Consequences of Mission/HCA merger

Last week, Mission Health and Highlands-Cashiers President Jackie Medland both sent press releases announcing Mission Health’s plans to join HCA Healthcare, a for-profit Nashville, Tennessee-based company founded 50 years ago by two physicians. “Mission Health’s Board of Directors has signed a letter of intent to enter into exclusive discussions to join HCA Healthcare,” reads the press release. “The board’s unanimous decision to execute the Letter of Intent (LOI) with HCA reflects its long-term vision and commitment to pre-

Tree removal at Cliffside causes alarm

Sign warnings of “Hazard Tree Removal” and “Caution, Logging Trucks,” on the Gorge Road near the Cliffside Recreation Area entrance as well as Turtle Pond Road have citizens alarmed. Long-time area resident and a self-proclaimed naturalist Tom Olson raised the alarm. “I walked in past signage informing me that the trail was closed, due to a “Hazard Tree Removal Operation Underway” and was met with the harsh reality that along the roadway to the beloved Cliffside Recreation Area, deep within the forest adjacent, Tree removal at Cliffside causes alarm

Get ready for Easter in Highlands!

Easter is a big deal in Highlands! On Good Friday at noon, the community gathers at the Catholic Church on 5th Street to begin the Stations of the Cross walk through town where the group stops at each church along the way. On Saturday at 11a, families gather at the Rec Park on N. 4th Street for the annual Easter egg dash for kids ages 0-9. On Easter Sunday, April 1, prior to the myriad of activities at each church in town (see ads throughout the paper), there is the Ecumenical Sunrise Service at K-H Founders Park on Pine Street at 6:45a. If it rains it will be in the Episcopal church sanctuary on 5th Street. – Photo by Kim Lewicki

I try to make measured public statements, but some folks may think differently about my statements at the recent Town Board meeting, the Community Coffee, and on WLOS TV News. These statements addressed the merger and acquisition talks between Mission Healthcare and Hospital Corporation of America (HCA). The messages were intended to remind these big healthcare corporations not to forget our hospital.

I am very aware of the challenges of keeping a small hospital like ours in operation given the national healthcare situation. Nevertheless, Highlands and Cashiers philanthropists built a wonderful hospital campus over many decades, and it has served this community in many vital ways. Changes are inevitable, but collectively we all want to ensure those changes benefit these communities.

Community leadership and stakeholders should be involved in the impending decisions that will lead to a reorganization in healthcare providers.

About six years ago our local hospital board realized that continuing to function as a small, independent community hospital was no longer sustainable. After an extensive review and study, the board decided to affiliate with Mission. In my estimation there have been some very advantageous benefits and positives of being a part of Mission Healthcare. The bottom line is we continued to have a hospital while many small communities have seen their hospitals close.

But, with this change, some folks in the community have regrets. Many services have been either eliminated or moved to other venues such as in Brevard or Asheville. On a positive note, a new emergency facility was built at the hospital from donations mainly by Cashiers and Highlands residents.

Access to quality healthcare has been a major driver for economic and community development in this mountain area. Quality healthcare is essential for sustaining quality community life. I had a recent conversation with Bob Kieltyka, the Director of the Highlands Chamber of Commerce, about the impending merger. He, too, shares the concern that hospital access is essential to area economic sustainability.

I hope a community coalition of stakeholders can be formed as these talks unfold between Mission and HCA. There are a number of questions that will inevitably have to be addressed.

For instance, will this new merger benefit:

I'm writing this letter to let everyone know about a problem that has bothered me for some time now and it has occurred to me that perhaps the community at large could help solve it. I'm sure many of you are aware that there are several blue recycling bins in the Highlands Post Office and probably many of you dutifully place your paper trash in them just as I used to do. That was until I learned a couple of years ago that there is no mechanism in place for their contents to actually be recycled. In fact they are dumped in the garbage just

Highlands Newspaper - Thurs., March 29, 2018 - 828-200-1371 - Page 5
Late March and early April is synonymous with spring greens. Just the thought of what’s to come in spring keeps us going through the cold snowy days of January and February. Including more greens – salads and otherwise – on your plate is a great way to lighten up the menu for spring. Even before the Farmer’s Market opens, we can find plenty of fresh organic greens like fresh baby lettuces, kale, spinach, arugula and dandelion greens at our local grocery stores.

But what makes greens so healthful? The health benefits of eating leafy greens can’t be overemphasized. Salad greens are loaded with vitamins A and C, as well as several of the B vitamins. Just one cup of these greens provides 70 percent of the daily recommended intake for vitamin A and 20 percent of the DRI for vitamin C. Salad greens are also a rich source of iron and calcium and numerous trace minerals including magnesium, phosphorus and potassium. Dark leafy greens such as spinach and kale also are good sources of vitamins K and E.

Plants also produce phytonutrients, compounds that help plants stay healthy as they grow. Plants grown on an organic farms produce even more of these phytonutrients. And what keeps the plant healthy, keeps us healthy as well.

Detoxify for Better Health

Best of all, spring greens are full of fiber and nutrients but low in carbohydrates and calories. You can eat as much greens as you want without gaining weight . . . and you’ll gain a tremendous amount of energy. Spring greens are nature’s way of helping us do some serious spring-cleaning of our bodies by removing the toxins and sludge that’s built up over the winter from the heavy, calorie-dense foods.

Recipe Ideas for Delicious Greens

Steam. Dress lightly steamed greens with a healthy dressing mix of first cold pressed extra virgin olive oil, fresh-squeezed lemon juice or balsamic vinegar, and sea salt or tamari.

Sauté. On low heat, saute a loose leaf lettuce such as a mache or curly endive in olive oil. Add a squeeze of fresh lemon and salt and pepper to flavor. This is a perfect bed for salmon or another grilled fish.

Grill. Sturdy heads of lettuce like romaine or endive can be sliced right down the middle. Give each half a quick brush of olive oil then grill until browned and slightly wilted on grilled side. Top with balsamic vinegar, extra virgin olive oil, salt and pepper and toasted walnuts.

Wraps. Sauté chicken breast with scallions, water chestnuts, mushrooms, garlic and ginger. Add a drizzle of sesame oil and soy sauce. Spoon into large Boston or Bibb lettuce leaves. Roll and enjoy.

Salads. What lettuce should be used for which salad? You really can’t go wrong, so be creative and experiment with different varieties or blends.

and within the area itself, there appears to be a full-scale industrial logging operation underway,” he said.

Olson said while he saw a few wind-damaged trees, and some very minor fire scarring in evidence, there are hundreds of healthy trees that have already been felled and many, many more slated for felling, as is evidenced by their blue spray-painted insignias.

According to USFS District Ranger Mike Wilkins, the fires the fall of 2016 in the Cliffside Recreation area are the reason for the tree felling and removal along the half-mile entrance road to Cliffside Lake.

“This area burned in the fall of 2016. In places there was 8-18 inches of duff, which is organic matter, that had built up over the years. Due to the drought in 2016 and subsequent fires, a significant amount of this burned deep into the soil. Consequently, a few trees and rhododendron began falling over last spring,” he said. “In addition, there were lots of trees that were killed or damaged to the point they would die within 3-10 years.”

Wilkins said with the potential of damaged trees dying over the next decade, there would be a constant dribble of hazard trees and limbs raining down onto the entrance road.

“We made the decision to harvest the trees along the entrance road and deal with the issue all at one time. It is far cheaper to sell the trees than cut them and haul them off ourselves. So, this is what we are doing,” he said. “It is also much safer to cut a tree before the fibers rot which limits the sawyer’s ability to directionally fall the tree and do it before the possibility of dead limbs coming down on the sawyer’s head.”

But according to Olson, the work is being conducted in a ruthless and careless manner, “and under pretenses clearly false.”

“Many healthy oaks, sourwoods, hickories and white pines are being taken down, far from any roadway, free from disease or damage. I ventured far upslope from any possible hazardous rationalization, and found wonderful trees, those long-beloved along this magnificent old forest trail, slated for removal, or already gone,” he said. “As I have traversed these trails for decades, I have marveled at this cove of hardfellow trees, those long-beloved ancients, (I counted over 150 rings on one felled white oak), are being extracted under rather dubious pretenses.”

However, Wilkins said the USFS is keeping an eye on the job and the tree removal contractors are doing what they were told to do -- removing trees for a distance of about a tree-length above the road. That distance is usually about 100-150 feet.

serve and expand Mission Health’s world-class quality of care for the residents of western North Carolina for generations to come.”

Though Mission and H-C Hospital officials are excited, the news has left the community wondering what this exactly means for healthcare services, specifically for citizens of Highlands and Cashiers at the Highlands-Cashiers Hospital complex.

Though Duke Lifepoint’s Harris Regional Hospital has announced its plans to soon offer incremental services in the Highlands-Cashiers area, Medland wants the community to know “Mission Health is not going away.”

“Rather, this is an important and proactive step intended to ensure that Mission Health remains well-positioned to continue to meet the unique needs of western North Carolina in a rapidly changing healthcare environment. For us here in Highlands-Cashiers, this means continued access – for the long-term – to high-quality, local healthcare. Given the external forces affecting healthcare today, this is truly significant. But beyond that, if this transaction goes forward as anticipated, HCA Healthcare will make another commitment to our community that could be truly transformational.”

Mission Health Board Chair Dr. John R. Ball said HCA Healthcare is a leading healthcare operator that offers advantages on a scale that would be difficult, if not impossible, to achieve otherwise.

Specifics weren’t forthcoming in neither Mission Health’s press release or Medland’s concerning specific services.

At last week’s Town Board meeting and in an interview with WLOS-TV Asheville, Mayor Patrick Taylor said he understands the costs involved with health care, but he wants to make sure citizens in Highlands get the services they need and want and he wants more community involvement in the decisions being made for their local hospital.

“The people of Highlands and Cashiers have invested $22 million over the years and it’s important that this community – its stakeholders – are involved in the ensuing discussions,” he said. “We need healthcare that is accessible to all citizens.”

According to Mission’s press release, a key component of the proposed agreement is the establishment of a new foundation “that would provide substantial annual investments dedicated to improving the health and well-being of the citizens of western North Carolina. In addition, since HCA Healthcare is a for-profit system, Mission Health’s real estate holdings are expected to generate millions of dollars in tax revenues for the area.

Since the Highlands-Cashiers Hospital has its own foundation – a “honey pot” of a foundation that has raised millions for the hospital – the mayor wondered if the H-C Hospital Foundation would be gobbled up by the “new” foundation or continue to stand on its own.

Questions requesting specific details posed to Medland here in Highlands were referred to Rowe-na Buffett Timms, SVP, Government and Community Relations at Mission Health.

“Mission has no ownership of the Highlands-Cashiers Foundation and has never had any ownership of that foundation. Rather, it is an independent, tax-exempt foundation supporting Highlands-Cashiers Hospital,” replied Timms via email. “As such, it is distinct from and not part of the HCA Healthcare and Mission Health relationship currently in due diligence. That money has always been and will always remain in that foundation supporting that foundation’s purposes.”

Harris Regional is considering moving into the area, like it has in Franklin, to fill what it and many citizens feel is a void at the H-C Hospital. Currently, the feeling in town – both Highlands and Cashiers – is that since Mission took over, services have been taken away and have not been replaced locally. Specialists are few and far between and people often have to make the trek to Asheville for services that used to be available on the H-C Hospital campus.

When asked if the association with HCA will bring those services back, the answer was vague.

“While we understand that everyone has their own perceptions, we do not agree with the characterization of “prior to Mission taking over” and subsequent to Mission enabling the hospital to remain viable and dramatically improving both clinical and operating performance.

“Service offerings are driven by what can be done safely and effectively in any given community.

“In view of the fact that the community isn’t changing with this contemplated transaction, it would be unlikely that services would change significantly.

ture Center property and into creeks across the street below.

Also of concern, were deep ruts across the travel-way which were hazardous to low-clearance vehicles.

For years, the town has scraped and covered parts of the road with gravel to ensure it was accessible to vehicles.

In 1987 the Town Board voted to officially open the road to vehicular traffic; in 1993 the board voted 4-1 to keep it open. Commissioner Amy Patterson, who has long advocated for the road to be closed to traffic, voted no in 1993.

This time it was erosion that caused her concern.

Since the gravel and dirt laid down by the town in its effort to maintain the road caused the erosion problem – because gravel on granite doesn't stick -- commissioners felt it was the town's responsibility to address the problem.

Changing the character of the road by paving was nixed because it was too expensive and would instigate another list of problems – namely speeding and safety for pedestrians who often walk the road.

So, at the annual retreat, commissioners decided not to pave the road, to put up a gate at the bottom shutting it down to vehicular traffic and to revert it back to a dirt hiking trail/road.

However, Public Works Director Lamar Nix was instructed to investigate the history of the road – that is, who owns it, when did the town start maintaining it, and other ways to access the power lines by utility crews and the rocks at the top by emergency vehicles.

At the March 22 Town Board meeting, Nix returned with answers in hand.

The overhead powerlines that serve the Ravenel Ridge Subdivision and the Playmore estate have to be maintained and accessed by the town.

“Leaving the upper portion of the road open to the electric department and accessed through the Ravenel Ridge subdivision is an option, and is being discussed with the Home Owners Association,” he said.

He learned that access to the Playmore estate electric service can only be had from its back entrance which is off Sunset Roc Road near the bottom.

The park at the top is owned by The Highlands-Cashiers Land Trust and there are easements on the road for utilities which is not of record but are visibly in use and Mayor Pat Taylor presented Highlands School second-grader, Annabell Ramos with an award for her artwork featured in the Newspaper in Education contest. The theme was the Town of Highlands and she depicted the town’s Christmas Tree. As an ex-elementary school art teacher, Taylor said the Newspaper in Education program is dear to his heart.

This week soccer played Tallulah Falls, Swain, and Tri County EC. They finished with a win in every game.
They beat Tallulah Falls 3-2, Swain 7-4 in overtime, and Tri County EC 7-0. Their next home game will be on Friday, April 20th. They will start at 6 pm and play Stephens County.

High-school track competed this week. In the shot put and discus, Jesus Damian finished in 4th place. Anne Marie Moore finished 2nd in the 800, 3rd in the 200, and 3rd in the triple jump. Maddie Drummonds finished 2nd in the high jump.

Middle school track also competed and did very well. Their official results will be coming in later this week.

Mission is very proud of the work it has done in collaboration with the Highlands-Cashiers Board and the community.

“With regard to potential future changes on the Highlands-Cashiers campus, what we can say today is that HCA has a long, proven history of investing in the communities it serves – from expanding access to urgent and primary care to enhancing specialty services,” replied Timms.

Highlander Griffin Bell was interviewed by WLOS when reporters stopped in at the Community Coffee at Hudson Library Friday, whose subject quickly segued in at the Community Coffee at Hudson Library.

Mission expects to join HCA later this year, but any deal still needs approval from the NC Attorney General.

Meanwhile, Mayor Taylor said all options should be considered.

“I think, as stakeholders, we ought to be able to have many different options. Maybe a merger with HCA and Mission wouldn’t be the best thing for our hospital and maybe we need to look at other affiliations,” he said. “Could we affiliate with possibly another provider, like Duke LifePoint, in this discussion and realignment?” he asked.

result in better healthcare access for High-lands and Cashiers residents? Will more services now located at the hospital be moved to other facilities? Will the community see more physicians coming to the area? Will there be a change of insurance plans considered to be in network? What will be the future of the hospital foundation in a for-profit model?

Forgive me if I’m being paranoid, but I could see a situation where a for-profit organization might review the numbers by helping improve access and maintain quality and clinical outcomes.

“We’ve only just entered the LOI and will begin having these more specific conversations about how HCA would move forward with respect to current or planned future projects within each local community. We’ll know more as our initial conversations continue over the next several months,” she said.

as the other trash cans are. I have made multiple inquiries about this problem to the post office staff and have always received the same answer. The US Post Office takes no responsibility for recycling beyond providing the bins and our Post Office has no means of getting the contents to the recycling centers. They estimate that it would probably necessitate at least two trips a week to keep them empty. Does anyone have any ideas? This is a lot of paper waste!

Owners of the road are Beth H. Hiers, Trustee; Playmore Highlands Ten, LLC; and the Highlands-Cashiers Land Trust.

Nix said the Town of Highlands has performed maintenance on the road since 1987 when the Town Board voted to open the road to vehicular traffic and to place it on the Powell Map.

The Powell Bill Program is state street-aid allocated to incorporated municipalities each year to help maintain roads owned by the municipality.

Powell Bill funds are to be used primarily to resurface streets within the corporate limits of the municipality but may also be used to maintain, repair, construct, reconstruct or widen of any street or public thoroughfare within the municipal limits or for planning, construction, and maintenance of bikeways, greenways or sidewalks.

Thursday night, commissioner acknowledged several things.

Since the town doesn’t own the road, and since it is the access road to the back of Playmore Estate and the platted Sunset Hills subdivision which has so far not been developed, the town can’t install a gate to keep vehicles off the road and technically, it shouldn’t be on the Powell Map.

The conclusion?

The town will no longer maintain the road. It will be taken off the Powell map. It will be open to vehicular traffic but signs will be erected at the bottom instructing drivers to proceed at their own risk.

Chamber of Commerce President Bob Kieltyka said the chamber will inform everyone that those who wish to drive and not walk the Sunset Rock Road should proceed with caution and at their own risk.

In addition, owners of the road will be notified to make sure they are OK with people walking or driving up the road and that the town will no longer be maintaining the road.

Y our cell phone, like mine, constantly informs you of breaking news. Said another way, we likely remain aware of the latest corruption, calamity, conspiracy or crisis taking place somewhere in the world. We know when the latest bomb has been delivered. We know when the most recent police officer has been shot? Within minutes we become aware of the latest school shooting or celebrity overdose. News organizations work tirelessly to immediately inform us of the latest indictments, implications of infidelity, inappropriateness and harassment. We know what is going on anywhere in the world within minutes and we have video in the palm of our hand to substantiate it. We swim in a reservoir of human depravity and it affects us whether we realize it or not. Eventually the fish has no idea he’s in water.

Maybe we need a phone app with only good news. The good news about bad news is that in light of the ongoing horrible calamities around us, good news sounds more like great news. The bad news intensifies our desperation for good news. Maybe we need to dwell on the following breaking news taking place all around us every single day that we rarely hear enough about.

Someone in your community just attended their first of many AA meetings. A recently frustrated couple just found out they were pregnant. Someone’s adoption was just finalized after many months of waiting. A scared, abortion-minded single mom finally made up with one another. A widow and a widower was just declared “cancer free.” A teacher finally connected with an apathetic student. A little boy made his first basket in competition. A scared, abortion-minded teen just cleaned their room. Someone just got married. Someone just received Christ. A mom finally made up with one another. A widow and a widower just finalized after many months of waiting. A couple finally made up after many years. A prayer meeting just started as another one just ended. Someone just got saved. A terror attack was just averted. Someone just unknowingly shared the gospel with a would be killer. Someone just got funded to minister to refugees. An unknown, seasoned prayer warrior just knelt down again—petitioning her Best Friend for help for this fractured and frantic nation.

Finally, brothers and sisters, whatever is true, whatever is noble, whatever is right, whatever is pure, whatever is true, whatever is noble, whatever is right, whatever is pure, whatever is true, whatever is noble, whatever is right, whatever is pure, whatever is true, whatever is noble, whatever is right, whatever is pure, whatever is true, whatever is noble, whatever is right, whatever is pure, whatever is true, whatever is noble, whatever is right, whatever is pure, whatever is true, whatever is noble, whatever is right, whatever is pure, whatever is true.

lovely, whatever is admirable – if anything is excellent or praiseworthy – think about such things (Phil. 4:8). If you look closely, you will see the acrostic, P.R.E-P.L.A.N.T. What are you planting in your heart and mind each day to meet the challenges of living in this fallen world?

Christ never promised us heaven on earth. Christ actually accentuated the opposite at times. Here is some good news to think about: If you trust in Him to have died as payment for your sin and you accept that demonstration of love and grace by faith then there is a heaven in your future. I encourage you to talk with Him about that in-between news alerts for He did die, and He did rise again and He remains deeply interested in you each and every day.

Wilkins said the area will look different -- rough for a while.

But the USFS will clean it up to the best of their ability and “more importantly, it will be much safer for the public,” he said.

Due to weather and equipment delays in completing the hazard tree removal on the entrance road to Cliffside Lake, the lake will not reopen until April 7.

After April 7, visitors can expect road closure delays for short durations and parking only in the first parking area near the lake till mid-May.
