The Town of Highlands is a little” greener” thanks to students and faculty at Rabun Gap-Nacoochee School.

On Wednesday, Oct. 18, Rabun Gap sixth-graders and science teacher Jonathan BySura installed 40 green watershed markers on storm drains throughout the town. These markers warn passersby that illegal dumping can impact the water supply.

BySura and his classes have been working on this project for

Macon County is home to another 'Little Library' in the Highlands area

The Macon County Public Library has worked over the last few years to establish little libraries in communities around the county to help increase resident’s access to books. This week, the second Little Free Library in the Highlands area was opened on the grounds of the Old Sealy Schoolhouse at the corner of Buck Knob Rd and NC 106. The library makes the eighth little library sponsored by either the Macon County Public Library or community.

Bear family comes for lunch

Last week, Mirror Lake homeowner Sara E. Benson was greeted by three black bears – a mother and two cubs – who lunched on dogwood berries and grubs along the shore of the lake.

When Benson stepped out on her raised deck to shoot photos and video of the bears she spotted on the shore of the lake, the startled mother bear looked up, lunged forward, barred her teeth and let out a loud “Hiss!” Benson got the message and stepped back, and the bears continued foraging for lunch.

The baby bears climbed up into the dogwood trees that border Sara’s deck and started munching on the red berries. Then, one of the baby bears decided to take a swim in Mirror Lake.

Exiting the water, the baby bear discovered two plastic swans sitting on the lawn. The cub swatted one and bit down on the neck of another.
Why clean water is important

Last Tuesday four of my high school friends and I did a guided float trip down the Tuckasegee River. It was a beautiful day, and we all caught Rainbow, Brown and Brook Trout. Being in delayed harvest waters, our guides carefully netted the fish and made sure they were in good condition before releasing them back to the river.

As our boats were about to dock in the late afternoon, we saw a beautiful bald eagle perched in a tree above the river. It doesn’t get any better than that here in Western Carolina.

Well, it did get better for me the next day. I met a group of science students from Rabun Gap Nacoochee School on Main Street. They were with their science teacher, Johnathan Bysura, to do a very important service learning project.

I had the honor to assist in installing the first of some 30 labels that they were placing next to our street stormwater drains. These labels warn folks not to pour chemicals like gas and oil in the stormwater drains. Their teacher reminded his students that these chemicals eventually end up in lakes and streams and destroy quality water supplies. Mr. Bysura told the students one quart of oil poured into a stormwater drain could potentially destroy a million gallons of drinking water.

This wonderful event made me reflect on the day before were my friends and I fished on a clean river where trout can thrive. I thanked the students for their concern and work. I ended my comments by saying the people of Highlands are committed to preserving the natural environment so that when our students are adults, they too will have beautiful and clean places to live and work.

Another event last week that supports our young people was the Town of Highlands Scholarship Golf Tournament. All money raised goes to providing scholarships for Highlands School graduates. I want to thank the participants of this year’s tournament. Commissioners Brian Stiehler and Donnie Calloway again did a wonderful job in organizing this classic fall event. Thanks also goes to Rebecca Shuler who does the administrative work for the tournament and scholarship fund. Wildcat Cliffs Country Club was again wonderful host for the event. Their generosity makes this important fund

C-HHS joins 4-state response to rescue dogs from Puerto Rico

The Cashiers-Highlands Humane Society (CHHS) joined forces with three other animal welfare organizations creating a four-state response to help rescue dogs from Puerto Rico. The groups met in Atlanta on Thursday, October 19th to greet the plane from Puerto Rico carrying more than 120 animals on board. The rescue effort was coordinated by the Humane Society of the United States, which has been on the ground in Puerto Rico assisting in the aftermath of this historically devastating storm.

The CHHS Animal Rescue Team arrived back at the shelter in Sapphire late Thursday evening with 24 dogs and puppies. The animals will be available for viewing and ready for adoption the week of October 30th.

Of the estimated 14,000 animal shelters and rescue groups nationwide, CHHS is one of only 350 in the United States who has been designated as an Emergency Placement Partner with the Humane Society of the United States.

raising possible. The next great day will be in May when graduating students receive their scholarship awards. This financial support can continue as students progress through advanced education.

Another great event was the Highlands Hurricanes Fall Swim Meet held at our covered pool. Two other swim teams competed in the event. It is always an honor for me to make welcoming remarks. I congratulated the young swimmers for their hard work, teamwork and sportsmanship, some of those civic values that former President Bush referred to in his speech this past week.

The monthly Highlands Town Board meeting is tonight at 7 pm at the Conference Center. The agenda has some major items related to broadband and the construction of the new water tank on Satulah.

By the way, Sallie was also on the fishing trip. She equaled the high number of fish posted by the mayor.

Since the Macon County Public Library installed its first Little Library, it has since installed little libraries at Iotla Methodist Church, Founders Park in Highlands, Holly Springs Community Club, Otto Community Club, and at Mulberry Methodist Church in Otto.

The new Little Library at the old Scaly Schoolhouse joins another little library located at Cowee School in Franklin. Though they both provide books to the community, they aren't directly sponsored by the Macon County Public Library system.

The inspiration for this project came from the Little Free Libraries, an organization that encourages the sharing of free books, in places where people can have easy access to reading materials.

The mission of the Macon County Little Library is much the same: providing convenient access to all kinds of reading materials and learning opportunities. The Little Library concept provides a great way to get books into the hands of everyone who would like to read, especially children who may not have transportation to the main library.

The libraries are stocked by the community at-large with the concept of “take a book/leave a book.”

“We believe that the Little Libraries are a great way to bring books into the community,” said Fontana Regional Library Director Karen Wallace. “The libraries let people pick out new books and drop off books they are finished with. They have been a great addition to the library’s community outreach.”

There is a ninth little library nearly ready to be unveiled at Union Academy in Franklin. Beale Construction volunteered to build Union’s Little Library. The library will hold 50 to 75 books. Another little library will also be erected soon at the Macon County Senior Service Center building.
more than four months alongside the town of Highlands, city of Franklin, and the North Carolina Department of Transportation. The watershed marker initiative is funded in part by Rabun Gap Middle School and the Rabun Gap ESP program, and spotlights Rabun Gap’s commitment to teaching sustainability and a love for the environment. To date, Rabun Gap students have marked 80 drains in Franklin and Highlands, and expect to mark another 30 in the city of Clayton by the end of the school year.

“The goal of our watershed program is for students to understand and have awareness for the unique environment in which they live,” BySura said. “Students are tasked with monitoring the Betty’s Creek Watershed, which becomes the Little Tennessee Watershed. The communities of Franklin, Highlands, and Rabun Gap all live, work, and play in the same watershed. It is important for us to teach our young people that water resources, especially here in the mountains, are extremely important and must be protected and conserved.”

Highlands Mayor Patrick Taylor installed the first marker outside the Sotheby’s realty office downtown. He thanked the students for their work in Highlands, adding the town has a commitment to preserve the environment.

The public is invited to learn more about the watershed in April 2018 when middle school students present their projects at the annual Watershed Festival, held at the Niles Bolton Middle School Complex on Betty’s Creek Road in Rabun Gap. More information will be published about the Watershed Festival as the date gets closer at www.rabungap.org.

At PAC Sat., Oct. 28 National Theatre of London’s ‘Who’s Afraid of Virginia Woolf?’

The Highlands Performing Arts Center will screen, Live via Satellite, the National Theatre of London’s production of Who’s Afraid of Virginia Woolf on Saturday, October 28 at 1pm. Sonia Friedman Productions present Imelda Staunton (Gypsy, Vera Drake, the Harry Potter films), Conleth Hill (Game Of Thrones, The Producers), Luke Treadaway (A Street Cat Named Bob, The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time, The Hollow Crown) and Imogen Poots (A Long Way Down, Jane Eyre) in James Macdonald’s critically acclaimed, 5-star production of Edward Albee’s landmark play. In the early hours of the morning on the campus of an American college, Martha, much to her husband George’s displeasure, has invited the new professor and his wife to their home for some after-party drinks. As the alcohol flows and dawn approaches, the young couple are drawn into George and Martha’s toxic games until the evening reaches its climax in a moment of devastating truth-telling. ‘Imelda Staunton is at her magnificent best. A first-rate revival of an astonishing play.’ The Guardian Tickets are available at the door, online: highlandspac.org or by calling 828.526.9047 Highlands PAC, 507 Chestnut Street, Highlands
Ahh, the magical season of Autumn has finally arrived, and along with cooler weather we get to enjoy the bounty of the colorful fall harvest. Corn, sweet potatoes, and of course pumpkins can be found at every grocery store and farmer’s market. While pumpkins are incredibly rich in beta carotenes and antioxidants such as lutein and xanthin, their seeds are considered one of man’s original superfoods.

Modern medicine is just beginning to learn what native cultures suspected for thousands of years- that pumpkin seeds may benefit your heart, liver and immune system, help fight diabetes, and that they offer unique benefits for men's prostate health and as well as women’s relief of menopause symptoms. This is because pumpkin seeds are nutritional powerhouses wrapped up in a very small package, with a wide variety of nutrients ranging from magnesium and manganese to copper, protein and zinc. They also contain a wide array of beneficial plant compounds known as phytosterols and free-radical scavenging antioxidants.

A Mineral Mega-Food

Just One-quarter cup of pumpkin seeds contains nearly half of the recommended daily amount of magnesium- which has been shown to benefit your blood pressure and help prevent sudden cardiac arrest, heart attack, and stroke, yet an estimated 80 percent of Americans are deficient in this important mineral.

Pumpkin seeds are also a rich source of zinc - one ounce of pumpkin seeds contain more than 2 mg of this beneficial mineral. Zinc is important to your body in many ways, including immunity, cell growth and division, sleep, mood, your senses of taste and smell, eye and skin health, and insulin regulation. Many of us are deficient in zinc due to mineral-depleted soils, drug effects, plant-based diets, and other diets high in grain.

This deficiency is associated with increased colds and flu, chronic fatigue, joint pains, and skin health, and insulin regulation. Heart Healthy Anti-Inflammatory Effects Raw nuts and seeds, including pumpkin seeds, are one of the best sources of plant-based omega-3s (alpha-linolenic acid or ALA). We also need ALA, however, ALA has been found to exhibit anti-inflammatory effects. One animal study even found it worked as well as the anti-inflammatory drug indomethacin in treating arthritis, but without the side effects.

Soak, Dry, Roast or Sprout Them

The best way to preserve the healthy fats present in pumpkin seeds is to eat them raw. If you choose to purchase seeds from a bulk bin, make sure they smell fresh – not musty, spoiled or stale. Organic pumpkin seeds are preferred, as they will not be contaminated with pesticides or other harmful chemicals.

However, most nuts and seeds, including pumpkin seeds, are one of the best sources of plant-based omega-3s (alpha-linolenic acid or ALA). We all need ALA, however, ALA has to be converted by your body into the far more essential omega-3 fats EPA and DHA - by an enzyme in which the vast majority of us have impaired by high insulin levels. So, while pumpkin seeds are an excellent source of ALA, I believe it is essential to get some of your omega-3 fats from animal sources, such as krill oil, as well. Pumpkin seeds, rich in healthy fats, antioxidants and fibers, may provide benefits for heart and liver health, particularly when mixed with flax seeds.6 Pumpkin seed oil has been found to exhibit anti-inflammatory effects. One animal study even found it worked as well as the anti-inflammatory drug indomethacin in treating arthritis, but without the side effects.
seeds have anti-nutrients like phytic acid that can make all the previously discussed important nutrients less bioavailable when you consume them. So if you plan on consuming seeds or nuts on a regular basis, you can soak or sprout them. To make them more palatable, you can then dehydrate them in your oven, or better yet and more cost effectively in a dehydrator.

If you prefer to eat the seeds roasted, do so yourself so you can control the roasting temperature and time. Raw pumpkin seeds can be roasted on a low heat setting in your oven (no more than 170 degrees F or 75 degrees Celsius), sprinkled with Himalayan or other natural salt, for about 15-20 minutes.

African Sweet Potato-Peanut Stew

Ingredients

- 3 cloves garlic
- 2 cups (loosely packed) fresh cilantro leaves and stems
- 1 can (28 ounces) diced tomatoes
- 1/2 cup natural creamy or chunky peanut butter
- 2 teaspoons ground cumin
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon ground red pepper (cayenne)
- 3/4 tsp sea salt
- 1 cup filtered water
- 2 pounds sweet potatoes, peeled and cut into 2-inch chunks
- 1 can (15 to 19 ounces) garbanzo beans, rinsed and drained
- 16oz fresh green beans, lightly steamed

Directions

1) In blender or food processor with knife blade attached, blend garlic, cilantro, tomatoes with their juice, peanut butter, cumin, cinnamon, ground red pepper, and 3/4 teaspoon sea salt until pureed.

2) Pour peanut-butter mixture into slow-cooker or 4 quart pot on low setting; then stir in water. Add sweet potatoes and garbanzo beans; stir to combine. Cover and cook on a very low setting 8 to 10 hours or on high setting for 4 to 5 hours, checking every few hours until potatoes are very tender.

3) About 10 minutes before sweet potato mixture is done, gently stir lightly steamed green beans into stew.

4) Serve in warm bowls with a garnish of crème fraîche, fresh cilantro and perhaps a slice of homemade bread with grass-fed butter, and take a moment to celebrate fall!

H-C Hospital President

This month, I’d like to focus on what it means to be a Critical Access Hospital (CAH) so readers can better understand some of the unique features of Highlands-Cashiers Hospital and our dedicated caregivers who so compassionately serve this community.

Our CAH designation means several things. It means we operate within a set of rules established by the federal government, unlike those that exist for larger, typically urban hospitals. It also means that we’re located in a remote, rural area surrounded by challenging terrain even in the best of times – let alone the times when we’re hampered by severe weather, such as our visit from Hurricane Irma last month.

In 1997, Congress included the Critical Access Hospital (CAH) designation in its Balanced Budget Act to financially strengthen these small but important hospitals and to increase rural patients’ access to important and necessary care.

A facility can only be classified as a CAH if it’s over 35 miles from the nearest hospital, or 15 miles away if located in mountainous terrain like HCH.

A CAH must provide “24/7” emergency care and maintain no more than 25 beds with an average hospital stay of less than four days.

Despite their small size and remote locations, CAHs are still required to meet rigorous clinical and environmental standards set by the federal government. In fact, we recently passed an exacting survey of our facility and the care we provide by the Joint Commission, a federally approved inspection and accreditation entity.

As you may have heard, since 2010, there has been a wave of hospital closures across the nation with 80 CAHs closing across the country, including three in North Carolina.

In America today, more than one rural hospital closes every month. Foreshadowing future risk, one of three CAHs nationwide currently operates at a financial loss.

Thankfully, Highlands-Cashiers – with Mission Health’s crucial support - is neither part of this statistic nor your average CAH.

Our generous community sustained our operation last year by providing nearly $1.5 million in philanthropic support. We’re further strengthened by our nearby sister CAHs, Angel Medical Center and Transylvania Regional Hospital, and by Mission Hospital, through which patients can access the next level of tertiary care.

Our patients can also take advantage of the expertise of specialty physicians through the telehealth program, whereby Asheville clinicians are consulted via digital technology.

Our community benefits immensely from the telehealth program because distance is no longer an obstacle to care.

Over the last year, caregivers at Highlands-Cashiers Hospital have touched 4,200 lives.

Our new ED treats an average of 15 patients per day, and we’ve seen as many as 30 per day over the past couple months.

At the same time, we serve approximately nine inpatients per day and treat an average of 30 outpatients daily for tests and treatments. Our patient population is unique in that it surges during the summer months, when volumes can as much as triple.

I appreciate the continuing opportunity to work together to create a stronger, healthier community.

Coming soon: Next month I’ll share information about our provider teams and the many important clinical services they offer.

Shorter Period for Health Insurance Enrollment: Nov. 1 – Dec. 15, 2017
Free Events Happening Around WNC in November

ASHEVILLE – There are a lot of questions swirling around health insurance this year through the Affordable Care Act (ACA), also known as “Obamacare.” Pisgah Legal Services (PLS) and other ACA Partners of WNC can answer these questions and help with free, unbiased, in-person assistance for the ACA’s Fifth Open Enrollment from Nov. 1 – Dec. 15, 2017.

PLS Managing Attorney Jaclyn Kiger says, “There is a lot of confusion about Open Enrollment this year. We want people to know that they can still get health insurance coverage, and that we are here to help. This is our fifth open enrollment, and our trained assistants can answer questions and walk folks through this process.”

Kiger continues, “Enrollment begins Nov. 1, but you can make an appointment now by calling 855-733-3711.”

Here are five key things to know:

1. The ACA Open Enrollment is Happening – the ACA is Still the Law. The law was NOT repealed, and consumers can get health care coverage for 2018.

2. Enrollment Time is Much Shorter – from Nov. 1 – Dec. 15, 2017. These are new dates and consumers will not have as long to sign up this year. Don’t delay!

3. Financial Assistance Is Still Available Through the ACA. There have been no changes to the financial assistance available to consumers under the ACA. Access to 2018 plans, coverage and subsidies remains the same. Last year 9 out of 10 people in NC qualified for financial help. Everyone is encouraged to set up an appointment to review your income and health care plan options to make sure you get the best coverage at the right price.

4. Free In-Person Help, Right Here in WNC, is Available. You don’t have to go it alone. Trained assistants are ready to help. Appointments can be made by calling toll-free: 855-733-3711 or make an appointment online at www.pisgahlegal.org/free-legal-assistance/aca/.

Free open enrollment events are happening across WNC in November.

To make an appointment call 855-733-3711, unless otherwise noted:

- Nov. 1: 10am-2pm Polk County Public Library, 1289 West Mills St., Columbus
- Nov. 4: 9am-4pm Mountain Projects Inc., 25 Schulman St. Sylva: 828-586-2345
- Nov. 9: 12-7pm Haywood Public Library, 11 Penn. Ave., Canton: 828-452-1447
- Nov. 11:
  - 9am-4pm US Cellular Center, 87 Haywood St., Asheville. Sponsored by Mission Health
  - 9am-2:30pm Unitarian Universalists UUTC— 24 Varsity St., Brevard
  - 9am-1:30pm Pisgah Legal Services— 169 N. Main St., Rutherfordton
  - 11am-5pm Black Mountain Library— 105 Dougherty St, Black Mountain
  - 5: Blue Cross Blue Shield (BC/BS) is the sole health insurance provider for people in WNC, but multiple plans are available. We know people have questions this year regarding in- and out-of-network coverage, and we will be available to help you find answers. If you have questions about whether your providers will be covered due to Mission Health and Blue Cross/Blue Shield agreement, call the Mission Health Network at 828-412-6052.

Pisgah Legal Services (PLS), a nonprofit law firm, and other ACA Partners of WNC participating organizations give local residents free, unbiased health insurance information and enrollment assistance in the NC Health Insurance Marketplace. These organizations include: Blue Ridge Community Health Services, Council on Aging of Buncombe County, Legal Aid of North Carolina, Mountain Projects, Inc., Sunrise Community, Western Carolina Medical Society and WNC Community Health Services.

Appointments can be made by calling toll-free: 855-733-3711 or make an appointment online at www.pisgahlegal.org/free-legal-assistance/aca/.

Pisgah Legal Services is a nonprofit law firm providing free civil legal aid since 1978 to help low-income people meet their basic needs, such as protection from domestic violence, avoiding homelessness, finding safe housing, and accessing health care and subsistence income. For more information, call Pisgah Legal Services at 828-253-0406 or toll free at 800-489-6144 or visit www.pisgahlegal.org.

High school volleyball played Nantahalla and Pine Lake Prep this week.

The varsity was the only team to play in both games. They beat Nantahalla in 3 sets.

On Saturday, they travelled to Mooresville, NC to play the first round of state playoffs against Pine Lake Preparatory School.

They went 4 sets and lost 27-25 in the 4th. Although they lost, they played a great game and had a great season.

High school soccer played Cherokee and Rabun Gap.

They beat Cherokee, 7-2, placing them as conference champions. Later in the week they played Rabun Gap and got beat 6-0.

The boys' senior night against Hayesville, scheduled for Monday, October 23rd was postponed to Wednesday, October 25th. They will be playing the first round of state and with where and when details coming later.

As Fall sports comes to an end, Spring sports are getting ready.

Middle school teams have already had tryouts and high school tryouts are soon to come.

Get ready for basketball season, but don’t forget to support high school boys soccer as they have a little bit of season left.

The ‘Christian’ responsibility

“That Book, sir, is the rock on which our republic rests.”

-- Andrew Jackson.

Pastor Steve Kerhoulas
Christ Church of the Valley, Cashiers

Like most of you I also like to read good books. And when I come across a really good one it ends up on my bookshelf as a reward for an author who hit a home run.

So the other day I came across a quote that said what I just did but a whole lot better.

“The best moments in reading are when you come across something – a thought, a feeling, a way of looking at things – which you had thought special and particular to you.

Now here it is, set down by someone else, a person you have never met, someone even who is long dead. And it is as if a hand has come out and taken yours.”

Several months ago, I experienced just that -- I personalized a quote from a story that I read and it moved me so profoundly that I had to do something about it.

The quote was part of a speech delivered by President Andrew Jackson.

He said "You (me) have the highest of human trusts committed to you care. Providence has showered on this favored land blessings without number (yes, God has), and has chosen you (me) as a guardian of freedom, to preserve it for the benefit of the human race. May He who holds in His hands the destinies of nations make you worthy of the favors He has bestowed, and enable you, with pure hearts, and hands and sleepless vigilance, to guard and defend to the end of time, the great charge He has committed to your keeping.”

Yes! When I think about what he said and apply it to my life as a follower of Jesus Christ, it stops me in my tracks because God has done the same. God has entrusted every believer with an even greater responsibility.

We are not only a guardian of freedom, but someone with pure hearts and hands, that is committed to everything involved in being a Christian. Everything!

So, what did I do? After reading President Jackson’s quote, I sent a copy of a Bible containing it to our Representative Mark Meadows. I asked Mark to give the copy to President Trump, with the page number so he could read the quote by Jackson.

By the way, I subsequently discovered Jackson is Trump’s favorite President.

A few weeks later Mark called and reported that he was with the President and put the Bible into his hands. Now let’s pray he reads it!

Design Trends: materials, finishes, and styles

“There are three responses to a piece of design – yes, no, and WOW! Wow is the one we aim for.” ~ Milton Glaser

New York Times best-selling author and contributor to O Magazine, Dr. Martha Beck has a unique coaching tool called “Your House as Your Life.” In the exercise, Martha asks you to think about the yuckiest area, room, shelf, closet, or drawer in your entire house and then to describe it in detail. Your descriptions reveal much more than the physical and/or emotional properties of the space. Amongst the word tumble coming from your stream of consciousness thinking are little jewels of insights that give you an indication of not only where you may be stuck or in pain, but also clues as to how to find the path forward out of your personal Hell. During my coaching certification training with Martha nearly a decade ago, I did this exercise and found the process to be equal parts fascinating and liberating.

Our spaces reveal ourselves to us. At the very same time, we are creating our spaces either very deliberately or passively. It cannot be ignored the impact our environment has on every aspect of our daily lives. The designs, materials, styles, colors, furnishings, and decorative accessories we see, touch, and use every day all have an energy that shape us in subtle and significant ways. Therefore, as I advise my teenage son on a regular basis, “Choose wisely.”

So, what are the trends and latest design elements on the horizon, and how are they shaping (and will continue to shape) our choices for how we create and define our spaces? What are we seeing now that provides us a glimpse into the crystal ball for what is to come?

Overall, if I had to find just two words to describe the current and coming vibe, I would say modern minimalism. Everyone seems to be focusing on essential living and asking him or herself, “What is it that I truly love and need?” Clutter and its sibling, over-sized or over-stuffed anything, are gone. In its place are clean, sparse spaces. Palettes are white on white, white on off white, or white and gray. Splashes of supremely bold colors are making their entrance – on walls and in rugs, pillows, art, and decorative accessories.

Marble, marble, marble. Marble is everywhere and fits effortlessly into the sleek and simple aesthetic of the modern trend. No longer just the domain of kitchens and bathrooms, I’m seeing people use marble slabs in their offices for everything from desk tops to mouse pads.

Metallics will continue to be a trend in the coming months, but taste is moving away from reflective surfaces and toward more muted and warm finishes. Look for satin or brushed brass and chrome in kitchens and baths, as well as in light fixtures throughout the home.

Beam me up, Scotty! More and more, voice-activated assistants in the home will be used to play music, dim your lights, read you the news headlines, place orders online, and more. The smart home ecosystem will continue to evolve and become more sophisticated and integrated into daily living.

Flooring changes are on the horizon. Parquet hardwood flooring, arranged in geometric or unique patterns, is coming back into vogue, along with gray, wood flooring that gives a softer, weathered look. Porcelain tile planks, designed to mimic natural wood grains, will continue as popular choices for bathrooms and other spaces prone to dampness.

Geometric tile patterns continue in kitchens and baths, with a special nod to funky pattern choices like the vintage and fun fish scale pattern. Iridescent accents on kitchen backsplashes and in ribbons of tile on bathroom walls add a shimmery look to an otherwise tailored space.

We will continue our attempts to bring the outdoors in with indoor showers that feel as if you are showering outside. Window walls opening to views of thick and private screens of vegetation and select landscaping give the freeing experience of being outside, while in the comfort of being indoors.

I checked in with local designer and owner of The Summer House, Paula Jones, to see what her observations are for trends in interiors. Paula noted, “Many, if not most, of our traditional collections have been replaced with ‘modern’ contemporary offerings…. Gray and white are everywhere! Here in the mountain resort area, there is the challenge to find the right blend of furniture, lighting, and accessories that reflect our surroundings while...

Four new faces at Highlands Sotheby’s

Highlands Sotheby’s International Realty continues to grow with an expanding team of exceptional brokers and sales production. The leading real estate sales company in Highlands over the last three years and a top producing company for seventeen years, Highlands Sotheby’s is leading the pack again in 2017 with 66 million in sales. The Sotheby’s team recently added the following brokers:

Kay and Joe Deckman. Joe has a B.S. in civil engineering and a B.S. in business administration from Lehigh University. After an extensive corporate career with public and private companies, Kay and Joe have spent the last few years in Manhattan managing a large project serving as President of Environmental Interiors. Kay and Joe moved back to Highlands to reengage in the real estate market where they were brokers previously since 2009.

Kay and Joe Deckman. Joe has a B.S. in civil engineering and a B.S. in business administration from Lehigh University. After an extensive corporate career with public and private companies, Kay and Joe have spent the last few years in Manhattan managing a large project serving as President of Environmental Interiors. Kay and Joe moved back to Highlands to reengage in the real estate market where they were brokers previously since 2009. “Highlands Sotheby’s is an excellent choice for us with their strong reputation for professionalism and success,” said Joe. As members of Highlands Falls Country Club, they are excited to reunite with friends on the Plateau.

David Parker. David has a BA in Management and Marketing from the University of South Alabama. He led a comprehensive career in business development, management, marketing and customer service. In the mid-1990s while living in Atlanta, David and his wife, Jacque, visited Highlands for the first time and it was love at “first visit.” They planned their relocation strategy and moved here 15 years ago. David has been active in the local community by forming his own community management company, serving as Development Director for The Bascom and serving as the golf services manager for Highlands Country Club and Wildcat Cliffs Country Club. He looks forward to bringing his extensive sales and negotiation skills to clients in real estate transactions.

Doug Treadwell. A top producer of John R Wood Real Estate in Naples with over 50 million in sales since 2010 and over $20 million in sales for the year 2013. With over 30 years of experience in real estate, Doug has had a varied career in virtually all aspects of the real estate industry. He has a strong background in business with an emphasis on Management, Sales, Financing, Leadership, and Team building. Doug brings this business approach to the sale of homes while working with both sellers and buyers. His approach is to provide information to the client by providing historical trends along with information on the future direction of the market. “It really isn’t so much about what the property is worth today, but what will the property be worth in 6 months or 6 years that is important to sellers and buyers.” Doug recently purchased a home in Highlands and looks forward to focusing on the buyer and seller pipeline between Naples and the Plateau.

With 700 offices worldwide and three prime locations on the Plateau, Highlands Sotheby’s International Realty is prepared to help you with all of your real estate needs. Our 30 brokers on the Plateau and our 14,500 across the world are the best in the business with record breaking sales year after year. Almost Elton John lights up the night

What's not to like about a rock 'n roll concert at an intimate venue? One that's easy to get to, with free parking, and a drinks truck offering fun mixed drinks along with wine and beer?

On a beautiful October night, I attended “Remember When Rock Was Young,” an Elton John tribute provided by Almost Elton John; a band of Atlanta-area musicians led by Craig A. Meyer as Elton. My inspiration for attending was to see KG Fletcher, my singing author friend who writes romance novels and is a singer in the band. (Her books are available on Amazon.)

From the get-go, it was a joyful evening. Almost Elton John (AlmostElton-John.com) tours all over the country, but they staged this Friday concert in their hometown at the Church of the Redeemer to benefit Autism Speaks (www.autismspeaks.org). I got my tickets as soon as I saw the event posted on Facebook and invited a friend to go with me.

Our evening was off to a great start when we wandered over to a tent thinking it might be where we'd find the bar but instead found a friendly crowd who invited us to partake of their hors d'oeuvres. I met Kathy from Kansas City, who'd flown in for the event and was there with her sister who lives in Atlanta. My friend connected with another gal over the topic of dogs. We drug ourselves away to stand in the drinks line to have our one cocktail before the concert began.

The concert was marvelous, and I now understand why folks say that Craig Meyer sounds more like Elton than Elton does. If you could see his moves on stage, you'd realize he must be pretty darned fit, and the voice—oh the voice. The voice, the moves, the sparkly outfits all combine to create a spectacular show.

As far as fundraising, the best was yet to come. The proceeds from ticket sales went to Autism Speaks, as did donations before the show, and then there was the auction. The high bid would have the opportunity to join Elton on stage while he sang a song to the winner. Bidding started at $100, and soon it was a battle between a gentleman near the front and Kathy from Kansas City. It made my heart sing to know that over $1,000 went to benefit research and treatment of those affected with Autism for that one song. Kathy was the winner, and Elton sang “Your Song,” just to her. I was astonished when she joined in for the second verse. It turns out she's also a singer.

But it didn't stop there. Before the final song of the evening, Elton invited the second highest bidder to make his donation. Once again, over $1,000 went to Autism Speaks, and two guests joined Elton on stage for another special song. Come to find out after the concert that Kathy from Kansas City was especially motivated to make the winning bid, as she is the great-aunt of a young man on the spectrum.

What a wonderful evening. Great music, a good cause, and new friends made it an event I won't soon forget.

introducing fresh, new looks. The ‘rustic driftwood’ finishes fit that category, with undertones of tan. It blends the old with the new. Imagine the bark of a tree. Lights and darks, browns, and grays.

“Lighter colors are being requested … light beige/gray tweed or the occasional white sofa paired with a print fabric on chairs and a pop of color in accent throw pillows is a great look!” said Paula.

On a personal note, perhaps my favorite trend of all is the advent of hand-drawn print and patterns, including typewriter let-

Annual Scholarship Golf Tournament 1st Place winners for 2017

The Town of Highlands held its annual Scholarship Golf Tournament on October 19th at Wildcat Cliffs CC. “The continued support from the membership of Wildcat Cliffs is incredible. For the last seven years, they have been willing to allow us to use their beautiful facility for the benefit of Highlands School students who are furthering their education. The golf course was impeccable as was the attention to detail and the service,” said Town Commissioner and event chair, Brian Stiehler. Mayor Pat Taylor echoed those comments and added they are an important part of the Highlands Community. Pictured are first place team consisted of: Chip Baggett, Benjamin Baggett and Jeff Baggett.
On October 11, Highlands Falls Country Club celebrated with a ground-breaking ceremony to expand their croquet complex. Located in Highlands, NC, Highlands Falls Country Club (HFCC) currently offers one full size croquet lawn, and a small (approximately 40%) practice lawn area. The existing croquet space has quickly become too small to accommodate the 241 croquet members in the club.

During the winter months of 2017, the idea of expansion at HFCC took shape. By August 2017, the necessary funding was in place to make the idea a reality. HFCC will be replacing the small practice lawn area with a second full size lawn. The second full size lawn will run continuous with the existing full-size lawn, giving club members various options for configuring the lawn space. HFCC will have the option to set the lawn space as two full size lawns, three 80% lawns, or four half lawns, (or a mix of the three).

In addition to the lawn expansion, the existing pavilion space that is used for social gatherings will also be expanded. The covered pavilion will double in size to accommodate the growing croquet population at HFCC.

Recycled Eclipse glasses get new homes

Five members of the Board of the Peggy Crosby Center packaged the eclipse glasses collected for recycling. Approximately 2,000 glasses were contributed to PCC. These used and unused eclipse glasses will be sent to Astronomers Without Borders. AWP will distribute them to schools in South America and southeast Asia for use during eclipses in 2019.

ters and messages on textiles, pillows, glass, and china. I imagine my affinity for this trend is rooted in my love of the written and spoken word, as well as in my joy in seeing script (that you would see on a journal page) across any surface. I recently saw a set of white dinner plates with poetry written in black script across the porcelain. Love at first sight.

Regardless of trends and styles that are in fashion, you are obviously free to opt out of the comings and goings of “what’s in” and simply continue to enjoy your interior spaces just as they are. But, if you are looking to breathe a little new energy into any literal or figurative dark corners in your life, trying on a fresh approach with bold choices can work wonders.
