New Highlands Planning Director to start June 26

The search for a Highlands Planning & Development Director/Code Enforcement Officer is over.

This week Town Manager Josh Ward announced that Andrew Bowen has been hired — replacing Randy Feierabend who held the position full-time for one year and part-time for six months. His salary is $57,000 plus benefits.

He was Maggie Valley’s Planning Director for the past three years. Before working in Maggie Valley, Bowen worked 1 ½ years as an intern with the Jackson County Planning Department.

Bowen, 27, is a native of Haywood County and hails from Waynesville where he lives with his wife Laura, their 2 ½ year-old daughter and their family dog. They will be adding a son to the mix — any day now.

“The perfect nuclear family – a girl, a boy and a dog,” said Bowen. “You can’t ask for more of the

NC budget negotiations begin with House, Senate and Governor

North Carolina leaders now have the first step in the budget process complete, with both the House and Senate approving $22.9 billion budgets.

Now, with both the House and Senate approving their versions of the budget, the two-year spending plan is in the negotiation stage. The two chambers will negotiate portions of the bill before sending it to Governor Roy Cooper for approval.

Gov. Cooper has already spoken out against the budgets approved by the General Assembly, calling for more spending measures across the state. Governor Cooper said his administration plans to be part of the budget discussions that are taking place this week between the House and Senate. He also encouraged the public

Our son was married this past weekend, and his bride is from Asheville. Sallie and I stayed at a hotel next to the Town Hall and the park.

When in another town, I put on my mayor's hat and take a tour to determine what the other municipality is doing. While walking around I ask myself how does Highlands compare, and can I learn something new?

I walked through Asheville’s Pack Square Park next to its big and beautiful Town Hall. Like our Kelsey-Hutchinson Founders Park, the park is next to the business district. Both parks are urban, community parks on public property. Big Asheville and little Highlands operate municipal parks with similar rules.

Now the big difference between the two towns is the scale. The Asheville Town Hall is about a hundred times larger than the Highlands’ Town Hall. The same can be said for the size of the park. We have a rather compact park, while Asheville’s park is much larger to accommodate larger populations.

But the features in both parks are practically the same. Each park has a stage for concerts. Both parks have fountains including an interactive water feature for children. Each park has grass areas and handicap accessible walkways. There are benches and tables in both parks, as well as art work and historical monuments that capture community history. Pack Square has a moving veteran memorial. While not in our park, we, too, have a veterans memorial on town property. Streets traverse both parks.

Let me share with you some of the rules that both parks have. No skateboarding, panhandling or smoking are permitted in the parks. Also, dogs must be on a leash and owners are required to cleanup all pet waste. Dogs are not allowed in the fountains.

The Asheville park does not allow alcohol consumption in the park without approval and a permit. I know some folks believe our Town Board is too strict with the same policy in Founders Park. Like Asheville, our park is on public property and the state requires municipalities to follow policies congruent with state alcohol regulations. Informal gatherings involving alcohol on public property are not permitted in this “alcohol control” state. Some states have laxer laws where even recreational marijuana consumption is on the verge of being permitted in designated public spaces, but not North Carolina. Drugs or illegal substances are banned in Pack Square and Founders Park.

There are two rules in Pack Square that I would like to see Highlands consider. Camping and bathing in the fountains are not allowed in Pack Square. While this is not a problem for us now, having those rules in place will allow police to enforce them if and when an incident occurs.

Hope to see everyone at the Low Country Shrimp Boil to benefit Kelsey-Hutchinson Founders Park on June 17. Tickets are available at the Highlands Chamber, the Dry Sink, or at www.foundersparkhighlands.org. There will be good food, adult beverages and great music.

Dear Editor:

I write in response to Kim Bonsteel’s June 1 letter entitled “The Trump Doctrine and the way people drive” in which he exercises ecstatic outrage at the Red State blog’s characterization of Trump’s response to the Left’s condemnation of his conversation with the Russian Ambassador. The statement to which Mr. Bonsteel took such violent exception, “I Did It, I’m Glad, Screw You,” was the Red State blog’s characterization of that response, not Trump’s own words.

The Left had complained that Trump disclosed “classified information” to the Russians. In fact, Trump told the Russians about a new Jihadi approach to blowing up airplanes—a matter in which Russia and the US have common concerns. It therefore served our national security interest to alert Russia to the new approach, in order that the two countries might cooperate in developing countermeasures.

For that reason Trump, quite properly, defended the exchange. Mr. Bonsteel apparently subscribes to the view that “Cet animal est très méchant, Quand on l’attaque il se defend. “This animal is dangerous: it defends itself.”

In the course of the entirely appropriate conversation with the Russian Ambassador, Trump did not disclose the source of that information (apparently, Israeli intelligence). No, that information was disclosed by leftist operatives inside the US Intelligence Community, who leaked the conversation to the media. Trump’s opponents in the Intelligence Community and the Media are so eager to destroy Trump that they do not mind revealing sources and methods of intelligence, thereby endangered our national security, so long as they can, momentarily, damage Trump.

Mr. Bonsteel’s concern for vehicular safety aside, one wonders why he does not pay any—let alone equal—attention to leftist disclosure of sensitive information, assaults on free speech, violent attacks on Trump supporters, and Leftist calls for Trump’s assassination. But then, Mr. Bonsteel, who describes himself on his Twitter page as a “long-time progressive” apparently believes in the old progressive maxim “No Enemies on The Left.” Pity.

59 of which are in three districts and four in the business district.

The Prince House has joined two individual houses in Highlands which are more difficult to nominate because they have to qualify on their own merits and can’t ride on the merits of a district. It took 14 years to complete a process that began in 2003, when the Prince House was first proposed for recognition by the National Register.

Being placed on the National Register does not impose any significant restrictions on a house. Instead, the honor is regarded as a recognition that the house is worthy of preservation for its historic value to its community, its state, and the nation. The Prince House has met all the criteria necessary to qualify for the National Register, and the Highlands Historical Society is honored by its acceptance.

A bronze National Register plaque is being installed at the front entrance to the house.

A few weeks ago, I was frustrated with viewing Zestimates (Zillow’s on-line estimate) of properties on the Plateau. Many “Zestimates” were 50% less than the properties had previously sold for or were assessed for tax purposes. I read the formulae that Zillow uses and was befuddled that they could be so vague and subjective yet portray the Zestimate as a thoughtful appraisal.

Lo and behold, other property owners were angry as well. A group of Chicago home builders filed a class action suit last week against the real estate marketing company Zillow, whose automated valuation, not an appraisal. Further, the formula states:

We use proprietary automated valuation models that apply advanced algorithms to analyze our data to identify relationships within a specific geographic area, between this home-related data and actual sales prices. Home characteristics, such as square footage, location or the number of bedrooms, are given different weights according to their impact on home sale prices in each specific geography over a specific period of time, resulting in a set of valuation rules, or models that are applied to generate each home’s Zestimate.

It certainly seems to me that no company should be able to use a formulae across the country without knowing an area or actually seeing the individual properties. Some prospects interested in purchasing a home may forego seeing a home by comparing the Zestimate to the list price thinking that a listing is overpriced. I do hope that the class action suit gains traction and succeeds to eradicate Zestimates entirely.

On the other hand, Zillow just sent me a buyer this morning who was notified by their automated system that one of my listings matched their criteria for a new home. Thus, exposure for my listings is appreciated but slandering my listings with low-ball Zestimates is loathed and resented. Isn’t that called a Love/Hate relationship??

LAst year for the first time, we went on a European river cruise. We’ve taken several bike and barge trips over the years, one in the Netherlands and two in France, and one biking/sailing trip to the Greek Islands. A river cruise was a new experience for us. Not only did we not bicycle, but we got to sleep in a decent size bed and shower in a bathroom with an actual separate shower. On a barge, you shut the door to the bathroom and pick up a handheld shower head for luxury bathing.

We traveled the Danube, so true to form, I researched books set in the area and created a reading list. I always like to prepare for a trip by reading novels set in the cities we’re visiting. Oh, I read a travel book or two about Prague, Vienna and Budapest, but novels seem to bring the cities to life for me. I read three Viennese mysteries, two set in 1899 and another in 1934. I read a modern novel about expats in Budapest in the ’90s who wish they were in Prague and a mystery that takes place in 1936. A “Da Vinci Code” type mystery in modern-day Prague and a WWII-era novel about the final days of the German regime set the stage for our stay there. Once I’d covered all three major cities, I felt like I was ready.

We’ve planned trips via the internet in the past, and they’ve worked out fine, but all that planning takes time. This trip, we were fortunate to be able to work with a local travel agent to plan our travel. She advised us to spend a few extra nights in Prague, where we landed before traveling to Nuremberg to embark on the cruise. She booked the cruise, airfare, and Prague hotel, so we were never overwhelmed. She also helped us select several Prague tours.

We had visited the Habsburg Exhibit at the High Museum in January, and that helped get us in the spirit. Like most folks, I was familiar with Archduke Franz Ferdinand, whose assassination led to WWI, but wasn’t familiar with the extent of the Habsburg dynasty. For example, I had no idea Marie Antoinette was a Habsburg.

While cruise attire was described as comfy and casual, I enjoyed being able to dress a bit nicer than we have on our barge trips. I also was not nearly as exhausted as I am on our cycling trips and better able to enjoy the leisurely evenings. Not that our days were spent lying around; no, we enjoyed walking tours almost daily in the port cities on the Danube.
American dream than that!”

The family is house-hunting in Highlands where they will be relocating as soon as possible.

Bowen attended Western Carolina University, where he obtained a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science with a minor in Business Administration, followed by a Masters in Public Affairs. He has also recently obtained the North Carolina Certified Zoning Official status by completing coursework and exam at the UNC School of Government in Chapel Hill.

Town Manager Josh Ward first met Bowen at a NC League of Municipalities meeting which Bowen attended with the Maggie Valley Town Manager.

“I thought he’d be a good fit then but didn’t want to try to lure him away. Then he called to ask if the position was still open in Highlands,” said Ward. “We are excited to have Andrew working for the Town of Highlands. We feel with him being from the area and his experience with working in a tourist driven, resort town in Western North Carolina, Highlands will be a natural fit.”

In addition, due to his work in the nearby area, he has numerous contacts at the regional and state level that will assist him with his position here in Highlands, said Ward.

Bowen said he and his wife had been looking for a place to relocate and still be close to Waynesville so Highlands was a great opportunity.

He said there are similarities between Highlands and Maggie Valley.

“They are both tourist towns and both have a large second-home community and they both want to be the best place to visit when you come to Western North Carolina,” he said.

He said obviously there will be challenges.

“It’s a different town, and there is a lot to learn – the ins and outs of the UDO and getting to know the community, which is my favorite part,” he said.

Interestingly, he and his Planning Board wrote Maggie Valley’s first Unified Development Ordinance (UDO) using Highlands’ UDO as what Maggie Valley should pursue in the future.

“Highlands has a very impressive environment which isn’t like other neighboring towns, which is in part due to its zoning regulations,” said Bowen. “It’s necessary to build a business area that is cohesive with the natural environment and you can see that in Highlands.”

Bowen begins work for the Town of Highlands on June 26.

Who Are the Mexicans?
Presented at the Center for Life Enrichment by Angélica Lozano-Alonso

With views on immigration being a hot topic in the headlines these days, this will be one of those lectures you will not want to miss! Octavio Paz, one of Mexico’s Nobel laureates, once wrote that Mexicans and Americans had a hard time understanding one another because Americans didn’t know how to listen and Mexicans didn’t know how to speak up. Join us on Wednesday, June 14, Time: 2-4 p.m. for the lecture “Who are the Mexicans?” as Dr. Lozano-Alonso looks at some of the foundational socio-cultural patterns in Mexico and explores them, in part, through references to Mexican literature as well as spending some time discussing contemporary Mexican identity and Mexican Americans in the U.S. today.

Mexican-Americans are Americans who are of full or partial Mexican descent. The United States is home to the second-largest Mexican community in the world, second only to Mexico itself, and comprising more than 24% of the entire Mexican-origin population of the world. As of July 2015, Mexican-Americans made up 11.1% of the United States’ population, as 35.8 million U.S. residents identified as being of full or partial Mexican ancestry. The United States and Mexico have one of the most dynamic love-hate relationships of any two neighboring nations in the world, especially as the United States becomes increasing Latino in its demographic composition.

Presenter Angélica Lozano-Alonso received her Ph.D. from Cornell University in Hispanic Studies in 2001. She is Associate Professor of Spanish at Furman University and specializes in Latin American literature, with an emphasis on Mexican literature and Latino literature. She will answer questions during her presentation such as “Who are the Mexicans?” “How do they see themselves?” “What, if anything, distinguishes Mexican culture from Anglo-American culture in the United States?”

The U.S. Mexico relationship is on a slippery slope these days, so please plan on joining us at the CLE Lecture Hall to learn more about the history behind these two neighboring nations. The CLE Lecture Hall is located in the lower level of the Peggy Crosby Center. Students are able to attend all $25 lectures for FREE. Members $25, nonmembers $35. For more information on this lecture or CLE please call 526-8811 or visit www.clehighlands.com.

H-C Chamber Music Festival begins

The 36th annual Highlands-Cashiers Chamber Music Festival will open with its first special program of the season, Enoch Arden: A Melodrama.

Held Sunday, June 25th at 3 P.M. at the Bardo Performing Arts Center at Western Carolina University in Cullowhee, it will be performed by George Brown, Dean of Western’s College of Fine and Performing Arts, and Festival Artistic Director and classical pianist, William Ransom.

Enoch Arden was written in 1864 by Alfred, Lord Tennyson during his tenure as England’s Poet Laureate and in 1887 Richard Strauss set the narrative poem to music. It is the tale of an impoverished fisherman who, trying to provide for his family, leaves his wife and three children and becomes a merchant sailor. Arden suffers many hardships but does, eventually, return home.

The Bardo Arts Center, a destination for the arts in Western North Carolina, is home to an elegant 1,000-seat performance hall, and provides an acoustically and visually superb setting for Brown and Ransom as they perform, Enoch Arden: A Melodrama.

The festival continues with the first in its regular concert series June 30. As in previous years, Friday and Sunday concerts will be held at the Highlands Performing Arts Center on Chestnut Street and Saturday and Monday concerts are held at the Albert Carlton Cashiers Community Library. Tickets may be purchased for the entire series or for individual concerts.

Along with the regular season concert series, the festival will include other special programs along with Feasts and Salons. This season audiences will be entertained at Buck’s in Highlands and Cashiers, Chestnut Hill in Highlands, Camp Merriewoode in Camp Merriewoode in Cashiers, and the Highlands Presbyterian Church for the Family Concert and Ice Cream Social as well as the Interlude Concert. The two Buck’s concerts and the Church concerts are open to the public. Chestnut Hill, the Family Concert, and the Interlude Concert are sponsored by the Cullasaja Women’s Outreach.

For tickets and more information on the Highlands-Cashiers Chamber Music Festival visit them online at h-cmusicfestival.org or call (828) 526-9060.
The Highlands Performing Arts Center will present the National Theatre of London’s production (Live via Satellite) of Peter Pan on Saturday, June 10 at 1pm. All children, except one, grow up…JM Barrie’s much-loved tale. When Peter Pan, leader of the Lost Boys, loses his shadow, headstrong Wendy helps him to reattach it. In return, she is invited to Neverland, where Tinker Bell the fairy, Tiger Lily and the vengeful Captain Hook await. A riot of magic, music and make-believe ensues. A delight for children and adults alike, Sally Cookson (NT Live: Jane Eyre) directs this wondrously inventive production. All children under age 18 are welcome FREE of charge, when accompanied by an adult. No tickets are needed for children. Adult tickets are available online: www.highlandspac.org, at the door or by calling 828-526-9047. Highlands Performing Arts Center, 507 Chestnut Street, Highlands.

$2.4 billion in economic impact in 2016, supports nearly 37,000 jobs and delivers almost $435 million in federal, state, and local tax revenue.

Some of that economic bounty stems from a resurgence in new home construction at golf communities in the state. A report prepared by TEConomy Partners found that six communities – spread from the mountains to the coast - generated build-outs of more than 100 new homes last year. Several other golf communities also had significant new home activity as well.

“It’s very gratifying to be able to deliver such positive news to key decision-makers on behalf of our industry,” said Brian Stiehler, golf course superintendent from Highlands Country Club in Highlands, N.C. “Golf is so much more than a game. In addition to the economic impact, the game contributes to the social fabric of many communities and provides green space and habitat in urban areas.”

North Carolina is home to 534 golf facilities (at least 10 in the Highlands-Cashiers area) which, in addition to driving residential demand, play a key role in the state’s tourism economy. Major golf industry manufacturers such as John Deere and Golf Pride also have headquarters in the state. In August, golf will draw extensive international interest when Quail Hollow Club in Charlotte hosts the PGA Championship, which is expected to generate upwards of $100 million in economic impact.

The golf industry delegation met with Secretary of Commerce Anthony Copeland and Lieutenant Governor Dan Forest in separate sessions. They also delivered a series of presentations to a joint meeting of the House and Senate Commerce Committee. Senator Rick Gunn read a proclamation from Governor Roy Cooper designating “May 24, 2017, as Golf Day in North Carolina in appreciation of the golf industry’s contribution to our state.”

“This was my fourth visit for Golf Day and I believe legislators and their staff members are now very familiar with and grateful for the role the industry plays,” said Stiehler, a certified golf course superintendent and master greenkeeper. He serves on the board of the Carolinas Golf Course Superintendents Association. “They recognize us now when we walk in and it’s amazing how much information they retain from year to year. We are being heard. It was a good day.”

In addition to Stiehler, the golf industry delegation included representatives of the Carolinas Golf Assn., Carolinas Section of the PGA of America, Carolinas Chapter of the Club Managers Association of America, American Society of Golf Course Architects, NC Golf Course Owners Assn. and Golf Course Superintendents Association of America.

North Carolina,” said Rep. Corbin. “This is the fourth consecutive year of teacher pay raises in North Carolina, but almost all state employees are getting a significant pay raise in this year’s House budget as well.”

In terms of education, the House budget fully funds K-12 enrollment growth, increases textbooks and digital materials funding by $10.4 million in 2017-18.

“This House budget ensures we are spending appropriately to fund all our needs, continuing to raise salaries for teachers and state employees, setting aside billions in savings and cutting taxes for hardworking North Carolinians too,” said Rep. Corbin.

The House budget would also eliminate the North Carolina Pre-K waitlist by 2018-19, increasing the number of Pre-K slots to approximately 29,300 in FY 2017-18 and 31,700 in FY 2018-19.

The House budget proposal also provides an additional $150 million for disaster recovery, funding that supplements the $200.9 million in funds provided by S.L. 2016-124 (Disaster Recovery Act) bringing the total State funding for Disaster Recovery to $350.9 million. Both the governor and the Senate also set aside recovery money for Hurricane Matthew victims – the Senate included $150 million while Cooper had $115 million – and for the state’s “rainy day” reserve fund – $363 million in the Senate plan compared with $313 million in Cooper’s.

The House budget also transfers an additional $263 million to the Savings Reserve to bring the total held in the “rainy day fund” to $1.82 billion, the largest balance in the Savings Reserve since its inception.

The House budget cuts taxes by increasing the standard deduction by $1,000 for married filing jointly taxpayers and surviving spouses, by $800 for heads of household, and by $500 for single and married filing separately taxpayers.

The Senate rolled its so-called “Billion Dollar Middle-Class Tax Cut” plan into the budget, which was a focal point for the Senate. The Senate approved the legislation last month, calling for lowering the personal income tax rate from 5.499 percent to 5.35 percent in 2018 and the corporate tax rate from 3 percent to 2.5 percent by 2019. The plan also would expand the standard deduction and make changes to mortgage interest deductions and child tax credits.

One point of contention in the budgets comes to proposed cuts to the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program or SNAP — commonly referred to as food stamps. The senate’s budget changes the provisions for the state’s eligibility requirements for the federally funded program. The change wouldn’t save the state any money, because its federal funds, but the change would mean an estimated 133,000 people in the state would lose access to the program.

Under current requirements in North Carolina, people can qualify for the program if they receive other government assistance benefits, such as disability payments – even if their income level is higher than the maximum income for food assistance. Known as “broad-based categorical eligibility,” the same policy is used by 38 other states. For a three-person household, $26,000 is the current maximum annual income to qualify for food assistance. But under the current law, if that same household receives other types of government assistance, it could earn $39,000 annually and still receive food assistance.

The N.C. Department of Health and Human Services released numbers on who would be impacted and said that 132,902 people across the state would lose food assistance if the change is in the final budget. Of those, 51,236 are age 18 or younger – and could therefore lose access to free and reduced-price school meals.

According to the N.C. Department of Health and Human Services, the Senate’s proposal would mean 517 people in Macon County would lose benefits, 164 of which are under the age of 18.

The House did not include a budget provision that changes eligibility requirements for the federally funded Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, or SNAP – commonly known as food stamps.
Praying for Jerusalem’s Peace

A first blush, you may be tempted to think, “Why pray for Jerusalem’s peace, we’re hurting here with rank division and violence at every turn, we need peace right here in the good old USA!” And you would be correct. A thorough-going peace in our country is a prerequisite for order, civility, and truth. Peace is a scarce commodity. A thorough-going peace in our country is a need. Therefore, it makes sense to pray for peace for Jerusalem.

According to John 14, it’s a peace that can only be brought by the Prince of Peace, spoken of in Isaiah 9:6. Jesus the Christ is the epitome and embodiment of Peace. In- deed, he is the one and only grantor and guarantor of everlasting Peace. Every other type of peace pales in comparison to the thorough-going peace that only God himself brings. According to John 14, it’s a peace that the world cannot give. Therefore, it makes sense to pray for peace.

There are three principal reasons to pray for Jerusalem’s peace. The first reason is that our Creator-Father has chosen her for the place that his name would dwell therein as his name’s abode.

The second reason to pray for Zion’s peace is that he has chosen her and therefore calls us to our knees on behalf of her peace. We pray for the peace of Jerusalem because he has chosen her and every other type of peace pales in comparison to the peace of Jerusalem. The first reason is that our Creator-Father has chosen her for the place that his name would dwell therein as his name’s abode.

The second reason to pray for Zion’s peace is that he has chosen her and therefore calls us to our knees on behalf of her peace. We pray for the peace of Jerusalem because he has chosen her and every other type of peace pales in comparison to the peace of Jerusalem.

Finally, the third reason that we are called upon to pray for Jerusalem’s peace is because of who he is who is the Prince of Peace, spoken of in Isaiah 9:6. Jesus the Christ is the subject and fulfillment of Isaiah’s prophecy. It is Jesus who is the epitome and embodiment of Peace. Indeed, he is the one and only grantor and guarantor of everlasting Peace. Every other type of peace pales in comparison to the thorough-going peace that only God himself brings. According to John 14, it’s a peace that the world cannot give. Therefore, it makes sense to pray for peace for Jerusalem.

the Peace of Jerusalem, for Jesus the Prince of Peace, that he would come and forge an everlasting peace for all who accept it, him.

There is a renewed hatred for Jerusalem and Israel, for God and what he has chosen, in our day. The varied acts of terrorism that we witness every day, a.k.a., the absence of Peace, is directly related to the lack of Jerusalem’s total peace. Let us commit to obedience in following the recommendation of the Bible, to “Pray for the Peace of Jerusalem.” It will be better for everyone.
