Updated Land Use Plan will help town navigate Highlands' future

Though the word "zoning" is considered a dirty word in many areas of the south and Western North Carolina, in Highlands the enactment of zoning and the formation of Land Use Plans has made Highlands what it is today — a place that protects the natural environment, while enhancing the town's village character and preserving the community's cul-

Changes made to MC Community Funding Pool

The Macon County Community Funding Pool was established in 2000 as a way for the county to address the needs of non-profits.

Non-profits provide essential services for residents ranging from victims of domestic violence through REACH, to getting books to children in the community through the library's Reading Rover book mobile. They fill a void that local government agencies don't fill, so the community would likely do without them.

As a way to not only show appreciation, but to ensure their sustainability, 17 years ago county commissioners earmarked a portion of the budget to be distributed though the community funding pool to help fund qualifying

Highlands Hurricanes win at Murphy

On Saturday, November 11, the Highlands Hurricanes swim team traveled to Murphy, NC to compete in the 2017 "Fall Fun Splash" swim meet against the North Georgia Rapids (NGR) and the host team Cherokee County Aquatic Club (CCAC).

The Hurricanes won, scoring 339 points while CCAC scored 231 and NGR scored 192.

All 19 of the Hurricanes scored in the meet and the team brought home 78 ribbons out of 84 swims, setting 11 team records. Two Hurricanes, Chase Kenter and Conner Hughes, now have a combined six Junior Olympic qualifying swims that secures their spot on the national team to compete in Des Moines, Iowa next summer.

The Hurricanes were led by the two Junior Olympic Cham-

Let's keep Highlands our 'Happy Place'

After the Town Lighting I attended the last auction Al Scudder conducted. I congratulated Mr. Scudder for creating a landmark Highlands business and said Scudders would be missed. Al has always radiated great joy and happiness in doing his work.

This last auction and other events make some think Highlands is in the midst of change. Many folks have recently told me Highlands is not what it used to be. It isn't, and it won't be the same 20 years from now. Even with inevitable changes, I am optimistic Highlands can shape future change in positive ways.

In 1976 Scudders opened on Main Street. Think about how unique it was for the time and how it became a Highlands tradition.

Two recent articles have shaped my views about how we can maintain what we value about Highlands. The first article by Dan Buettner, the founder of Blue Zones Communities, identifies happiness as a critical indicator of a quality community.

Buettner contends research on longevity is correlated to living in a "happy

community" where people are personally and civically engaged in meaningful activities. Folks living in these communities throughout the world are connected to other people, to nature, and have a sense of purpose that is usually driven by spiritual values. These factors, along with diet and physical activity, result in happy and healthy communities where many people live active lives well into their 80s, 90s and even beyond 100.

I see Highlands as being a "happy community." In essence, the above description encapsulates a core value that we should aspire to while navigating the turbulent waters of change. In my next term I hope our community develops and embraces this Blue Zone model. I invite citizens and community organizations to work with me in this effort. For more information Google "Blue Zones." Joseph F. Coughlin, Ph.D., says it all, "Aging well is not about finding a place to rest. It's about living in a place that pulls and pushes you out of your rocking chair."

Amid the national healthcare debate, and local hospital concerns, a big concept has been lost. Healthy living is a means of avoiding excessive reliance on an expensive healthcare system. Buettner's Blue Zone concept focuses on lifestyle as a means of avoiding dependence on the "medical/pharmaceutical industrial complex."

Ecotherapy is another related move-

Keep the 'American Dream' (and the Mortgage Interest Deduction) alive

Dear Editor,

As expected, the House of Representatives passed H.R. 1, the Tax Cut and Jobs Act last Thursday, November 16th. The final vote was 227-205 with 2 members not voting. We anticipate there will also be those in the Senate that may hold an opinion that the mortgage interest deduction no longer deserves protection.

What those legislators fail to consider is how limiting incentives like the Mortgage Interest Deduction would harm home values and keep more Americans from purchasing a home. The MID is an important benefit, not just for the millions of current

I need a little Christmas

Here's how it started. First, I smiled when a friend emailed just past Halloween that she'd like to have a few girls over for cocktails but needed to apologize and warn us that her Christmas decorations were already up. Then, my husband and I were driving down the street and saw a yard with two lovely, lighted reindeer standing next to a huge pumpkin. I commented, "I know the stores already have their holiday decorations up, but this is quite possibly the earliest I've seen a yard decorated." It was November 7th.

Next, I laughed when I saw a Facebook cartoon depicting a turkey proclaiming that November belongs to turkeys—not elves—and got a kick out of an indignant letter to Miss Manners in the Sunday paper. The writer wanted Miss Manners to back her up in declaring that decorating for Christmas this early is just plain wrong. Wisely, Miss Manners said it was not for her nor the reader to make that decision.

There I sat, someone who's never decorated until after Thanksgiving, suddenly considering joining the early decorating contingent. Ever since I'd received the email from my friend, the urge to decorate had been growing, and my spontaneous search for a Santa hat only made it worse. I wanted to take a holiday photo to send out and had to drag out all my decorations in search of the hat. I never did find the hat, but I did find myself thinking, "Gee, these boxes are spread all over the guest room now, so why not commence decorating?"

The only thing holding me back was knowing the housekeepers were coming

the next week, and I always prefer to decorate a clean house. After they left, however, all bets were off.

Because we finally succumbed to getting an artificial tree a few years ago, keeping a tree alive for six weeks wasn't an issue. I was having a hard time coming up with a good reason not to go for it. After all, I'm like a child when it comes to Christmas. I love the decorations, the baking, and especially the music.

Fortunately for my husband, when I play my collection of Christmas CDs in my office all day long for weeks on end, he doesn't have to hear them. In years past, he's had to listen to them at least on Saturday and Sunday mornings with his coffee and newspaper. He'd still have to do that, except that our ancient stereo bit the dust this year. That means I can no longer pile five CDs in the CD player and put them on repeat.

I have loads of "Christmas music with no words," as my sister calls it—Mannheim Steamroller, Windham Hill, George Winston—and can easily listen to those peaceful sounds nonstop. Of course, I also have plenty of traditional Christmas collections with Nat King Cole, Bing Crosby, Frank Sinatra, Andy Williams, and even Perry Como.

It was thinking of the music that did it. I could hear the song "I need a little Christmas" playing in my head, except the words were, "I need a little magic, a little joy, a little counterbalance to the nightly news." And that, my friends, is how it came to pass that our tree went up November 14th.

PS. Please join me 12/2 after the parade for a book signing with Lord Banjo at the Molly Grace in Highlands noon – 2 pm and at Books ment that I learned about in a Parkrx-america piece. It was recently featured on NBC News. A growing number of physicians are now prescribing daily walks in nature rather than solely relying on drugs and medications. The evidence reveals this kind of nature therapy is very effective in restoring physical and mental health.

Simply put, people who get out and walk in nature are happy. We have an underused medication in Highlands, it's called the Highlands Greenway. Like our park, it is a great health and happiness resource for our community.

So, while we are facing change let us not forget to keep Highlands a happy community. The Declaration of Independence acknowledges our right to pursue happiness. Let happiness be a guiding community principle.

homeowners who depend on it, but also for renters looking to make the transition into homeownership.

All told, the MID is vital to the stability of the American housing market and the broader economy.

Criticism of the MID is nothing new. But even the harshest critics of the MID should agree that tax reform efforts that raise taxes on homeowners completely miss the mark.

Unfortunately, reform proposals pending before Congress would cap the MID while eliminating other important deductions like the state and local tax deductions. The result: a potentially harmful tax hike on homeowners

Members of the Highlands-Cashiers Board of Realtors® and Multiple Listing Service, like Realtors® across the nation are closely watching the progress of tax reform. We are asking for everyone's help to urge our representatives to take a "do no harm" approach for the nation's 75 million current homeowners, as well as aspiring homeowners still waiting to enter the market. That means maintaining current tax treatment for homeownership and real estate investment throughout the tax reform debate.

Realtors® believe the Mortgage Interest Deduction is as important as ever, and the American Dream is on the line. We are hopeful the Senate will do the right thing.

Ingredients:

- 1½ cups organic millet, soaked for at least 8 hours
- ½ cup organic amaranth, soaked for at least 8 hours
- 6 cups water
- 2 bay leaves
- 1 medium onion, diced
- 2/3 cup celery, diced
- 3 garlic cloves, minced
- 1 tablespoon of organic unrefined coconut oil or ghee
- 2 teaspoons dry sage leaf, crumbled
- 1 teaspoon dry thyme leaf
- 1 teaspoon herbs de Provence

Medea Galligan
MS Nutrition, CHHC, AADP

- ½ cup dried unsweetened cranberries, chopped
- ¼ cup walnuts, chopped
- Celtic sea salt and/or Herbamare, to taste

Instructions:

1. Bring millet, amaranth, water, and bay leaves to a boil. Cover, reduce heat, and cook for 30 minutes. Remove bay leaves.

2. Sauté onion, celery and garlic in coconut oil or ghee over medium heat until tender, but still firm. Add herbs and sauté for about 30 seconds to release flavors. Add veggies to cooked grains, chopped dried cranberries and walnuts, and stir to combine thoroughly.

3. Add sea salt or Herbamare, stir well, and adjust seasonings to taste.

For a pretty holiday presentation, use a cup or bowl to create a mold. Rinse the cup in cool water, pack with grain mixture, and immediately invert onto a serving plate. Herbs de Provence is a wonderful herb mixture that, in addition to rosemary, tarragon and thyme, also contains lavender flower, and the dried cranberries and walnuts add a wonderful color and texture.

• H-C HOSPITAL NEWS •

We're thankful for our community healthcare providers

The feedback from our first round of Town Halls made it clear that while community members viewed our physician and provider team as one of our greatest assets, they were also concerned about turnover, which may lead to worry about provider shortages – a nation-wide problem for rural communities.

In this column, I'll focus on the current state of provider staffing across Highlands-Cashiers, clarify the types of providers we're graced with, and define the types of care they offer.

The provider profile for our nation's rural hospitals has changed dramatically in the last two decades as physicians increasingly chose urban practice locations and specialty care, causing a 20% reduction in primary care provider numbers.

According to the National Rural Health Association, there are now an average of 39 primary care providers per 100,000 people throughout the rural US, as compared to 52 per 100,000 just 20 years ago. This reduction means that the healthcare industry is now looking at a looming shortage of primary care providers, to the tune of 50,000 over the next decade. Further, rural practitioner shortages contrast starkly with urban areas that have a relative excess of providers in nearly all specialties.

In the past, physicians provided the great majority of medical care for rural communities; now, it is increasingly common for physicians to work in collaboration with a nurse practitioner and/or physician assistant to provide team-based care.

Nurse practitioners and physician assistants have received advanced education and clinical training, and have become integral members of medical care teams across the country. They improve access to care, which pions, Chase Kenter and Finneaus Garner, and Savannah Byrd.

Kenter won all five of his races, set five personal records, scored 35 points and set four team records which qualified him for the Junior Olympics in four events.

Garner and Byrd both won four out of five races and each scored 2nd in their 5th race for 33 points each while setting three personal records each. Byrd also set a team record.

Elias McKim did well winning two races, setting two team records and earned 27 points for the team. Junior Olympian, Con-is especially important in rural communities like ours, and enable a more collaborative, team-based care model.

Another concern I frequently hear about is the perceived lack of providers for children. This is where Family Practice Physicians come in. They are primary care practitioners who have been trained to provide care to patients across all age groups, including prenatal care and well-woman care, pediatric care, and all manner of acute illness care.

If a patient needs a specialist referral, a family practice doctor supports that specialist in understanding the whole patient.

Dr. Robyn Restrepo recently joined us in August as the first Hospitalist at Highlands-Cashiers and will also provide community support as another Family Practice Physician.

I'm excited that we're continuing to build our primary care base and also extending specialty care access to more people, creatively.

We added our first satellite specialty clinic in October, with the arrival of Franklin-based orthopedic surgeon Dr. Mark Moriarty, from Angel Medical Center.

We've established more walk-in clinics with expanded hours of availability and same-day appointments, because we know that illness rarely strikes when it's convenient.

I'm proud that HCH and our affiliated practices are also home to five board-certified physicians, two physician assistants and one nurse practitioner.

As we enter the holiday season, I want to acknowledge our talented and dedicated providers, who partner with our care team to make the Highlands and Cashiers communities stronger and healthier.

ner Hughes, won a race, set a team record, had two personal records and qualified for Junior Olympics in two events and scored 23 points. Layla Baback had five personal records, set a team record and also scored 23 points.

Chloe Stiwinter had five personal records and scored 22 points. Ellie BySura scored 22 points while setting two personal records. Jelehna McKim scored 21 points, had two personal records and set two team records.

Vivian Kennedy scored 18 points.

non-profit organizations serving Macon County.

Having trouble filling vacant seats on the community board, Macon County Manager Derek Roland began looking at the composition of the funding pool. He suggested changing the number of board members from 12 to 13 to prevent a tie and establishing a new set of guidelines to better streamline the process.

Since 2015, Roland has included $75,000 in his annual budget to be distributed through a grant application process – up from the original $50,000. The community funding pool board reviews the grant applications and makes recommendations to the county commissioners for approval.

The new 13-member board is: Patrick Betancourt - Macon Program for Progress; Robert Smith - Peggy Crosby Center; Andrew Anderson - REACH of Macon County; (pending approval) - Macon County Community Funding Pool; Emily Ritter - March of Dimes; Tyler Shook - Rotary Club of Highlands; Rick Westernman - Habitat for Huanity; Diane Cotton - Read2Me; Shelia Jenkins - at large; Bobby Contain - at large; Kyle Garner - at large; Karen Wallace - at large; Jennifer Jones - at large.

In the 2015-'16 budget, the Macon County Community funding pool allocated $75,000 to 12 organizations in Macon County. There was a total of 22 organizations who applied for funds with requests totaling $153,719.

Highlands organizations who applied for funding included the Community Care Clinic of Highlands, which received $5,658 of their $9,000 request to purchase medications for patients visiting the clinic; The Highlands Community Child Development Center requested $10,000 and received $6,250 for facility improvements; The Literacy Council of Highlands which received funds to support the tutoring program that services children in the Franklin area; Read2Me that requested $7,000 and received $3,894 to support early literacy programs which included establishing a Story Walk in Highlands this year in partnership with The Bascom.

Deck the Halls and Remodel Your Kitchen?

What factors influence a Buyer's decision on a new home? Other than size and location, a remodeled kitchen probably tops the list of an item that will speak to a buyer. Having remodeled 3 kitchens in my home ownership, I can relate to that sentiment. Everyone loves to have an updated, easy to use kitchen in their home. It is often the gathering place for friends and family. The statement that it is the 'heart' of the home is spot on. That said, it is not a fun project to undertake while you are using your home.

But when should you undertake that project? For those who use their homes as a summer getaway, that's an easy decision. Do it now. Not only for the convenience of not being in residence during the remodel, but also to potentially save money in the process. For those of us who live here year round, the answer might still be do it now.

One factor that makes the winter a good time to remodel the kitchen is lower pricing on appliances. We all just went through the sales frenzy of Black Friday and Cyber Monday so you know that those deals get extended between now and the end of the year for many large ticket items, including kitchen appliances. Big box stores have major appliance discounts going on at the moment.

Wanda Klodosky, BIC
Landmark Realty Group,
828-526-9520 • 404-550-4364

Flooring, tile and faucets tend to have their lowest pricing during the winter months as 'new' products come out in early spring so retailers want to empty their shelves of the current styles. Even if you can't begin your project right away, now could be the time to make some of the key purchases.

In general, this is a great time to make interior home improvements on your mountain home. The local contractors tend to have more flexibility in their schedules in the wintertime, especially when it is a job that is not weather dependent. This could also be a cost saving item for you when you are not competing with the summer rush of upgrade and repair items that will keep a contractor running from job to job.

Has your mountain home been on the market for a while without an offer? Are you considering listing your home next season? An investment in a new kitchen now while the savings are available could be your key to a more successful transaction.

SPIRITUALLY SPEAKING.

Spiritually speaking about 'Spiritually Speaking'

Dr. Mark Ford, Pastor
First Baptist Church
Highlands

Every week, I or someone else in our fellowship of ministers has the privilege and opportunity to share with the community at large in this space provided to speak about things spiritual – thus the section title, “Spiritually Speaking.”

Our space is surrounded by articles about the community – local news of interest, happenings, and advertisements. These articles are dealing with the concrete events and potential material investments that may interest the people in our area or visitors passing through. They are rightly seen as the real and meaningful for the present time. We are kept up with what has happened, what's going on, and what is in the future. These are the real and the material matters of life.

But the “Spiritually Speaking” section is about spiritual matters that transcend the moment and the concrete – so we think. The very word “spiritual” conjures up the ethereal and intangible. It is about something “other” than the existentially real and even what is important for the moment. The spiritual is a metaphysical addendum to life that we can resort to when the things we count materially real and important fail us.

But those of us who submit these articles every week under “Spiritually Speaking” have a different point of view. We believe the “spiritual” is the ultimate reality, believing Paul when he said, “Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation. The old has passed away; behold, the new has come.” Simply, to be a follower of Christ and established in Him changes everything. The things of this world are fading fast in the light of the reality and concrete presence of Christ in the midst of our lives!

God is spirit the Bible tells us. The Holy Spirit is His presence in us. But when we pursue the “God-man” Jesus Christ, that which we thought in this life was important, and all those things that mattered to us – these will soon give way to the real reality. That which we call “spiritual” will turn out to be all that matters and that which is real. When I am loving God and being loved by Him who is love, I lose sight of the world around me in terms of importance. All that remains is God and neighbor. The matters and material things of this world lose significance in light of my being enveloped in the Eternal Light.

Christmas is about God taking on human flesh. We call it the incarnation, the first Advent. I see this as the tural and historic heritage.

This was the subject of the November Planning Board meeting Monday night.

With eyes to the future, the Highlands Planning Board is now updating the town's 2005 Land Use Plan by using parts of the 2014 plan that was never completed. With the help of Highlands citizens, a plan will be developed that will see Highlands 20 years into the future.

According to Town Planner Andrew Bowen, since the first zoning map was drawn in 1962, Highlands has been firmly committed to utilizing zoning codes and environmental protection ordinances to protect both the character of the community and the sensitive environment that surrounds it.

To do so, the town has utilized a combination of a zoning map and zoning codes – both of which have changed over time – development ordinances and land use plans to determine appropriateness for new development both commercially and residentially.

The first Land Use Plan was adopted in 1989 "to maintain the plateau's high quality of life" as illustrated in its mission statement: "Preserve, protect and enhance those gifts of nature which make up the unique quality of our town and its environs."

In both the 1989 and 2005 plans there were categories presumably in order of importance. In 1989 they were The Natural Environment, Residential Areas, Commercial Areas, Community Resources, Municipal Government, and Municipal Services.

In 2005 categories (presumably in order of importance) were Residential Areas, Commercial Areas, Cultural and Historic Resources, and Natural Environment.

The 2014 Comprehensive Land Use Plan expanded some of those categories to include Land Use in general, Recreation, Municipal Services such as electrical, water, sewer, waste removal and recycling, broadband, transportation as it applies to streets and sidewalks, and Public Safety as it applies to the police and fire departments.

Spiritual Eternal One taking on humanity so that humanity can know the Eternal and Spiritual – our God and Creator. In coming to us and wrapping Himself in flesh, He redeems us – body, soul, and spirit. Christmas is the Spirit God introducing us to the really real through Jesus Christ. I know truth, love, joy, peace and hope because of His coming. I come to know what is eternal, important and real because of God the Fa-

Bowen noted several words and phrases that reoccurred in each Land Use Plan and in the 2014's start of a plan: historic preservation, protect drinking water, residential zoning, recreation, environmental protection, limit commercial growth, low impact development, vegetation, municipal services, beautification, Main Street, screening, slope protection, trees, natural areas, stormwater, multifamily, annexation, capital planning, BMPs, parking, housing density, impact fees, ridgeline, community, anti-litter, environment, central business district, zoning ordinance, uniformity, parks, clear cutting, greenspace, culture, watershed, broadband, benches, conservation, small town, ETJ, public/private partnership, pedestrian, native plants, walking district, aesthetics, economic development, and sign requirements.

As the board moves forward, Bowen said it's important that these common themes be recognized in the future plan.

"In looking towards the future of the community, it is important to first seek out these recurrent community priorities and aspirations because they outline the true character of Highlands," he said.

To ensure community involvement in the formation of a new Land Use Plan, a digital Land Use Survey will be available on the town's website very soon and everyone is encouraged to participate by filling it out online.

"It's important that we get as much input as possible," he said.

The two previous Land Use Plans are being used as jumping off places. Bowen said the ideas in them aren't new, but priorities have changed as the town has grown. Questions concerning those reoccurring themes will be in the survey.

Answers to the survey questions will likely become priorities for the new Land Use Plan.

Bowen hopes to have the survey completed by the December or January Planning Board meeting. He said once the board OKs the questions, the survey will go live.

HCP's FREE holiday program is Thurs., Dec. 14

Early HCP Christmas program: Father Mike Jones of the Highlands Episcopal Church (center), Virginia Talbot (right), HCP program coordinator, then and now.

On Thursday evening, December 14, beginning at 7:00 p.m. at Highlands Performing Arts Center, 507 Chestnut Street, the Highlands Cashiers Players will present their annual free Holiday Program that has been a feature of Highlands Christmas celebrations for 21 years.

For this year's 22nd program, the theme is Have A vae ahHolly, Jolly Christmas as the evening will include a funny holiday quiz for the audience and several amusing holiday stories, read by HCP actors. Holiday songs interspersed with the readings will be performed by a special 12-voice ensemble from the 50-voice Mountain Voices regional chorus, directed by Beverly Barnett of Franklin.

And to top off the evening's entertainment, hot cider along with cookies and other refreshments will be served after the performance for the audience and performers in the PAC reception room. And all of it is free of charge—it's the Players Christmas gift to the community, co-sponsored by Highlands Performing Arts Center.

Coordinator Virginia Talbot, HCP actor, play director, and Board member, has participated in and organized the event for almost of its 22 years. She remembers when it all started in 1996 with a modest but beautiful program in the Episcopal Church of the Incarnation with priest Father Mike Jones participating with the actors. Anyone who comes once, she says, usually comes again and this year, the evening of Thursday, December 14 is going to be especially fun. ## Have You Fixed Your Dirt Crawl Space?

There are three things that destroy materials in general and wood in particular: water, heat and ultra violet radiation. Of those, water is by far the most destructive.

Protect your home from:

- Mold
- Bugs
- Structural Damage
- Smells & Odors
- Loss of Storage Space
- Radon Gas
- Rising Energy Costs

The earth in your dirt crawl space is the major source of moisture in your home! This moisture is carried up into your house from the natural upward air flow created from rising heat.
