The Room Tax explained; not everything is equal

- Part One -

Room Tax, also called Occupancy Tax, is a tax all lodging establishments – campgrounds, hotels, motels, bed & breakfasts and vacation rentals must add to their fees. It is collected across the state and even in some municipalities, like Franklin.

In Macon County by law, the 3% its establishments collect is given back to the areas that collected it; in this case Highlands, Franklin and Nantahala.

During the 2015-'16 fiscal year, Macon County collected $714,286.95 in room occupancy tax. Through April of this year, the county has collected $657,439.99.

The majority of the room occupancy tax collected in Macon County is generated in Highlands. In 2015-'16, $503,627.25 came from the tax levied by lodging facil-

Three cubs in a tree....

The Kreutzer family on Perquin Road enjoyed some free evening entertainment last Friday. Three cubs were chased up the tree by their barking dog. Once up in the tree, they shortly fell asleep. Note the cub lying over a branch with its back paws hanging down while it sleeps. Mom was in control at the base of the tree, sleeping as well. Once the cubs came down, they played, bothered Mom then off they went. The whole show lasted a good 45 minutes. The Kreutzer family kept their distance taking photos from their deck, with their pooch safe inside the cabin.

With HB 900, NC towns could get room tax money

North Carolina session law allows room occupancy taxes collected across the state to be spent to promote travel and tourism in the towns and counties in which it is collected.

Currently chambers of commerce and visitor centers are the main recipients of the funds. However, House Bill 900, which is currently making its way through the legislature, may soon change that.

The boards responsible for distributing the occupancy tax are directed to use their discretion in determining what meets the requirement of promoting travel and tourism, but House Bill 900 may give towns additional flexibility in spending occupancy tax dollars.

NC House Bill 900 — filed as the “Safe Infrastructure and Low Property Tax Act” — would allow towns to choose from one of three revenue-raising options. Each would be subject to voter referendum, and a town would be restricted to using one option, and only if its citizens approved it.

“I support HB 900 which is under legislative review this session,” said Highlands Mayor Pat Taylor. “HB 900 would allow towns like Highlands to choose one of three revenue options for a sales tax to improve infrastructure, especially in those areas that support tourism. The bill would permit the Highlands Town Board to vote which of the three options (1/4 cent city tax, prepared meals tax, occupancy tax) the town would or would not prefer. The voters would then decide whether to adopt the board’s decision. I support this bill, and think it is a good way for the board and voters to decide the best path for Highlands.”

The three options authorized by the bill include a municipal-only quarter-cent sales tax, a 1.5 percent prepared-meals tax, and a capped occupancy tax. The occupancy tax would supplement the existing ratio but would not allow a town to exceed the current cap

Eyes on our natural and man-made environment

HB 581-Revisions to Outdoor Advertising Laws will be voted by legislators some time this week, may be as this piece goes to press. I have voiced my opposition to our representatives. Let me share a blurb from the League of Municipalities that captures the concerns of towns across the state.

Highlands Mayor
Patrick Taylor

“Among its many troubling provisions, the bill gives billboard owners carte blanche permission -- with no input or discretion by local officials -- to relocate existing billboards to any place in a city or town with a commercial or industrial zoning component. Areas with no current billboards or those with mixed-use residential and commercial zoning would have to accept relocated billboards. And, even more problematically, when relocating signs, HB 581 would allow billboard owners to make the signs taller, larger, and digital, even if local ordinances would otherwise prohibit those upgrades.”

I will be bold and declare to our state legislators that the people of Highlands do not want large digitized billboards in town. Folks retreat to Highlands from cities to get away from such screaming advertising contraptions. Representative Corbin says he will vote against the bill.

Last week Josh Ward, Lamar Nix and I met with NC DOT Division 14 engineers concerning road issues in Highlands. We met in town hall and also took a tour of state roads needing attention. I am especially concerned about the need to repave US 64 from Main Street out north to the town limits, and NC 28 south. Both have major asphalt erosion problems, especially on the sides. We also examined the erosion and sediment issue on the lower end of Big Bear Pen below Upper Lake Road, and the intersection on NC 28 at Spring and Satulah Road.

I also discussed road improvements on NC 106 that could include a sidewalk and slight widening of the lanes. Some people fear that improving NC 106 would be like the severe construction that is now underway on US 64 about 12 miles north of Cashiers. The DOT engineers stated US 64 is rated for higher speeds and has a different highway classification. As a state road NC 106 would not be significantly redesigned to become rated like US 64.

Our meeting was very helpful. We will continue our dialogue so hopefully possible improvements can be made.

I also had a good meeting with a neighborhood group concerning plans to replace outdated galvanized water lines. The town is facing the problem of replacing in the coming years these 50-year-old lines in a number of areas. It is an expensive but necessary process.

I also signed on as a Climate Mayor this past week. In light of the withdrawal from the Paris Climate Agreement, a ground swell of hundreds of mayors across the nation have signed on to supporting and advocating policies that will help lower the nation's carbon footprint. As a Climate Mayor, I will advocate for green solutions that are economically sustainable. Maybe in the long run local grassroots initiatives could be more effective than a large scale national effort.

Did Trump's election really change driving habits?

After reading the letter to the editor in June 1st edition concerning The Trump Doctrine and the way people drive, I had never considered the fact that Trump's election has changed people's driving habits.

I understand that some of us want to blame the President for everything that is wrong in the world, but I think that this is obviously a stretch by any standard.

After reading his letter if you drive a large SUV or a truck it is "an armored symbol of their status and power" and they are deliberately trying to run you off the road because they are obviously Trump supporters. WOW!

that is set at six percent.

North Carolina House of Representative Kevin Corbin supports the bill and believes it will help municipalities across the state, specifically in his district.

"House Bill 900 will provide crucial financial flexibility to municipalities, helping to relieve pressure on local property tax rates and allow for more infrastructure investment that brings economic and job growth to local communities," said Rep. Corbin. This legislation would allow municipalities new revenue-raising options, and it's important to note that it can only be used with the approval of the voters. I believe in local control anytime you can have it."

According to Mayor Taylor, the possibility of additional revenue in Highlands would allow the town to address pressing needs without having to raise property taxes to do it.

"The town has a long list of infrastructure needs such as road paving, sidewalks, water and sewer lines, recreation maintenance, parking, broadband, etc.," said Mayor Taylor. "Right now, the major source of revenue for these projects is property tax. A new revenue stream that is not carried solely by local residents would be welcomed. I am not sure how the revenue could be spent as proscribed by the legislation, but whatever the result it would give the town more flexibility in addressing infrastructure needs."

Franklin Mayor Bob Scott has also championed for the legislation, saying that additional funds and flexibility in room occupancy dollars would allow for infrastructure improvements to do things such as sidewalks, which are utilized by tourists. He said, room occupancy dollars shouldn't just be spent to get people to town, but should also go to help maintain and improve the things that keep people here and returning to town once they arrive.

Mayor Scott has also asked the Franklin Tourism Development Authority (TDA), which oversees the disbursement of room tax money, to consider a 3 percent room occupancy tax increase for Franklin, which would double the town's current tax on lodging which is 3% on top of the county's 3%.

When adversaries are the enemy, totalitarianism follows

In response to Mr. Capron's letter June 8, I am troubled that he throws around language like "Leftist operatives" (with a capital L), but doesn't seem to be at all wary of Rightist operatives. I'm troubled that he and his great leader, Mr. Trump, call their opponents enemies. Vigorous debate against adversaries is essential to the survival of democracy. As a Times editorial puts it, "An adversary someone you want to defeat. An enemy is someone you is must destroy." When your adversaries are labeled the enemy, that is the path to totalitarianism.

Some common Real Estate misconceptions/myths that work against buyers & sellers

By Wanda Klodosky
Landmark Realty Group

Most consumers purchase or sell a home about once a decade. While that is a relatively low amount of experience, with so much information available online and on TV about home buying, selling, and flipping, many think they know a lot about real estate. Here are some common myths and misconceptions that can end up being costly misconceptions.

1. Inaccurate information online. One site that notoriously provides consumers with inaccurate information is the popular - Zil-

low. Consumers should not believe a Zestimate. The person/computer making this analysis has never entered the home and probably never been to the area. Don't believe everything you read.

2. Setting your home price higher than what you expect to receive. When a savvy buyer sees a home that is overpriced their reaction varies between not looking at the home to looking and offering an even lower price than they normally would. Another pitfall of the overpriced home is the invariable price reductions that will often make the consumer suspicious of the home. Remember home selling is a numbers game - the more real buyers you can get through the door, the more likely you are to sell your home. A true market value pricing will increase your traffic and give you a solid basis for holding firm to your price point.

3. Listing agent vs. buyer's agent to save money. This idea doesn't take into consideration that

Lord Banjo and the Royal Dad

I was born in New Orleans and don't recall my doggie parents, but I know that one of them passed their Great Pyrenees genes on to me. Since Louis XIV named the Great Pyrenees the Royal Dogs of France, it seems only fitting that I hail from New Orleans which was founded by the French.

I have my canine parents to thank for my royal lineage, but I'm thankful every day for my people parents. So when I say I have the best-ever dad, I mean my two-legged Royal Dad; and the Royal Mum's not too shabby either. After all, she's the one who found me on Craigslist and enrolled me in Doggie School so I could learn to be as well-behaved as Dad's wonder dog, Tinker.

Yes, Tinker was Dad's favorite, so for the first few years after I joined the family, I mostly hung out with Mum. Dad was busy playing ball with Tinker and laughing as she wrestled with sticks and dug up rocks in the yard. In fact, Dad tended to diss' me because I didn't have any interest in balls or sticks or rocks. I've always been content to lie around and have my belly rubbed. And, when Mum or Dad petted me, Tinker was jealous. I took the hint and spent my days reclining beneath Mum's desk while she worked. Mum says I make a fabulous footrest.

Back in the day, Dad occasionally walked Tinker and me together, though our competition to see who would be in the lead could make for some tense moments. Tinker was a sweet girl, but she was used to being top dog and awfully competitive.

When Tinker went to Doggie Heaven, we all missed her, but Dad took it especially hard. And, even though I didn't start chasing balls, Dad began to spend more time with me. He soon discovered I was pretty lovable and that in addition to being a fantastic footrest, I was a wonderful walker. It wasn't long before we two formed a bond and developed a morning routine. I may come downstairs with Mum first thing to go outside, but the action starts when Dad gets up.

Dad gives me my morning meds, feeds me, and then we go for a walk. The signals that a walk is imminent are the sunglasses coming out of the cabinet, the ballcap going on his head, and the leash coming off the hook. It tickles him that I pay attention and perk up, and then we're off. Some days, I even get a second walk in the afternoon.

Dad's awesome at lots of things, but he has one amazing talent that tops the rest: At 6 feet

ities in Highlands compared to $165,890.22 in Franklin and $44,769.70 in Nantahala.

So far in 2017, Highlands has collected $465,929.37 compared to Franklin's $152,992.53 and Nantahala's $38,518.09.

North Carolina allows the room occupancy tax to return to the town from which it is collected with the oversight of a Tourism Development Commission (TDC) or Tourism Development Authority (TDA), as long as the funds are used for the promotion of travel and tourism for that area.

There are several entities responsible for the disbursement of funds for travel and tourism in Macon County, but their connection to room occupancy tax dollars varies greatly.

In Franklin, there is the Franklin TDA. In Highlands, there is the Highlands Chamber of Commerce and Visitor Center and a Tourism Development Commission (TDC).

Then, for all of Macon County, there is the Macon County TDC which technically oversees both the Highlands TDC and the Franklin TDA.

Franklin's Chamber of Commerce, executive director Linda Harbuck and Highlands' chamber president Bob Kieleyka, sit on the Macon County TDC and their areas' TDA and TDC.

Each organization varies on appointments and responsibilities but all are expected to promote travel and tourism in Macon County.

The amount of room occupancy taxes collected in the county varies just as much as how the tax is redistributed and used and what agency distributes it.

In Franklin, it's the TDA. In Highlands, it's the Highlands Chamber of Commerce and a TDC.

In Franklin, at least 2/3 of the proceeds must be used to promote travel and tourism and the remainder can be used for tourism-related expenditures. It is distributed by its TDA.

The law is murky when it comes to what exactly constitutes "travel and tourism" and/or "tourism-related expenditures." Franklin and Highlands clearly read the law differently.

Highlands

In Highlands, there is no clear "separation of powers" as originally laid out (more on that in Part 2).

According to Kieleyka, the Highlands Chamber & Visitor Center administers the occupancy taxes raised in the Highlands area that is collected by Macon County and distributed back to Highlands. The TDC is only responsible for oversight and reports to the county. The account is independently audited annually and the report is submitted to the County Manager.

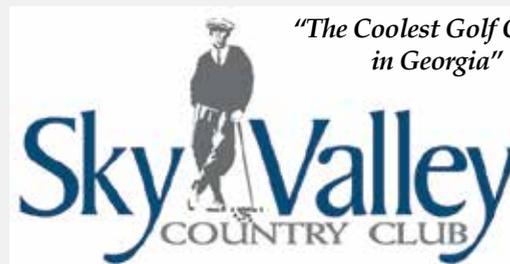

Members of the Highlands TDC, who are appointed by the county, are Macon County Commissioner Jim Tate who represents the Highlands district, Rick Siegel, Tucker Chambers, Chris Alley, Wolfgang Green, Jack Austin, Bill Futral and the chamber's Bob Kieleyka who is a non-voting member.

Members represent lodging, restaurants and real estate enterprises which all benefit from tourism. They serve for three-year terms. It meets quarterly.

The Franklin TDA is appointed by the

the listing price includes a commission structure for both the listing and a buyer's agents. Often the result is that the listing broker will still receive the entire commission factored into the price, saving no money for the buyer. A listing agent has to disclose in a multiple listing service if they have an agreement with the seller to lower their commission should they become a 'dual' agent, i.e. representing both parties. In a dual agency situation, the agent is also prohibited from giving either party advice. As the listing agent and seller usually have a long-term relationship, this leaves the buyer without representation, thus at a disadvantage most costly to the buyer.

4. Selling yourself to save money. There are exceptions here as to every rule, but unless you have the ability to get professional photography, advertise widely online and be available for calls, emails and showings at all hours, you are already behind the curve when compared to a property listed by a professional in a multiple listing service. Negotiating the contract is another issue. Without extensive experience by owner sellers find that they end up at a disadvantage in the situation. There is also substantial proof that a buyer will automatically think they can make a better deal on a home offered for sale by the owner.

5. Recouping after renovating. There are certain situations when renovating is a good idea, but bear in mind the taste factor. If a prospective buyer does not like the renovations, they will likely not pursue the home as they will feel they are paying for something they will have to redo. A better course of action is to consider renovating or refurbishing only items that are in bad repair and then pricing the home to reflect its current level of finishes. According to studies done and published in Realtor Magazine, the return on investment for renovations varies yearly but averages around a 60% return.

In conclusion, it is always a good idea to work with a professional Realtor when buying or selling real estate. There are many factors that change constantly in real estate law as well in local markets. Realtors spend many hours in class and in the field to learn the true facts about property buying and selling. Use their knowledge to your advantage to avoid potential pitfalls.

Town of Franklin Council members and are comprised of businesses owners who represent the tourism industry. The TDA serves as an authority and operates separate from the town of Franklin government. As an authority, the TDA is bound by session law as to its responsibility and function as a board – technically, the same goes for Highlands.

Franklin's TDA was established in March of 2008. The board's rules of procedure states that the TDA is permitted to use room tax dollars to approve projects and make grants that, in its discretion promote travel and tourism. The Franklin TDA's rules of procedure specifically state that the TDA will not fund requests for operating expenses such as salaries, rent, purchases of insurance, and payment of utility expenses such as electricity, water, and sewer services.

Franklin's TDA operates with an annual budget of $113,000. Room occupancy tax collected above that amount is placed in the board's reserve fund. Businesses or organizations wanting to request grant funds from the Franklin TDA must do so two months before the event's dates. In the past, the Franklin TDA has funded grant requests for 5k fundraisers, festivals such as this weekend's Scottish Tartan's Festival, and an annual request from the Smoky Mountain Center for the Performing Arts for marketing. In addition to the grant requests approved throughout the year, the Franklin TDA also funds a marketing budget established by Premiere Marketing that promotes various events in the town on social media, in state publications, and through the TDA's website. It meets weekly.

The Franklin Area Chamber of Commerce is a membership-based organization that receives no revenues from the Franklin TDA and unlike Highlands has nothing to do with the distribution of Franklin's room occupancy tax. Franklin's chamber is considered a 501c3 non-profit and recently just moved into a new location. Even with the move and its rebranding as a welcome center, the facility hasn't received any room occupancy tax dollars. The new building is being funded through a capital campaign and donations.

Spirituality of Time

Rev. Dr. Francis Xavier Arockiasamy B.Th., M.Ed., Ph.D. (Physics) Administrator, Our Lady of the Mountains Catholic Church, Highlands.

Time plays a vital role in our life. The day and night of our lives and all our activities are done and only recognized on the basis of time. All organizations, whether government, business, industry, religious or purely private, are run by the time factor. All living beings are bound in their life spans by time. Even non-living, less mutable things are subject to change and deterioration over time. Recognition of the time factor varies from one entity to another, but none is exempt from it. We teach our young to make good use of time, not to waste it! When we think of time it is usually in the related terms of how long something will take or when a thing will occur. Let us reflect on Time in physics and spirituality, especially in the Bible.

In physics, time is defined by its measurement. Time is what we read on a clock. The measurement of time was based on the mean solar day until 1960. The mean solar day is the time interval between successive passages of the Sun at its highest point across the meridian. It is averaged over a year. In 1967, an atomic standard was adopted for the second, the System International unit of time.

Some sort of clock is needed to measure any time interval. Atomic clocks provide a better standard for time and these make use of periodic vibration taking place within the atom. One standard second is the time taken for 9 192 631 770 periods of the radiation corresponding to unperturbed transition between hyperfine levels of the ground state of a Cesium-133 atom. In atomic clocks, an error of one second occurs only once in 5000 years. So Physics gives us a measurement of time, and indirectly allows us to identify points in time. While it helps us to regulate all our activities as individuals and in common, it cannot advise us how best to use time.

When we reflect on the time factor as we see it in the Bible, we find so many verses which speak about the factor of time in relation to mankind. A well-known example is found in the Old Testament, from the book of Ecclesiastes 3:1-8, "There is an appointed time for everything, and a time for every affair under the heavens. A time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to uproot the plant. A time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to tear down, and a time to build. A time to weep, and a time to dance. A time to scatter stones, and a time to gather them; a time to embrace, and a time to be far from embraces. A time to seek, and a time to lose; a time to keep,

2 inches tall, he can rest in his recliner and hang his arm down to rub my royal belly as I lie beside him. That touch is all I require to be a happy boy. When he gets distracted and falls down on the job, I signal him with my royal paw, and the touch resumes.

I may have missed out on growing up with a Doggie Dad, but I'm sure I have the best-ever two-legged dad. And, to be sure he knows how much I love and appreciate him, this Father's Day, I plan to wake him up with a big fat slobbery kiss—and then take him for a walk. Best-ever gift for the best-ever dad-- wouldn't you agree?

and a time to cast away. A time to tend, and a time to sew; a time to be silent, and a time to speak. A time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace." It is interesting that words penned several thousand years by Solomon are completely applicable to today.

We know that we are creatures of time by the way we set our clocks and watches in our daily lives to know the hour, and use calendars to know the day, month, or year. We have a good times, bad times, funny times, etc. What do we mean when we speak of such times? These are often happenings in our relationships, or in remembered or imagined relations with others. It is our duty as Christians, to build up good community with good relationships with others so that our time may be best used for the purposes Christ has for us.

We know seasons and measured time, but we have to make conscious use of them. In the New Testament, from the Gospel according to John 2:1-11, at the wedding at Cana Jesus says, "My hour has not yet come." He speaks about the divine plan of a time to suffer and to die on the cross, and to rise again on the third day. Jesus speaks about the fulfillment of God's plan at the right and appointed time. Even though God is timeless, Jesus Christ who is the Son of God was living as a human being on this earth; His plans had to take time into account.

For us, time should be a measurement of our limitation in knowing our Savior better and in doing good for others. We have to reflect on how well we spend the time factor. Do I take time to commune with my Lord to know Him and to know His will for me? Am I available for the service to others that He wants of me? This is the Spirituality of Time: 1) know it is a gift but not an unlimited gift, 2) know it is given to be used for God's purposes, and 3) only He knows its span and we must be always alert to Him. In the Gospel according to Mark 13:32-33, Jesus speaks about the need for watchfulness: "But of that day or hour, no one knows, neither the angels in heaven, nor the Son, but only the Father." We only have until then. Be watchful! Be alert! You do not know when the final time will come. Be ready to meet your Lord!

In the book of Hebrews 13:8, we read, "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today and forever". Everything changes in this world except God. Only the Trinity God is timeless, time does not apply to him. But we are limited beings, we must make use of time in our physical and spiritual lives for him and for the benefit of others.
