is God’s doing. The mystery of growth and abundance is God’s work. However, I’ve also come to understand that I do have a role to play. I have something to say about the quality of the soil in my own heart and life.

So on my better days I do the things that make for good, rich and fertile soil. I seek God’s holy presence in prayer, I listen for God’s gentle voice in the Holy Scriptures, I seek opportunities to gather at the Lord’s Table, I worship with fellow believers and I try to offer tangible expressions of Christ’s love to others.

Or in other words, I try to keep my coffee cup in the right position!
