Town Board considers annexation and sewer hook-up policies

Requests to be annexed into the town by individual homeowners and subdivisions or to just hook on to town sewer are increasing.

At the July Town Board meeting, Mayor Pat Taylor initiated a discussion regarding current policies and where the town should go here on out.

“We have had several inquiries from neighborhoods and potential neighborhoods about annexation. We have also had inquiries from people who just want to tap on to the sewer line who are willing to pay a very substantial attachment fee as well as triple rates like people on water outside the town limits now pay,” said Mayor Taylor. “Josh [Town Manager] and I feel the board needs to review our policy as it now stands and possibly formalize it.”

According to his research, Mayor Taylor said back in the ‘60s

Everyone has pulled together and we’ll be ready to open Patsy on August 1st.”

Fun for the whole family!
On Tuesday the quarterly joint meeting of Macon County, the Town of Franklin and the Town of Highlands was held in Franklin. These meetings provide elected officials an opportunity to gather together and exchange information. The mayors and chair of the county commission provide reports. Let me share the highlights of the report I gave at the meeting.

I reviewed a number of initiatives that we are undertaking in Highlands. The first item was where the town stands on the construction of the fiber optic network. The contractor is on location and will start building from the outlying areas into the central hub at the old restrooms next to the building from the outlying areas into the construction of the fiber optic network. The first item was where the town stands on initiatives that we are undertaking in Highlands.

I informed the group that the 630,000-gallon Satulah water tank is now built. The finishing of the site and testing of the tank will take several months to complete. Satulah will be paved after the tank is operational.

Road paving is a big item in our new budget. I let everyone know we will start letting paving contracts later this summer. Hickory Hill, part of Cullasaja and Oak Lane are all scheduled to be paved. Split Rail will be resurfaced after the new $875,000 waterline is installed later in the fiscal year.

I invited Macon County to partner with Highlands in solving the trash and recycling problem here on the Highlands Plateau. Together we need to build a convenience center that is centrally located near or in Highlands.

I also invited Macon County to partner with Highlands in fortifying the EMS ambulance system. With the construction of the new fire department, there is an opportunity to locate the EMS operation with the fire station. There might even be a possibility of expanding ambulance service, especially if our local health foundation and HCA are willing to be partners in this effort.

The issue of tractor-trailer trucks on the Gorge Road was also in my report. NCDOT will be deploying radar activated lights in Highlands and in Franklin that will warn trucks not to use the Gorge Road. The lights will come on only when large vehicles approach the dangerous road.

Partnering with NCDOT, Mayor Bob Scott of Franklin and I will be working with our legislative representatives to pass special, local legislation that would allow cameras to photograph trucks that violate the prohibition of trucks on the Gorge Road. The cameras would not automatically issue tickets, but would document that truckers, after being warned, continued to go on the Gorge Road. The photographs would help law enforcement build a case against violators.

I also provided an update on building a connecting greenway from Cashiers to Highlands. Maybe both Jackson and Macon counties can help in making the concept a reality.

Christine Erin Kelly passed away peacefully at home in Scaly Mountain on July 31 at 5:15 a.m. after a long battle with cancer. Funeral services will be held at the First Presbyterian Church, Saturday, Aug. 3 at 10 am.

A comprehensive obituary and an in memoriam will follow at a future date.

Dear Editor,

This letter is not meant to be personal at all; but I respectfully disagree with the idea of putting up lighted tape around the trees in town. The idea reminds me of a mall, or of Las Vegas or perhaps Dollywood. I don’t think we should remind anyone of those places. Our stores and restaurants, which have lots of attractive lighting, attract plenty of attention as they are now — without added lighting. And if we added any more traffic, we would have to add some new roads (and heaven forbid)

Highlands is not broken in any way. We have a successful town with plenty of interested tourists so what is to change?

So please let this idea go the way of any unfortunate idea — deep six it. No hard feelings.

Jody Lovell is named to ‘REAL Trends + Tom Ferry America’s Best Real Estate Professionals’ in Highlands

Jody Lovell of Highlands Sotheby’s International Realty was named one of America’s most productive sales associates as a part of REAL Trends + Tom Ferry America’s Best Real Estate Professionals, a ranking report produced by REAL Trends and Tom Ferry International.

For the third year in a row, she has been chosen as a member of the “America’s Best Real Estate Agents,” and ranked Number One for 2016 and 2017 and was ranked Number Two in 2018 for the state of North Carolina.

REAL Trends America’s Best Real Estate Professionals ranks over 14,500 residential real estate professionals solely based on their excellence in real estate sales during calendar year 2018.

All production numbers are independently verified by a third party in order to ensure accuracy and report integrity. This group of highly successful real estate sales agents represents the top 1.5 percent of all real estate practitioners in the United States.

“Congratulations to Jody Lovell who made the America’s Best list,” says Tom Ferry, owner and founder of Tom Ferry International. “I have the pleasure of working with successful real estate professionals day in and day out, and I know all the hard work, late nights and huge amount of effort that goes into achieving such incredible results,” says Ferry. “There are multiple ways to become successful in real estate. Yet, despite the differences, the real estate professionals on this list have one thing in common – they are simply the best. Congratulations to each and every recipient of this prestigious recognition.”

Steve Murray, president of REAL Trends, said the individual agents and teams who make up the 2019 America’s Best Real Estate Professionals represent less than 1.5 percent of all Realtors® in the country yet account for over 12 percent of the closed transactions and more than 22 percent of all the sales volume closed last year.

“To say that Jody is an exceptional sales professional is an understatement. To attain this level of sales is truly outstanding,” he said.

Jody said she is obviously pleased and honored to be ranked as one of the country’s top residential real estate agents.

“I am extremely grateful to my clients and to my colleagues at Highlands Sotheby’s International Realty,” she said. “This award represents the time and effort that we put into each client that we serve and how much work it takes to build a successful real estate career. The level of sales it takes to qualify makes it a truly special recognition.”

To qualify for inclusion, an individual agent must have closed at least 50 transaction sides or $20 million in sales volume in 2018.

Incredible opportunity to purchase a small strip center across from The Dollar General Store in Scaly Mountain.

THE CURIOUS MIND KNOWS NO BOUNDS
the town took the stance that only in-town citizens could get town water and sewer. This came after an era of development where several satellite subdivisions outside the town limits were allowed to have town water. The town soon realized this was unsustainable.

“Developers built waterlines in subdivisions and then came to the town to ask for permission to tap into the town’s water system, and to be quite frank when the town said ‘yes’ and took over those lines, the town had to replace them,” he said.

The board quickly agreed that just saying “yes” to an annexation request wasn’t fiscally sound.

“If someone or a group asks to be annexed it needs to be carefully studied because sometimes a request could require that we spend a lot of money without any history of tax income from that area to be annexed. So, there is a balance there,” said the mayor.

Specifically, he said annexation and sewer hook-ups are the kinds of issues the town needs to address. Furthermore, the town needs to be very careful that it doesn’t make a policy that isn’t beneficial to the town.

Town Manager Josh Ward said there are several scenarios that have come up.

One, existing subdivisions outside the town limits want to be annexed because of failing or substandard infrastructure.

Two, last year a large contiguous tract of land along US 64 east and the Cullasaja River with access to electric, water and sewer was annexed and three, there are other property owners next to the town’s sewer line that runs from the town to the hospital who want to hook on but don’t want to be annexed.

Years ago, the town agreed to run a sewer line to the hospital based on a public health and safety stance, but no one along the route can tap into it—just the hospital.

“Last year’s annexation of the property between US 64 and the Cullasaja River is a large piece of property that had available utilities—electric, water, sewer—but it isn’t subdivided. It was annexed in but when they subdivide, they will have to follow all our subdivision ordinances—40 ft. rights-of-way, 18 ft. wide roads, utilities installed according to the town standards,” said Ward.

“The difference is that one of the inquiries we had recently is from an existing development that doesn’t meet our standards. So how do we address that? That is what we are looking at—already subdivided with utilities that aren’t up to our standards.”

Commissioner Amy Patterson said there are a lot of issues to consider—properties would have to be contiguous to the town limits for one and what it would cost the town to basically expand.

“People usually ask to be annexed because they need something done that they don’t want to pay for. But the town doesn’t have any money except what it takes from its citizens. So the town isn’t going to take money from citizens who have been paying taxes and user fees for years and years and suddenly use it to upgrade somebody who is outside town and never paid any of those fees—basically giving them the same benefit given to the town folks,” she said. “I understand why they want to come, but it’s not fair to the citizens who have been here, paying the taxes, paying the electrical fees, which funds a lot of our capital improvements, and suddenly annex them. Even if they have their infrastructure up to standards, the next time they need something repaired we pay for it without them having the history of paying the taxes and fees. We can’t say anyone who wants to come can come. The town will go bankrupt eventually trying to fix everything outside of town.”

The mayor likened the scenario of annexing existing contiguous subdivisions to taking over public roads in town.

“This is very similar to a situation a couple of years ago when we had people requesting the town take over private roads in town. The town went back and actually formalized an ordinance saying that before the town can take over a private road it has to be brought up to town standards. I think a similar policy in the form of an ordinance might be appropriate when it comes to annexation or allowing people to tap into our system,” he said.

Commissioner Brian Steihler suggested simply requiring a similar policy outside of town when it comes to annexing or tapping into sewer lines, but Commissioner Patterson said the difference is the town has ordinances for in-town scenarios, but no ordinances that apply outside of town.

Furthermore, she said when people inside town want to hook on to town water and/or sewer they pay for the job.

“The difference is when we have people in town who want to get on to the sewer who don’t have sewer right in front of their house, they have to pay for the whole thing going from their house to our sewer lines. We don’t pay for that. So, it would be the same thing. If a subdivision contiguous to town limits that doesn’t have adequate sewer or water wants to be annexed, it would still have to pay for the whole thing, too. If we do that to individuals in town who are citizens, why wouldn’t we do that to a community that wants it?”

The mayor agreed saying homeowners in a subdivision who want to be annexed would need to do all that type of work first.
We are often asked to consider what might be the single biggest threat to America’s national security. Perhaps we should consider the possibility there might be more than one.

A year 2000 book by Tom Clancy titled The Bear and the Dragon presented a scenario whereby two of the United States’ largest and most dangerous rivals were engaging in armed conflict for regional dominance. The novel centered on if, how, why and when the United States would pick a side between Russia (the bear) and China (the dragon). Neutrality wasn’t an option, because that would have made for about 1,000 pages of boredom, and Clancy fans know the man did not do boring.

Fast-forward nearly two decades. Russia is actively and unapologetically corrupting our elections and is engaging in digital terrorism with the goal of destabilizing our economy and weakening our sense of security. China is stealing our intellectual property at an alarming rate and is playing a dangerous and costly tariff game with the U.S.

And either we can’t, or we choose not to do anything about either of them.

Russia has already re-taken Ukraine and continues to show force along the Baltic Sea in proximity to former Soviet clients Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia. These nations are now members of NATO, and therefore Russia’s activities could drag us and our allies in Western Europe into an armed conflict. Mr. Putin is also appropriating large swaths of the Arctic, placing bases, ships, medium range missiles and ground troops in proximity to us and other peace-loving nations.

Further east, while we’re distracted by these tit-for-tat trade and tariff issues, China is flexing military and economic muscle in the South China Sea, near the Philippines and Taiwan. Through its puppet in North Korea, China keeps two trade rivals, South Korea and Japan, who we are sworn to defend, under constant fear of attack. In addition, China is investing boatloads of cash in traditionally American markets throughout Asia, Africa and South America through infrastructure investment and weapon sales.

Every administration, including President Trump’s, has a constitutional right and responsibility to execute its own foreign policy. In the aftermath of WWII America was able to set the agenda throughout the world. And, we did. We established important treaties and relationships. Our economy was untouchable. Our military and our nuclear arsenal were overwhelmingly more powerful than that of any other nation, including Russia and China.

It would be calming, around the world and here at home, if America would make its foreign policy intentions known in clear, unambiguous terms. Right now, the only thing that seems clear is, we are isolating ourselves from our neighbors and allies, and ignoring the activities of our rivals.

As 2020 approaches, both the President and his opponents need to articulate a clear vision about America’s place in the world. Some degree of sabre rattling and populism is to be expected but talk of America first must not signify America only. We have global challenges to face, and in order to deal with climate change, Iran, terrorism and potentially combustible situations...

“We need ordinances in place that explain the steps that have to happen – criteria that has to be met to be annexed. Then when people come to our town planner or Josh and say, we would like to be annexed, we can say here is the town ordinance and here is what you have to do and so forth, so we can work on this in a systematic way and then we can decide whether or not to annex.”

Commissioner Eric Pierson said there would be a lot of requirements before annexation can be considered.

“We can’t just say ‘yeah’ and thereby agree to pay millions of dollars of infrastructure,” he said.

The mayor said there may be some situations where the cost of providing utility services outweighs the benefit of annexing an area.

Even though Highlands is surrounded by a lot of USFS land, which in its nature curtails expansion, Commissioner Patterson brought up the limited nature of Highlands water supply and capability to treat sewage.

the beloved American songstress and will be the final production of the Highlands Playhouse’s 2019 season.

“It’s a great way to end our season and to celebrate the plateau community that’s been so thoughtful and generous in the wake of the fire,” says Matzke.

Always, Patsy Cline runs August 1 – 17. Tickets are available at highlandsplayhouse.org or at the Playhouse box office on Oak Street.

“We are on the top. We have a finite water supply. We also have a finite ability to treat sewage. Look at the shape Cashiers is in because it has a lot of development it can’t do anything with. Cashiers is trying to figure out how to make all that work. We don’t want to overload our system – a system that works well,” she said. “We wouldn’t go outside of town except for contiguous annexation, but still there is a certain economy of scale for the up-end and the low-end. We have enough water now, but there have been dry years that have been difficult.”

Public Works Director/Town Engineer Lamar Nix said there is an equation that dictates and helps foresee what is possible concerning water supply and sewage treatment.

“There is a term Federal and State agencies use called 7Q10. This describes the amount of water in a watershed and determines the amount you may withdraw [water] and the amount you may discharge [wastewater]. The Town has enough capacity to supply the town limits and some of the plateau, but not all. The same can be said of the wastewater.”

He said the daily average flow from the water treatment plant and the wastewater treatment plant shows if the town is headed for problems and by design can calculate any future flows from proposed projects.

Commissioners agreed to go to committee to discuss the feasibility of future annexations and to write and adopt ordinances outlining the necessary steps and stipulations before that can happen.

You may not be old enough to recall those words as the title of a song in “Annie Get Your Gun,” but as soon as I typed them, the song sprang to mind—not that this column has anything to do with singing. I can assure you that singing doesn’t come naturally to me, but I’ve discovered that writing does.

I write daily, often for hours, but I’d never really thought about where my writing ability came from until my friend Rob Paley asked me to edit his memoir. Yes, I have two degrees in English, wrote and edited throughout my corporate career, and am a columnist and author today; but all of that still doesn’t explain why writing and editing come so naturally to me.

I majored in English because I loved reading, not because I had a yearning to write. And I briefly taught English because that’s what you did with an English degree back in the day. When I went to work for a bank, somehow long before I realized it, the more I sang, the more I began to look back and wonder aloud how I did it. And why writing and editing come so naturally to me.

As compensation for editing the book, I requested two signed copies and two tickets to the movie premiere when Hollywood picks it up. That should tell you how highly I think of it. I see Rob’s writing as masterful, but only he can tell us whether it also “comes naturally.”

I explained to him that both my sisters are avid readers and are also well-written though they weren’t English majors. I may be the family grammar geek, but we’re all word nerds, and my youngest sister regularly slaughters me at Words with Friends. Of course, a good vocabulary and good grammar do not a good writer make.

Our conversation prompted some introspection and produced an aha moment. I’d forgotten that my father had begun writing a novel before he passed away at age 51. He briefly attended Brooklyn College, long enough to lose his Brooklyn accent, but not nearly long enough to pursue a degree. And yet, in his 40s, he started a novel.

Pondering the nature vs. nurture question was a logical next step. The nature side of the equation would say that we three girls inherited a penchant for words and writing from our father. Perhaps for me, years of writing in corporate America nurtured that penchant until it flourished. While experts debate whether it’s nature or nurture that has the most influence, I’ve never thought that one had to be dominant, and I think both have shaped who I am.

Now back to Rob and his book. “The Last Salute: The True Story of a West Point Cadet’s Dream to Honor His Dying Father” is a must-read. Face it; not all memoirs are intriguing or even interesting. It takes talent to weave a true story into a compelling tale -- one you can’t put down. As he writes in the introduction, it’s “a story of love, sacrifice, honor, and forgiveness.” It’s a story about a father and a son and a mother’s love and devotion.

Meticulously maintained, this home in the private gated Ravenel development is tucked away at road’s end in a tranquil, private setting where you can live in peace and quiet and still be right in town. The house backs up to protected Land Trust wooded property and the Fodderstack mountains on US Forest land. Easy walk to Ravenel’s gazebo with a beautiful view and to top of Sunset Rock. The house is elegantly simple with over 4,800 heated sq.ft. yet feels as intimate as a cottage. Main floor living area is open concept with vaulted ceiling and stacked stone wood burning fireplace in the living room. Master suite, laundry room, pantry, half bath, screened porch and an open deck are also on the main level. Lower level living area has a stacked stone gas fireplace, wet bar, full deck and two guest bedroom suites. Second lower level has a third living area, two guest bedroom suites and large workshop. Indeed a rare opportunity to be in Ravenel in a 5 bedroom, 5 ½ bathroom house for well under $3 million!

Offered for $2,400,000. MLS# 91397

Week Five of the Highlands-Cashiers Chamber Music Festival opens with Ravel’s Gaspard de la Nuit, widely considered “the most difficult piano piece ever” and a “triathlon for a pianist.” You will not want to miss this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to hear one of chamber music’s most elusive masterpieces in the capable hands (literally) of pianist, Victor Asuncion, on Friday, August 2 and Saturday, August 3. He will then be joined by Festival favorite and premier cello player Sara Sant’Ambrogio for Rachmaninoff’s passionate Cello Sonata.

On Sunday, August 4 and Monday, August 5, the innovative program contains works by two composers rather than the traditional single creator. Mr. Asuncion will share the stage with violinist Robyn Bollinger and tenor Bradley Howard for pieces in various combinations by Bach, Rachmaninoff, Shu-ok, heretofore deviant expressions of sexuality are good, murder (abortion, suicide, euthanasia) is liberating, ridiculing the police is appropriate, lying about everything in the media is justifiable, visceral hatred and civil violence are good, following fake news and fake gods is where it’s at. The devil is a fantastic illusionist.

Thanks be to God we have someone who really loves us enough to tell us the truth about all of this: Jesus. He is the Word, the Way, the Truth and the Life. We don’t have to perish in the cloud of the delusion of illusion. His word and his reborn people can shed light on the pathway to life. Read, if you will, John 8:31-47. Is your father the father of lies? Are you free from the evil one’s fog. The Son will set free. Then consider John 10:10. Is your life abundant or has satan stolen life, ended life or destroyed it? Jesus says “come unto me.” In him is life and that life is the light of the world. Alleluia!

About short-term rentals

Dear Editor,

I appreciated the Investing at 4,118 Ft. article “There Goes the Neighborhood” in the July 11 issue by Realtor Jeannie Chambers.

I own a second home in the Highlands area.

My neighborhood here has similar concerns regarding short-term rentals (STR). It has occurred to me that this issue might already be addressed in existing zoning regulations. There are provisions in the Highlands zoning that govern the where and how STR are allowed. These provisions call such use Tourist Homes. It would be interesting to know if the zoning laws are being adhered to.

Thanks goes to C.Orrico

Dear Editor,

The Cashiers-Highlands Humane Society would like to express its heartfelt thanks to C.Orrico and their customers for their kindness and generosity.

A “Shop-and-Share” was held Tuesday, July 23rd in honor of the Humane Society where a percentage of store sales was donated directly to our shelter.

We are so grateful for Colleen, Dory and all of the employees at C. Orrico for working so hard to make this event happen. Partnerships with local businesses in Highlands are so important to us, and we couldn’t continue our lifesaving work without their compassionate support. Thank you!

n an online search for the greatest illusionists of all time, a handful of them are widely recognizable individuals, while most of them are artists who labored in anonymity. Harry Houdini, David Copperfield, Doug Henning, among others, have earned some degree of greatness throughout the past seven decades. Most of the others did not gain too much Notoriety. However, and much to my chagrin, there was one particular name missing from the top of my list that I expected to find. It was a glaring and regrettable omission, in my humble opinion, to leave Satan off of the list. He is, beyond the shadow of a doubt, the greatest master of illusion in the history of mankind.

Consider that Satan, a.k.a., the devil or the evil one, is accredited, inside and outside of the realms of faith as the source of lies, deception, illusion. You might say that he is “ground zero” when it comes to illusion because the evil one was the first being to hit the “ground” when he was cast out of heaven as he tried to deceive the hosts of heaven. He has been working as the master illusionist, ever since.

Isaiah once declared, on behalf of God, “Woe to those who call evil good and good evil, who put darkness for light and light for darkness, who put bitter for sweet and sweet for bitter.” (Isaiah 5:20, ESV) Does that not de
