Employee housing high on Planning Board list of topics

Employee housing in Highlands’ seasonal market has been an issue for decades – probably as long as Highlands has been the go-to place for wealthy lowlanders.

As noted by Highlands Historian Ran Shaffner, the Prince House, recently listed on the National Register of Historic Places, was formative in the evolution of Highlands as a seasonal recreation-based economy during the mid-20th century.

“The historic period from 1935 to 1967, during which Elizabeth Wright Prince lived at and maintained the property as a boarding house, is important because her small operation served a different type of clientele from the visitors and tourists that populated the hotels, inns, and motels in town,” wrote Shaffner. “Included among these were small business owners and salaried workers who serviced the vacationers and tourists in town as well as former or prospective residents, relatives, and friends.”

HPD officer and family still reeling from effects of Hurricane Irma Hurricane Irma wreaked havoc throughout much of the southeast and here in Highlands where the home of Highlands Police Officer Thomas Parker family was hit particularly hard.

When Irma passed through the mountains of North Carolin- na it brought devastating winds and heavy rains to an area that was already soaked from weeks of heavy rain storms. Many large trees were uprooted and caused extensive damage to homes and power lines.

Two very large trees toppled

Completed with assistance from Missouri Bell Telephone Company.

One lane expected to be open Friday

The N.C. Department of Transportation announced an emergency pipe replacement project is currently being done on the Highlands side of the Cashiers Portion of Cashiers Road is closed for repairs

Fun for the whole family!
Cashiers Road delays explained

Last Thursday was a slow day. Normally I am in my office each morning, but leave by noon to work in my pottery studio. If something comes up in the afternoon, I may get a call.

Last Thursday I worked in my studio and then proceeded to an afternoon run with the roadrunner buddies. Many days I don’t check my email until after Town Hall closes at 4:30.

I thought Friday would be a slow day, too. Our Town Manager was taking a sabbaticum day off. I planned on coming in by mid-morning, but events changed.

Someone called me concerning US 64 being closed between Highlands and Cashiers lasting over a week. That was news to me. I checked my email and read a message indicating that indeed the road would be closed for repairs for over a week. The email was posted at 4:35 pm on Thursday, so I was reading it for the first time.

I started making calls immediately, since the closure would have a huge economic impact on our leaf season and create massive delays.

For several hours I felt like I was chasing a rabbit that was continuously changing directions.

First, I learned that DOT was doing an emergency repair due to massive roadway erosion caused by the rains from Tropical Storm Nate, and that it could not be delayed for fear of another rain event wiping out an entire section of the road. After losing part of Chowan Road due to heavy rains a number of years ago, I understood the concern.

Next, I got information that there would be one-lane traffic in the construction area during the day, but that the road would be entirely closed during night construction. That seemed a better plan.

By 11am, I had contacted the NC-DOT Division Engineer. He told me the road would indeed have to be completely closed in order to make repairs. Two large culverts spanning the entire roadway had to be replaced, and keeping one lane open was not possible. He emphasized it was a dangerous situation, and that a postponement could cause further damage resulting in a road closure lasting weeks or months.

I consulted with Jim Tate, the Macon County Commission Chairman, and Kevin Corbin our state representative. Kevin had been working with DOT to speed up the repair to where the road would be closed for only 72 hours. Representative Corbin got DOT to give the contractor a bonus if the road was back opened by 4 pm today. After that it will be one lane until paving is complete by late Friday.

I appreciate Tate and Corbin’s leadership in solving this problem.

My take away is that we should have been in the DOT communication loop from the beginning.

Town Hall received many calls, but initially had no information. Sometimes Highlands is overlooked as the economic force and municipality on this plateau. I will communicate our need for timely information about plans that impact Highlands.

Dear Editor,

I appreciate Mayor Taylor’s recent newspaper column about “the important role the arts play in the economic vitality and overall quality of a community,” and I especially appreciated his acknowledgement of the fact that the arts depend greatly on philanthropy; to quote the mayor,” most significant art venues require donor support at a very high level.”

While the media fan the fertile flames of identity politics and class warfare, could it be that rich folks aren’t so bad after all and may actually contribute good things to society?

There’s something amiss

Dear Editor,

There’s something amiss in the country that I love.

There seems that any identity to our past is looked upon with suspicion and we need a more generic worldview or global inclusion, where we look upon a new era, starting afresh where the encumbrments of the past are gone and a new day is coming. Beliefs, values, morality are all inclusive, there’s no boundaries, life is unfettered from the narrow mindedness of the past.

If you want to take the knee to our flag while anthem is sung, you have a right to do so. If you want to slander and disrupt just about everything, you have a right to do so. From the president, the college campus, to our city streets, even within our families, we want to express this pent up anger and seek the freedom we think will release this turmoil from within.

This view suggests a higher calling in which to follow. Many elected officials, people of prominence, college professors, encourage this hate and outrage. We take their cue and follow what seems is our personal right.

Rebellion is in vogue, and if we believe in nothing but self, we rebel in everything. But worse, if we believe in everything there’s nothing in self worth fighting for.

We are a wandering people, we think of little except self. We’ve lost our way, we lack internal reasoning and direction. We knock down fences without asking why they were there in the first place. We say life is the greatest value, but live our lives in disrespect of others … even celebrating death.

What hope do you give your children? What values do you place in them? Or are values left for them to define, because your lacking in values yourself? Do we just encourage them to learn more so they financially make more to satisfy a never ending quest for more? Is there anything worth hoping for that makes sense of life than this ever ending madness we revolve around. This fence is in place for humanity’s sake; shouldn’t be taken lightly. Unbridled freedom is not freedom at all but chaos, both for a society and deep within the individual – which is so evident. The family unit is more influential than any other system on earth, and should instill respect, dignity, trust, honesty, integrity, thoughtfulness, all within a love for family, friends and the one who is the essence or embodiment of it all – God, the one we seek least. History is littered with past hopes of trying to find its way. There’s a hope in science, world systems, even religion; all hope that someday we can save ourselves in some distant future. What good is this for the present? How cruel and hopeless. Deep inside we know and search for something more, not so much for the future, but for the now. God is forever more and the never ending now.

“Now is the time” (2 Corinthians 6:2)

Memories light the corners of my mind

Can you hear Barbara Streisand singing? Though Streisand’s The Way we Were is one of my favorite songs, this week’s column is about memory, not music.

Does this happen to you? You’re having a conversation, what you hear triggers a thought and before you can utter it, it’s gone – poof? It happens to me all too often these days, and it’s a good thing I have a sense of humor about it.

I have friends who either worry or laugh about their forgetfulness, depending on the day, but most of us have a standard story to the effect that there is just so much in our brains that we can’t possibly sort through it and pull something out on a moment’s notice. You’ve heard the line about not being able to access that drawer in the mental file cabinet, right? I like this description from Science Blog:

“One of my favorite Roz Chast cartoons shows a woman dumping out the high-falutin’ contents of a filing cabinet drawer — 16th-century art, or something like that — to make room for a new drawer full of information about new TV shows. This is the finite filing cabinet model of memory, in which you toss out one set of memory to make room for new information...Memories have been considered, the last decade or so, to be in there somewhere, but perhaps just inaccessible. The old ‘I haven’t forgotten it; I just can’t recall it right now’ situation.”

Apparently, brain hiccups are a hot topic. If you go down the rabbit hole of Google, you can read about memory and the lack thereof for hours. As a mystery fanatic, I found the Sherlock Holmes take on memory fascinating. It’s similar to another line I use about not wanting to clutter my brain with too many details. Sherlock likens a man’s brain to:

“...a little empty attic... you have to stock it with such furniture as you choose. A fool takes in all the lumber of every sort that he comes across, so that the knowledge which might be useful to him gets crowded out, or at best is jumbled up with a lot of other things, so that he has a difficulty in laying his hands upon it. Now the skillful workman is very careful indeed as to what he takes into his brain-attic. He will have nothing but the tools which may help him in doing his work, but of these he has a large assortment, and all in the most perfect order... Depend upon it there comes a time when for every addition of knowledge you forget something that you knew before. It is of the highest importance, therefore, not to have useless facts elbowing out the useful ones.”

I’m sticking with Sherlock’s rationale for not remembering every little thing, and I’m also fond of the Far Side cartoon, “Teacher, teacher, my brain is full.” Hmmmm, I wonder if the person who once gave me a t-shirt with that cartoon on it—the person I can’t for the life of me remember—was trying to tell me something.

Healing Thai Chicken Soup

Hot, clear foods are very beneficial for colds and upper respiratory infections.

This healing soup can help soothe a sore throat, eliminate congestion, and help combat fevers and chills. The shiitake mushrooms provide polysaccharides that stimulate white blood cell function allowing them to be more efficient at combating bacteria and viruses. And ginger and garlic both have numerous healing properties. They are anti-microbial, anti-viral, and a natural anti-biotics, killing bacteria and viruses both internally and externally, as well as giving delicious flavor this soup.

The broth is very nourishing and will have you feeling good almost immediately, and even small children love it!

Once you make soup this way, making the stock from scratch, you’ll never ever consider canned broth again- yes, it’s worth the time to do it right!

If you would like to use a whole chicken for this soup instead of the two chicken breasts, simply double the ingredients for the broth and the soup and use an 8 or 12-quart pot instead. Be sure to add the cooked rice noodles to each individual bowl if you plan to have leftovers (adding them to the whole pot and then reheating the soup the next day can cause the noodles to get quite mushy).

This soup also freezes very well, just don’t add the noodles or the raw toppings to your freezeable portions.

Yield: 6 servings

For the Broth:
- 2 bone-in organic chicken breasts (about 2 pounds total)
- 8 cups water
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 3 stalks celery, chopped
- 1 large carrot, chopped
- 1 whole head garlic, cut in half cross-wise
- 1/4 to 1/2 cup finely chopped fresh ginger

As a special thank you to our community for all your love and support, we are kicking off the fall season with a toy and dental health sale!!!

10% off

All Toys, Whimzee Dental Chews, and Tropiclean Water Additives during October.

In addition to dog grooming services, we are now offering food, treats, toys, and other essentials for all our pampered pup’s needs!
For the Soup:
1 medium onion, cut into crescent moons
3 to 4 stalks celery, sliced into diagonals
3 carrots, cut into matchsticks
2 to 3 cups sliced shiitake mushrooms cooked chicken pulled from the bone and chopped sea salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste

Optional Additions/Toppings:
rice noodles
chopped fresh basil chopped fresh napa cabbage chopped fresh cilantro chopped fresh thai green chiles lime wedges

To make the broth, place all ingredients for broth into a 6-quart pot. Cover and bring to a boil, reduce heat medium-low and simmer for 1 1/2 to 2 hours. Strain broth into a large bowl or another pot using a colander. Place chicken breasts onto a plate to cool. Pour the broth back into the pot. Once chicken is cooled, remove the skin, pull the meat from the bone and chop the chicken into bite-sized pieces.

Place all of the veggies for the soup (onion, carrot, celery, and shiitake mushrooms) into the pot with the broth. Cover and simmer for about 15 to 20 minutes. Add the chicken. Season with sea salt and pepper to taste. Simmer a minute or two more or until vegetables are cooked to your liking. Ladle soup into bowls and serve with a handful of basil, cilantro, and cabbage on top. Sprinkle with thai chiles if desired. You can also add a handful of cooked thai rice noodles to each bowl if desired. Squeeze a little lime juice over each bowl. Make sure to have some tissues handy if you are using the thai chiles, and enjoy the benefits of this healing, nourishing soup!
over onto the Parker’s rental home pretty much cutting the home in half and barely missing the family who at the time was riding out the storm gathered in their living room.

The house incurred severe structural and water damage. Fiberglass insulation, drywall and roof debris fell into the home as the storm’s winds and rain tore through the house. The family escaped to nearby relatives.

Currently they are staying with family, but will need to find a rental as soon as possible in order to return to some normalcy of life.

Diana is a full-time Mom and home schools their children. Thomas is a former Marine and currently works as a Master K9 Police Officer in the Highlands Police Department, dedicating his life to the protection and service of others.

Though Macon County was declared a “state of emergency” by county, state and local officials, Governor Roy Cooper said FEMA assistance and reimbursement for expenses incurred due to the hurricane would not be available. He said at that time that other areas in the country were first in line for any FEMA funds.

Now the Parker family needs help to replace their belongings as they work to put some order back into their lives. Unfortunately, they didn’t have renters insurance so all these expenses will be coming out of their own pockets.

Contributions are urgently needed to replace the items destroyed in the storm including beds and bedding, clothing, appliances, furniture, school supplies and books.

These are just some of the essentials that need replacing in a long list of items. To add to their financial burden, they have extensive major medical expenses.

Any and all donations will be very much appreciated!

Checks should be made payable to Thomas Parker and can be dropped off at the Highlands Police Dept. or mailed to:

Damage to the home the Parker family rented on Walkingstick Road in Highlands.
Road about a mile from the crossroads.

Two old pipes under U.S. 64, about one mile west of the intersection with N.C. 107 in Jackson County, need to be replaced because they have ruptured and the eastbound lane has been compromised.

U.S. 64 is closed and a temporary detour via Norton Road has been established during the repairs.

The work is expected to be completed Friday and if so, one lane of the road will be open to through traffic as crews patch and pave the road.

The 10-mile detour — taking an average of 20 minutes — directs westbound drivers to take N.C. 107 North to North Norton Road and then to Norton Road and U.S. 64. The opposite applies to eastbound drivers.

The Cashiers Road was closed to through traffic at 4 p.m. Monday, NCDOT expects the work to be completed in three days.

Once the new pipe installation is completed the roadway will be gravel. It will take another day to repave the road.

In light of the Leaf Looker season, the contractor has been offered an incentive if the work is completed early but will be penalized if the entire job takes longer than Friday to complete.

For real-time travel information, visit DriveNC.gov or follow NCDOT on Twitter.

Tolerance without Compromise

Archbishop
John Erbelding
Chapel of the Sky
Sky Valley, GA

omeone sometime coined a phrase that has much meaning: “tolerance without compromise.”

To be tolerant of others, it is not necessary to accept their beliefs or to live like they live. In fact, one may be tolerant of another person and still vigorously oppose the background or beliefs or his convictions or his habits.

Tolerance does not mean that we must get on the bandwagon, that we must think or act with the majority, or that we must compromise our own convictions.

Tolerance may simply mean that we are aware that no two people think or believe exactly alike, and that all of us have a right to think and believe and live as we choose, if we can do so without interfering with these same rights where others are concerned.

Even when a person opposes prevailing opinion, tolerance would respect his right to do so, so long as he is respectful and doesn't wrongly interfere with others’ freedom.

More than 20 centuries ago, the Savior of mankind suggested one way to tolerance without compromise when he thanked his Father in heaven for his followers when they “in the world but were not of the world.”

Sometimes young people, and others also, make the mistake of supposing that tolerance means that we must do the things that others do, that we must live the way that others live, but in supposing this have failed to learn one of the greatest lessons of life: that a man may be tolerant without compromising himself or the background or beliefs or his convictions or his habits.

Tolerance without compromising principles is not only possible, but it is one of the absolute essentials for the peaceful living of life.

This has been a frightening fall for homeowners around the country. The hurricanes with resulting tornadoes and flooding coupled with out of control wildfires led me to prepare for such disasters. Many of these steps are common sense, but I found that many were extremely helpful. I think the overall ‘lesson’ here is not to wait for nature’s displays of her enormous powers, but to be prepared in advance.

1. Do you know exactly what your property (and auto) insurance covers and what it does for you? As insurance policies are ‘Greek’ to most of us, the best method of determining this factor is a face to face meeting with your insurance broker, a phone appointment will have to suffice if distance or availability is an issue. Have your questions ready and be prepared to update, change or potentially move your insurance to another company if the answers do not take care of your needs. You can double check your home’s position as it relates to floodplains by checking with FEMA (http://www.fema.gov/) One pertinent question is whether you have a set amount or a replacement value amount of insurance?

2. What about those items that you could not replace? We do not want to live without the items that we hold most dear, so what do we do to protect them? Safe deposit boxes or home safes can be extremely valuable tools in your preparedness arsenal. Take videos of your home, room by room noting particular valuable items. Make digital copies of your treasured photos. Then store these items off-site or in a fireproof safe along with your most important paperwork; wills, deeds, titles, etc.

3. Do a Critical Analysis of your Grading and Landscaping. If necessary, bring in a professional to assist in this analysis. The land’s slant, or grade, around your property is key in keeping water intrusion under control. This is particularly important in our area on a day to day basis, not just during catastrophic events. Have the ‘health’ of the trees near your home checked. Also, avoid planting fire spreading scrubs and bushes near the base of your home - stick to evergreens rather than foundation plantings that dry out in the fall. Here’s a website to check out for further information (http://www.firesafe.org/wildfire-preparedness/defensible-space.aspx)

4. Do you and your family have a fire escape plan and a disaster plan for regrouping should you get separated off-site? Does every room of your home have functional escape alternatives? Do your smoke alarms work on every level of your home? Do you have an exit ladder for the upper levels of your home? In our area the regrouping plan is not as critical, but for those in larger metro areas it is crucial. Here is a websites that might be of assistance: (//consumeradvice/homeownersadvice/item/41070-20151222-two-fire-safety-decisions-that-save-lives?rtmpage+)

5. Are you aware of local, county and state comprehensive disaster plans? Check with (https://www.disasterassistance.gov/) to determine your local community disaster strategies. As we’ve seen in the past, waiting for federal bail-out is not a sound or immediate disaster planning strategy. Are you satisfied with these local efforts? Now is your time to speak out for a more comprehensive strategy on the local or state level.

6. Do you have your disaster ‘kit’ ready? Here are the overall suggestions for such a kit. A 3 day supply of bottled water (a gallon a day for each person), canned and dry foods, a method of cooking that is not dependent on electricity (a generator is the optimum choice here, but a camp or wood stove would be alternatives). A flashlight, emergency radio and

And here, in 2017, the need for affordable employee housing – housing for those who work year-round or seasonably in Highlands – hasn’t abated.

Since the town hasn’t been able to solve the problem, business owners, restauranteurs and country clubs have purchased homes, defunct motels or built housing on land convenient to their venue. Highlands Planning Director Andrew Bowen is working with the Planning Board to develop a Comprehensive Land Use Plan to see Highlands through the next decade and once again the need for employee housing came up.

“In no way am I encouraging such development in town, but simply would direct the board to be ready for it, as I think the request will grow more frequent,” he said recently. “My simple goal is to insure that Highlands sustains its quality of life and continues to be an awesome community for all to enjoy.”

For some reason, finding and keeping quality help has been particularly difficult for many businesses this 2017 season – particularly in the restaurant/country club sector.

The lack of affordable employee housing isn’t the entire reason, but it likely played a part in enticing and keeping employees.

Planning Board members were open to discussing employee housing saying they would like a “plan” in place before they are asked to consider an employee housing development of some kind.

“I would like to take up the discussion on employee housing before we are faced with a site plan,” said member Chris Boltz. “I don’t know how this fits in with the comprehensive plan development - perhaps that is our first area to address.”

Member Dennis DeWolf agreed, saying “there are far too many influential factors of employee housing that need to be addressed as an integral part of the comprehensive plan prior to potential private enterprise or public citizen group proposals arriving at our doorstep.”

He said an effective employee housing debate/discussion should lead to integration into the comprehensive plan “keeping the horses in front of the cart.”

Member Steve Abranyi said that it may be that demographics are changing from homeowners coming up for the season to homeowners/buyers investing in short-term rentals which could yield an increase in the tourism population.

“I would think this would lead to service industry expansion, thus more employees, thus the need for housing,” he said. “But if service providing companies gobble up in-town rentals for their employees then there will be less short-term rentals available for tourists.” Tourists the town wants.

Chairman Thomas Craig said the housing crunch speaks to the need of making regulations for apartment renovations above businesses seriously.

Member Glenda Bell said she would lean toward employee housing being developed away from town center since the real estate market for that area – and those with “big bucks” – seems to be thriving.

batteries for those items, your medication, an emergency blanket, your IDs (passport, medical info, etc), utensils, first aid kit, toiletries (toothpaste, shampoo, soaps), spare home & auto keys, matches or other fire starter, a multi purpose tool (think Swiss Army knife), toilet paper, spare eyeglasses and a whistle would be some useful items to have in a ‘go bag’. If you are a camper, you usually have most of those items handy. A big question here is how long could you keep your family relatively comfortable and safe after a natural disaster?

So, are you prepared? Not a comfortable question, but one that should be answered while you are comfortable rather than in the midst of a difficult situation.

TOOTH FAIRY VISITS

Highlands School

On October 13, Mary McClean, a registered dental hygienist and professional dental educator from Nashville, TN and the tooth fairy, presented a dental health program to the students in grades K-5 at Highlands School. Her presentation is part of a 3-point dental health program jointly sponsored by the Rotary Club of Highlands and the Highlands Mountaintop Rotary Club. The other two segments of the program are a weekly fluoride swish for younger students and a yearly exam by volunteer dentists.

AFFORDABLE EMPLOYEE HOUSING AND PARKING

“Affordable employee housing and parking have a common issue which is the high cost of land in Highlands, especially around the business area,” he said. “If there was a large track of land suitable for parking and housing, the financial pressure would be to build upscale housing or businesses that provide a maximum return on the investment such as town houses, restaurants or shops – not employee housing.”

These two problems can be viewed as a double edge sword by some, he said.

“Not expanding housing and parking will possibly limit growth and development. Some folks want growth and others do not.”

The Planning Board will continue the discussion as it works to update its Comprehensive Land Use Plan.

It meets the fourth Monday of each month at the Community Building on Poplar Street at 5:30 p.m.

What’s happening at the Highlands Playhouse?

By Rachel Friday, Secretary, The Highlands Playhouse

Starting October 20, The Playhouse will be showing Victoria and Abdul, starring Dame Judi Dench. It tells the true story of Queen Victoria and her affection for a young clerk who travels from India to participate in the Queen’s Golden Jubilee. The Royal Family tries to suppress this relationship, but true friendship prevails. The movie is scheduled for a two-week run, ending on October 31. As always, movies play at 2p, 5p, and 8p Friday through Tuesday.

Battle of the Sexes just ended a two-week run, and it was a big hit at the Playhouse! Starring Steve Carell and Emma Stone, it tells the true story of the famous Bobby Riggs/Billie Jean King tennis match in 1973. I was amazed at how well Carell and Stone so convincingly played the roles of Riggs and King.

Coming soon is Murder on the Orient Express, featuring a star-studded cast, again with Ms. Dench. Also upcoming is Wonder, a drama starring Julia Roberts and Owen Wilson about a young boy with facial differences who becomes the unlikely hero of the local fifth grade. Check our website for updates on scheduling.

Future events include the annual showing of the Rocky Horror Picture Show on October 28 at 10p. Prop bags for the show will be sold for $5.

Also coming is the first annual Highlands Foodie Film Fest, conducted in association with The Highlands Food and Wine Festival.

On the screen will be Chef on Nov. 10; Jeremiah Tower, The Last Magnificent on Nov. 11; and Big Night on Nov. 12. All will be at 2p, 5p and 8p.

Finally, the future of the Playhouse. The big news is that the PAC is building an expanded facility at its current location which will allow for multiple stages, state-of-the-art plays and movies, and ample parking. The Highlands Playhouse plans to relocate to this complex.

The beloved historical building is rented from the town of Highlands, but unfortunately there are limits as to the plays that can be produced because the facilities are just too antiquated.

There was a great turnout for the community coffee with Mayor Pat Taylor on Friday, Sept 29, where plans were discussed for the future of the playhouse building. Because the town owns the building, whatever happens to it will be determined by the Town Board, but hopefully it won’t be torn down, but re-purposed for other uses.

We look forward to seeing you at the Playhouse! Please remember that the Highlands Playhouse is and will remain its own entity, with 501(c)3 nonprofit status. We need your support to continue to produce quality plays with professional actors, and first-rate movie productions.

The Highlands Performing Arts Center will screen the National Theatre of London's production of Yerma on Saturday, October 21 at 1pm. The incredible Billie Piper (Penny Dreadful, Great Britain) returns in her Olivier Award-winning role. A young woman is driven to the unthinkble by her desperate desire to have a child, in Simon Stone's radical production of Lorca's achingly powerful masterpiece. Set in contemporary London, Piper's portrayal of a woman in her thirties struggling to conceive builds with elemental force to a staggering, shocking climax. The unmissable theatre phenomenon sold out at the Young Vic and critics call it ‘shatteringly powerful’ (Independent) and ‘an extraordinary theatrical triumph’ (The Times). Please note that the performance contains strobe lighting. Tickets are available online: highlandspac.org, at the door or by calling 828.526.9047. Highlands Performing Arts Center, 507 Chestnut Street, Highlands.

HCP’s ‘Guilty...’ on stage at PAC through Sunday

The word is out after the opening night of Guilty Conscience that it’s a production well worth seeing—a clever murder mystery by Richard Levinson and William Link that keeps the audience guessing till the last moments when a surprise ending causes a gasp from the audience. All four members of the cast, directed by Michael Lanzilotta, have been complimented on their performances. Veteran actor David Spivey, a real attorney in Franklin, plays the brilliant but ruthless defense attorney. Adair Simon of Cashiers portrays the relentless prosecutor, Lauretta Payne of Sky Valley GA plays the attorney’s embittered wife, and Megan McLean of Sapphire NC plays his cute young scattered-brained mistress.

The play continues at Highlands Performing Arts Center, 507 Chestnut Street, Thursday, October 19, through Sunday, October 22. Evening performances start at 7:30, the Sunday matinee at 2:30.

To reserve tickets call the HCP box office at 828-526-8084 and leave a message for a call-back. The Players website is highlandscashiersplayers.org.
