The financing of health benefits
How Highlands, Franklin, Macon and Jackson counties are handling it

By Brittney Lofthouse

It’s budget time and the three governing boards in Macon County, the towns of Highlands, and Franklin, and Macon and Jackson countries are making business decisions for their respective agencies to make the numbers add up.

As always, something all the boards have had to closely evaluate is the insurance they offer to their employees.

This year, as a cost saving measure, and to better serve town

Duke’s ‘due’ is subject at budget workshop

By Brian O’Shea

Town of Highlands Board of Commissioners held its second budget workshop meeting last Thursday to wrap up details regarding the town’s budget before it is presented at tonight’s Town Board meeting. The topic that got most of the discussion was Duke’s coal ash costs and collections.

To determine the fees it was required to charge its utility customers on Duke’s behalf, the town has been working with numbers provided by its Duke liaison Kevin O’Donnell with NOVA Energy Consultants. Unfortunately, O’Donnell admitted he made a mistake and the figures he provided only included the 2018 calendar year and not the 2015-’17 catch up costs awarded Duke by the NC Utilities Commission.

Consequently, the town has

MC Schools joins ‘Stop the Bleed’ campaign

Since it looks like effective gun control laws aren’t coming anytime soon; nor is money to make public school campuses safer, the Macon County Board of Education voted unanimously to do the next best thing – become part of the “Stop the Bleed” campaign.

At Monday night’s school board meeting held in Highlands, board members voted unanimously to join forces with the Macon County Health Dept. which is allocating $11,000 – half the cost of 325 combat-grade first-aid kits for each classroom in Macon County public schools.

The school system is allocating the remaining $11,000 from its undesignated fund balance so a kit will be in each classroom the start of the 2018-’19 school year.

Superintendent Dr. Chris Baldwin said the school system’s

Fun for the whole family!
Lots of business at tonight’s Town Board meeting

The May meeting of the Highlands Town Board will be at the Highlands Conference Center next to the ball field beginning at 7 pm. The May meetings are always important town business proceedings.

The Town Manager will once again present a proposed balanced budget for FY 2018-2019.

The big item impacting the budget is the new water tank on Satulah. The cost for the project has been spread from this fiscal year into the upcoming one. The total cost for the project is about 1.3 million dollars.

The bids were opened for construction for the water tank last week. The lowest bid was about $400,000 over the projected cost. Lamar Nix, our Town Engineer, is working with the contractor to value engineer the overage as much as possible. The unforeseen problem was with the soil and rock conditions where the tank will be located. Simply put, there was not enough rock and too much soft soil. Additional steps will be required to make sure there is adequate compaction and strength to support the tank’s foundation. The foundation for such a heavy structure must go beyond adequate. Lamar wants to make sure the site and foundation will support the tank for decades to come. Additional reserve funds will be needed to resolve this critical problem.

The board will review the proposed budget at tonight’s meeting and call for a public hearing for adopting a final budget at the June meeting. After the public hearing, the board may make adjustments to the proposed budget prior to approval of the final budget that goes into effect on July 1st.

At tonight’s meeting there are two public hearings. The first will be for public response to a proposed ordinance allowing construction of new boat docks on Lake Sequoyah. The ordinance would permit limited size docks built with environmentally safe materials.

Another hearing will be held in conjunction with proposed modifications to the current ordinance regulating dam impoundments and lake draining. These changes are intended to clarify and to improve enforcement procedures.

The two proposed changes are a part of an ongoing effort to clarify and improved zoning and building regulations wherever possible. Our planning and zoning director, Andrew Bowen, continues to work with the planning board and Town Manager in improving our unified development ordinances.

There are several other items on tonight’s agenda. One will be a review of a preliminary and final subdivision plat on Hardscrabble. A follow-up discussion will be held concerning the abandonment of a road right-of-way on Big Bear Pen.

At a previous meeting, neighborhood residents requested the town consider abandoning a right-of-way that appears on subdivision plats and maps. The town attorney has been conducting legal research on the issue and will give a report. On face value, items like this appear to be rather easy to do, but the legal implications for the town, as well as for property owners, may not be so simple.

Hope everyone can join us for tonight’s meeting.

“Yo big guy! You are about to make a culinary decision that will be existential for both of us.”

Fund balance is pretty low, but felt it was important to fund this one-time event.

“A victim of any type of shooting risks the possibility of bleeding out so any way we can keep that from happening we will do it; and this is one way to cross that bridge,” said Todd Gibbs, auxiliary service director.

The “Stop the Bleed” campaign’s mission is to cultivate grassroots efforts that encourages bystanders to become trained, equipped and empowered to help in a bleeding emergency before professional help arrives.

The contents of the combat first-aid kits – combat gauze, tourniquets and more – have been used in Afghanistan, Iraq and elsewhere, said Gibbs. The tourniquets can be used over and over; obviously the gauze patches can’t. They are used to stop and coagulate blood within three minutes.

Concern over more recent violence including the shooting deaths of 17 students and staff at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, FL and last Friday’s killing of 10 students and staff in Sante Fe, TX has hammered home the need to do something.

During the first two weeks of workdays of the 2018-19 school year, every teacher in the system will be trained on applying a tourniquet and how to use the “blood-stopping” gauze so that when students arrive Mon., Aug. 27, teachers, staff and administrators will be ready for the unthinkable.

Southwestern Community College’s EMS instructor Todd Sumner will conduct the training classes.

Superintendent Dr. Chris Baldwin stressed that the combat first-aid kits are not meant to be used in instances when the traditional first-aid kit would be sufficient, but rather for a catastrophe of some kind.

The East Franklin Elementary School PTO already purchased kits for each of their classrooms but by August every public school classroom in Macon County will be outfitted with one.

been under collecting for several months.

The initial plan was to collect a certain amount from residences and businesses and then decrease that collection amount over three years.

To remedy the situation, the town will continue to collect the same amount over the next three years, instead of decreasing the amount per month over the years as originally planned.

For approximately a year and a half, the town will continue to under collect, but after that it will be over collecting for another year and a half, which will balance out the numbers, said Town Manager Josh Ward.

“The costs to residents and businesses would have had go up tremendously from $4.12 per month extra for residents and $15 per month for commercial accounts,” said Ward.

Mayor Pat Taylor said the original plan was to minimize Duke’s impact on citizens. “The idea is to pay off our debt obligations as quickly as possible. Unfortunately it’s a moving target,” he said.

Commissioner Donnie Calloway noted that O’Donnell has missed the target a few times over the last several years.

Two unexpected bonuses for the town include a federal tax code change that will save the town $44,000 this fiscal year, and $88,000 each following year. Secondly, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has deemed that Duke Energy has been over collecting since 2014 due to an incorrect regulatory asset rate formula resulted in a $175,000 savings to the town, which was received in March.

Due to that savings, Commissioner Amy Patterson suggested the town somehow credit that back to citizens.

“It’s not our money; it’s theirs. Maybe we should use that savings to offset the increases we may have to make later,” she said.

However, since the numbers provided by Duke Energy are projections and subject to change, basically a moving target, commissioners felt it imperative to review the numbers annually to properly plan ahead. In fact, Town Clerk Rebecca Shuler suspects the town has been undercharging.

“We’ll have to look at it annually, there will be some kind of true-up at the end of the year and we have to make sure we have that money,” said Ward after the meeting.
employees, Highlands has elected to switch from offering employees Blue Cross and Blue Shield to offering MedCost. The transition will save the town, $67,000 annually while still providing a good, solid insurance plan for its employees and their families.

MedCost has been the health and dental claims administrator and health provider network for the N.C. League of Municipalities since 2011.

MedCost provides a large health care provider network including access to every hospital in the state of North Carolina and dozens of primary care and specialty care physicians. It also provides a claims platform that allows Highlands to offer several new plans, even to the smallest member groups. MedCost also provides online enrollment, billing allocated by departments, and enhanced reporting for members.

When shopping for insurance options this year, Highlands Town Manager Josh Ward called the League of Municipalities and found out that they, as well as Franklin, Sylva, Shelby, and Mt. Holly all use MedCost.

According to Ward, the MedCost quote was a decrease of 8.5 percent from what Highlands is currently paying BCBS and MedCost has coverage in NC, SC and GA.

In past years, the Town of Highlands’ only insurance provider option was BCBS, so with a monopoly in the market, Highlands had little negotiating powers when it came to revisiting the contract with BCBS. However, with MedCost at the table this year, BCBS lowered its first quote.
Since we’re approaching calendar summer, I thought it appropriate to follow in the tradition of previous Highlands Newspaper columnists and pass along some hopefully helpful reminders for folks visiting our precious plateau, either for the summer or for a shorter visit.

There are basically four types of people you will encounter during your time on the Highlands-Cashiers plateau. These important distinctions matter because you will be interacting with all of them.

Natives are, by definition, people who were born, and continue to reside here. They operate businesses, work in and around our towns, know EVERYTHING about the area and can be valuable as a resource for business referrals, and locations of cool places and things to do. They are, generally speaking, very protective of the community and its surrounding environment. They may speak a bit more quietly than those from larger, busier cities. More “seasoned” natives may drive faster than might appear safe to you. They know our roads and switchbacks very well. Some of these roads were Cherokee trails way back when. They, or some of the younger natives, might blow by you regardless of where you are or how many lanes of traffic may be permitted. In a manner of speaking, they ‘own’ the plateau, and should be treated with a degree of deference.

Here’s a hopefully helpful hint: when you’re driving slowly and someone comes up fast behind you, look for a place to pull off the road and let them pass. There are plenty of such pull-offs. We learned this early on. It will make your drive safer and much more pleasant.

Locals, such as my wife and myself, are people who relocated from other places and who now live here all year long. We may not be quite as knowledgeable as natives but we’re pretty well informed and can be helpful. As with natives, we often work in and around town. We also volunteer. We choose to live here, and we care deeply about the community. We’re glad you’re here, but will grimace if, for any reason, you honk your car horn, or yap on your mobile device in a checkout line at Bryson’s, Ingles, or Mountain Fresh, ignoring the people working there as if they’re robots.

Our summer people are, in many ways, the reason both Highlands and Cashiers are so vibrant and full of energy for the better part of half the year. Our seasonal residents fortify our community’s tax base, pump important revenue into our businesses, most of which rely on a busy summer to sustain them through the quieter, slower winter months. Until they re-acclimate, even long-term summer residents show fear while driving our curvy roads. We smile, note the license plates, and give them the time and wide berth they need.

We locals, and many natives, love our summer people. We love it when they arrive and we appreciate it when Highlands eventually returns to the peaceful little town we’ve come to cherish.

Finally, we have our visitors. These are folks who vacation here, weekend here, day trip here, get married here, and pass through on their way to or from someplace else. We were visitors before moving here full-time. We appreciate visitors spending time and money enjoying our lovely shops, our outstanding restaurants, our hospitality businesses and our arts, cultural and natural resources. We enjoy having you and our summer people in our houses of worship and at our town festivals and events. We appreciate it when we catch you treating our community well. We’re delighted when you acknowledge and respect our service workers, who bend over backwards to be helpful and polite.

We hope you come back again and again, and we love it when you tell your friends what a beautiful place Highlands is and encourage them to visit. Except for the natives and their ancestors, we were all visitors before either buying a vacation home or moving here full-time.

Everyone thinks he or she lives in the best place in the world. Every day, most of us who are blessed to call Highlands or Cashiers home know and are grateful we live in a very special place. We view these mountains as healing and refreshing.

We hope you enjoy every minute of your time while you’re here, and we thank you for leaving our home as clean and as beautiful as you found it.

to Highlands by 12 percent, but even that was still more than MedCost.

Mayor Patrick Taylor said the town was expecting an increase from BCBS, which is why it began to shop around for insurance options for its 64 full-time employees.

Highlands will continue to pay 50% of dependent coverage.

Last year, when BCBS initially dropped out of its Mission Health contract, Franklin dropped BCBS and switched to MedCost for its 63 employees. At that time, the switch saved the town of Franklin $4,000 a year without jeopardizing the standard of insurance offered to employees.

Macon County, which provides insurance coverage options for 360 employees hasn’t been so lucky in terms of contract negotiations.

Last year, when Franklin switched from BCBS to MedCost, MC Manager Derek Roland said discontinuing their contract with BCBS wouldn’t be financially feasible for the county; it would cost the county at least $600,000 to replace the BCBS so it stayed with BCBS. This year, the county began to shop for new coverage, and found that BCBS was still the most affordable, although their rates dramatically increased.

Macon County’s Human Resource Director Mike Decker sent an email to all employees announcing that the insurance cost to the county would be increasing 24 percent in the coming fiscal year. Due to another high claims year and the proposed increase from BCBS, Roland said that Macon County would have to spend $750,000 more on insurance in the coming year. He said $500,000 of that will be absorbed in the county budget to cover the cost of insurance for county employees, which is 100 percent, but the remaining $250,000 will be passed on to employees and their families.

Memorial Day is set aside to honor those who made the ultimate sacrifice for our country, but it’s also a day when I’m reminded to think about those service members who are still with us. The Quilts of Valor Foundation is an organization that does just that. I learned about Quilts of Valor at a World War II Roundtable meeting last year. That day, Cecilia McVicker of Covington, Georgia joined the group to introduce us to the Quilts of Valor Foundation.

In 2003, Catherine Roberts had a dream while her son was deployed to Iraq, and she describes it on the Foundation’s website, http://www.qovf.org:

“I saw a young man sitting on the side of his bed in the middle of the night, hunched over. The permeating feeling was one of utter despair. I could see his war demons clustered around, dragging him down into an emotional gutter. Then, as if viewing a movie, I saw him in the next scene wrapped in a quilt. His whole demeanor changed from one of despair to one of hope and well-being. The quilt had made this dramatic change. The message of my dream was: Quilts = Healing.”

Her dream led her to found Quilts of Valor. Catherine envisioned a team of volunteers who would craft quilts to award to returning service men and women touched by war, quilts that would be reminders that their service was appreciated. Through the years, the recipients have grown to include service members and veterans of any conflict, not only declared wars.

Cecilia told the story of the quilts and explained that volunteers across the country donate time and materials to create the quilts, each one meant to comfort and heal its recipient. Since its inception, The QOVF has awarded 182,533 quilts.

That afternoon, she was there to award a quilt to the oldest WWII veteran present. One gentleman in his 90’s proclaimed he’d be 97 in September, and another raised his hand to say he would too. Cecilia had come prepared with two quilts, so she invited both veterans to make their way to the front of the room. Each was draped with a beautiful quilt to take home and cherish.

Cecilia left behind an informative and touching brochure that included the story of a WWII veteran. Al Lind was a POW for two years during WWII. When he discovered the Quilts of Valor Foundation, he was inspired to get involved. From 2007 until his death in 2010, he pieced together 450 Quilts of Valor.

Whether or not you’re a quilter, you can join the QOVF, and you can also make a tax-free donation. One quilt can cost as much as $250 to complete; donations help fund fabric, batting, and shipping. If you’re interested in joining a quilting group, visit this website, http://www.qovf.org/whos-in-my-area to find existing groups. I found Mountain Valor Quilters, Highlands, cutnpatch@yahoo.com and Smoky Mountain Quilters Guild, Franklin, mcan712@yahoo.com. You can start a new group too. Just check out the how-to information online.

These quotes from returning service members say it all:

“As silly as it might sound for a soldier with over three years in Iraq and Afghanistan to say, that blanket became a true item of comfort and peace for the road ahead.”

“My quilt isn’t another military medal to be placed in a box and sit on my shelf. I was moved to tears.”

All thumbs at sewing? You can always support our veterans with a donation to the Quilts of Valor Foundation, USO, VFW, or other veterans organizations this Memorial Day and throughout the year.

Eating well doesn't have to take a lot of time or effort, and this Easy Honey Mustard Chicken is proof of that. You can use fish or foul, either way you end up with a high-quality, complete protein that pairs deliciously with steamed or grilled veggies and a fresh green salad. You can also be flexible with what types of herbs you add in—like rosemary or tarragon, both of which are known to improve digestion and provide natural antibacterial effects. Impress your friends and family this summer with this easy-to-make delicious dish!

Ready in: 20 minutes for salmon, 50 minutes for chicken
Serves: 4

Ingredients:
- 1 tablespoon extra virgin olive oil
- ½ teaspoon sea salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 2 tablespoons Dijon or spicy brown mustard
- 1 tablespoon raw honey
- ½ to 1 teaspoon dried thyme, rosemary, tarragon, or other herbs of your choice
- 2 pounds bone-in, skin-on, free-range chicken thighs
- OR 1 ½ pounds skin-on, wild-caught salmon fillets

Directions:
1. Preheat the oven to 350°F.
2. Combine the olive oil, salt, pepper, mustard, and herbs in a small bowl.
3. Rub the mustard mixture over the chicken and under the chicken skin or on both sides of the salmon until completely covered. Cover and set aside in the refrigerator to marinate for at least 1 hour; salmon should marinate for no longer than 3 hours.
4. Place the chicken or salmon skin-side up in a 9-inch square baking dish or medium baking sheet, be sure to cover to keep the moisture in. Bake the chicken for 45 minutes or the salmon for 15 minutes, or until cooked through. For chicken, if there are juices in the pan, use them to occasionally baste while cooking by spooning the juice in the baking dish over the chicken.
5. If desired, broil for 1 to 2 minutes at the end of the cooking time for crispier skin.
6. Remove from the oven, serve on a bed of greens and with some bright grilled or steamed veggies, and enjoy!

By Dick Funsch
Highlands Writers Group

Every Tuesday morning for the past six months or so I’ve been sharing breakfast with a bunch of pretty amazing men … U.S. military veterans. The group has been on-going for 15 years, starting with three or four veterans getting together for breakfast on an every-now-and-then basis in 2003.

Today membership numbers about 30-30 with weekly attendance varying from 15-20 as the somewhat elderly group (one of whom is looking forward to celebrating his 100th birthday later this year) gathers at 8 am at the 34th Street South Bob Evans restaurant in St. Petersburg, FL.

The group, comprised of Army, Navy, Marines, Air Force, Coast Guard and National Security Agency veterans, is known as Bob’s Vets. Their sole purpose is to share their love of country and enjoy the companionship of like-minded men.

Bob’s Vets is somewhat unique in that there is no application for membership, no initiation fee, no dues, no officers, no roster of members, no formal agenda and no reading of minutes. The only ongoing tradition is standing before breaking bread, hands over hearts, and reciting the “Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.”

That said, Tuesday, May 1, 2018, was an exception to the rule. No, the veterans didn’t go dancing around the May Pole in a rite of spring … they experienced an event of far greater significance.

Two eighth-grade International Baccalaureate students at St. John Vianney Catholic Middle School in St. Pete Beach, FL, Brooke Brenneman and Codi Westbrook, presented their IB project: “I Am America.”

The title the girls selected was inspired by the title of a Memorial Day feature Bob’s Vets member John Stoeffler wrote for the St. Louis Post Dispatch in 2012.

His feature began: “I lost my first child on the day I was born, April 19, 1775 … I am America. He fell on the green at Lexington, his heart pierced by a British musket ball. Many more of my sons and daughters would fall on that day and in the years to come until the guns grew still and peace came to me on that glorious day at Yorktown, VA.”

Stoeffler’s feature continued as “America” grieved over the losses of additional sons and daughters as they sought peace, freedom and equality in wars and acts of terrorism labeled 1812, Spanish-American, Civil, World Wars I and II, Korea, Viet Nam, the Twin Towers, Iraq and Afghanistan.

It’s little wonder the two students were gripped by and adopted the title: “I Am America” for their school project. In essence, their project focused on people’s awareness, or lack thereof, of the contributions and sacrifices made by military veterans through the years, from the Revolutionary War in the 1770s to the present day conflict in Afghanistan.

With money out of their own pockets, funds acquired through the sale of small American flags they had purchased and resold to friends, neighbors and fellow students, the two girls surprised one and all by buying the assemblage of veterans breakfast.

They came up with the idea on their own; it was their thoughtful and meaningful way of saying “Thank you” to all veterans and their families for the sacrifices they had made on behalf of their country. Needless to say there was hardly a dry eye in the house, correction, in the restaurant.

The girls circulated among the group of veterans, handing out small American Flags and candy mints, greeting each person individually, asking about their time in uniform, and once again expressing their thanks and appreciation for each veteran’s years of service.

I was in awe. Saying: “Thank you for breakfast” seemed wholly inadequate under the circumstances. Overwhelmed by the girls displays of maturity far beyond their years, their motivation, commitment and respect, I was in awe. Saying: “Thank you for breakfast” seemed wholly inadequate under the circumstances. Overwhelmed by the girls displays of maturity far beyond their years, their motivation, commitment and respect, what more could one say? The girls, by their deeds and actions, had said it all.

With the next generation including the likes of these two young ladies, barely in their teens, there’s little doubt in my mind that the future of the country rests in the very best of hands.

In addition to satisfying school requirements, the girls realized additional and unexpected benefits from their project. “We now have so much more respect for the people that served America and we will carry this experience with us for the rest of our lives,” they said. “We also learned that one person can make a difference, not only to our community but also to our own generation.”

God bless the girls, their parents, their teachers…and, lest we forget…

God Bless America.

At a recent breakfast meeting of the veterans group, Codi and Brooke were unanimously elected honorary lifetime members of Bob’s Vets/St. Petersburg, FL.

A Pilgrim’s Journey

Pastor Randy Lucas

One of the unique treasures of a delightful community like Highlands, is the rich beauty of her people. Whether members of multi-generational families, year-round or seasonal residents, tourists, frequent or first-time visitors, the streets, shops, restaurants, walking-trails, mountains and water-falls are alive with all kinds of interesting folk.

Take just the other day for example. While walking along main street, I happened upon a couple who caught my attention. Maybe it was their clothing, which was different from the usual sidewalk attire I’m accustomed to seeing here on the plateau. It could have been the large stick the man used to tap the ground as he walked, more like a shepherd’s staff. It could have been the age of the couple, well advanced in years, their appearance a mixture of strength and weariness. But I think what really grabbed my attention was the unavoidable fact that the elderly woman was pregnant.

I invited them to join me for a cup of coffee at Buck’s, and for a couple of hours we sat and talked, laughed and cried, remembering the past and imagining the future together. I learned that the man’s name was Abraham. He was just weeks away from his 100th birthday, and Sarah, his wife, was not far behind in age. They were expecting their first child. They spoke of hard and dangerous travels in far away places, of fears, frustrations and failures.

But mostly they spoke of promise.

They spoke of a promise received many years ago. The promise of a land of plenty, safety, refuge and hope, and of a people too numerous to count, beginning with the unborn child growing in Sarah’s belly in Buck’s Coffee Shop that day. And they spoke of purpose.

They spoke of a purpose that had come to them in the form of a calling. It was a calling with an unmistakable divine origin. It had been stirring in Abraham’s soul and of a people too numerous to count, beginning with the unborn child growing in Sarah’s belly in Buck’s Coffee Shop that day. And they spoke of purpose.

with an increase for dependent coverage.

This marks the second year that Macon County employees have seen an increase in their insurance rates.

Last year, Roland did a complete overhaul of the county’s health insurance budget due to the reserve fund being depleted by prior administrations. To help offset the financial burden the increase would have had on county employees last year, the annual budget included a 2 percent cost of living increase for employees, which in total, cost the county $387,507.

This year however, despite an increase in ad-valorem tax collection as well as an increase in sales tax revenues for Macon County, Roland said that a cost of living increase is not being recommended for county employees and neither is utilizing the county’s more than $21 million fund balance to avoid passing the financial burden of an insurance hike to county employees.

In Jackson County, a similar rate increase is expected, but rather than pass the rate increase on to county employees, Jackson County Commissioners elected to contribute more to the insurance fund.

Macon County employees either have to pay the difference or as Decker recommended, look at applying for Medicaid.

“Those of you with children ages 0-19 might want to inquire about the availability of Medicaid or Health Choice coverage.”

For a county employee receiving county insurance for an employee and a spouse, no children, the rate increase will mean paying $121 more a month for a total cost of $394. An employee with more than one child will now have to pay $493, an increase of $147 a month. The largest increase comes for employees who insure their families, a spouse with at least one child. Those employees will now be paying $693 a month for insurance, an increase of $205 a month.

To put that into perspective, a sheriff deputy in Macon County earns $15.80 an hour, or roughly $2,528 a month. To provide insurance for a deputy’s family next fiscal year, the deputy will be paying $693 out of their $2,528 (before taxes) pay check.

Since the enrollment period was before the county’s final budget workshop, county employees insurance increases will be deducted beginning with the first two payrolls in June for coverage beginning July 1.

And as I waved goodbye and watched them head toward Horse Cove Road, I found myself offering a silent prayer. It was a prayer of gratitude for all the pilgrims whose honest and authentic faith journeys have crossed my path across the years, whose stories continue to encourage and inspire me, helping me to somehow make sense of my own journey of faith.

times of crippling doubt, times when they trusted God and times when they laughed at the foolishness of what they had been asked to believe.

With the afternoon sun waning they took their leave and continued their journey, in sure and certain confidence toward the fulfillment of the promise they’d received many years ago, the promise that still carried and sustained them.

In addition, it is important to always make sure that your home meets your needs. Don’t be so wowed by the kitchen that you don’t notice the missing bedroom, or limited number of bathrooms.

Also, it is best to make sure the house is what you’re looking for in terms of condition. Do you have to remodel? A little might be OK but a huge project will take commitment. Your Realtor® will help you evaluate the home for sale, but you need to provide a list of wants and needs. More importantly you need to make sure these items on the list are checked off by the home in question.

There is a lot that goes into purchasing a home, this is where it helps to hire a Realtor®.

Number one is to hire someone of good character, reputation and integrity, along with a working knowledge of the area and market conditions, plus experience with NC Real Estate Law, purchase/sale documents and up-to-date tools of the trade.
