Masks required inside town buildings; vaccinations are encouraged

I called a special meeting of the Town Board last Monday afternoon to discuss the governor's new orders concerning wearing masks in state facilities. Governor Cooper had encouraged local governments to consider doing the same.

Highlands Mayor
Patrick Taylor

Prior to a vote, the board heard a presentation from Dr. William Hathaway, the CEO of Mission Healthcare. Dr. Hathaway updated the board on his assessment of the Delta variant, and what were the best practices to follow. In his opinion, the wearing of a mask is the first line of defense against Covid.

He also pointed out that vaccinated people can be infected with the Delta Variant, but many vaccinated people are asymptomatic or have mild symptoms. About 97% of the vaccinated people who contract COVID do not require hospitalization. Dr. Hathaway emphasized that both vaccinated and unvaccinated people can spread the virus.

After a Q & A period and further discussion, the board voted to require the wearing of masks within town facilities.

The requirement includes Town Hall, the police department, the Highlands Community Building, the Highlands ABC Store, the Fire Department, and the Highlands Civic Center and other offices.

The board also encouraged all town employees to get a vaccination. Our Town Manager and personnel director will meet with Tom Neal, the coordinator of the vaccination clinic, to establish a time during working hours for employees to voluntarily get a vaccination. If private businesses have workers who would like a vaccination, they can call Josh Ward at Town Hall. While we want as many town workers as possible to be vaccinated, with the operationalization of a clinic, any local person would be welcomed.

As Dr. Hathaway emphasized, we need to vaccinate and mask as many people as possible to stop the spread of this highly transmissible Delta variant. I thank Dr. Hathaway for his willingness to drive to Highlands and share his professional expertise.

The board's action concerning masks in town buildings aligns with what Governor Cooper and state health director Dr. Mandy Cohen have recommended. The governor's new orders do not apply to private businesses, but he strongly recommends that these mask protocols be implemented throughout communities.

I was gratified that the board unanimously voted on the mask policy for town facilities. It is better at this point to take a proactive position in addressing a resurgence of COVID, rather than reacting in the mists of a large spread and skyrocketing infection rates. My concern is that as we move toward fall, a COVID resurgence could happen near or greater than levels seen at the first of the year.

Everyone can practice responsible behavior by doing two things. First, everybody should consider taking a vaccine if you haven't already done so. I know some folks are reluctant and have fears about the vaccine. To me the protection against COVID that a vaccine provides far outweighs possible unknown side effects. Second, we can all wear masks in crowded indoor situations. A mask protects not just the person wearing it, but everyone in the room.

Jane Woodruff

Jane Woodruff, age 95, passed away peacefully at home on the afternoon of July 29, 2021.

Throughout her life, Jane was devoted to her family above all else. As matriarch of her family, Jane was dedicated to her devoted sons, Richard "Buck" Woodruff (Ann) and John Woodruff. Jane constantly doted on her five grandchildren – Carolina Stamm Woodruff, Alexandra Winship Woodruff, Lillian Chappell Woodruff, John Winship Woodruff, and Richard Harrison Woodruff. The most recent addition to the family, six-year-old great-grandson John Barbato, III – affectionately known as Tripp – brought a light to Jane's eye even in her final days.

Best known for her monumental charitable endeavors, Jane deeply touched the lives of many people. Her current endowments stretch from medical establishments originally supported by her father, George W. Woodruff, to educational institutions that she and her family supported throughout their lives.

Her continual gifts to the Shepherd Center, Mayo Clinic, Children's Healthcare of Atlanta, and the Highlands Cashiers Hospital, enable hundreds of thousands of patients to receive medical care in state-of-the-art facilities.

While pregnant with her first son, Jane spent time at Emory Hospital as a "pink lady" volunteer. Even while caring for her own family, she prioritized the care of strangers, who she considered friends.

In Highlands alone, she was a long-time philanthropist and benefactor and the driving financial source behind not only the funding of the Highlands Cashiers Hospital, but also the Highlands Community Child-care Center, the Highlands Civic Center and Rec Park, the Highlands Post Office as well as paving the way for the new Highlands Fire & Rescue Dept. She also provided the seed money to start the Martin-Lipscomb Performing Arts Center's capital campaign.

Jane believed that the future of the country depended on quality education for everyone. She was staunchly dedicated to educational institutions in the state of Georgia, including Emory University, Mercer University, Woodward Academy, Pace Academy, Rabun Gap Nacoochee School, The Westminster School, The Lovett School, and others. Jane knew that education could help people build better lives for themselves and their families.

Born in Atlanta, GA on September 30, 1925, Jane started school at Lula Compton Seminary in Birmingham, AL, later attending Seabreeze Private School and Graham-Eckes Private School in Daytona Beach, FL. She earned her high school diploma from Washington Seminary in Atlanta, GA and her bachelor's degree from Mt. Vernon College in Washington, D.C., serving as president of her class and on student council.

A woman of strong faith, Jane was a lifetime member of North Avenue Presbyterian Church. She was an active member of the Junior League of Atlanta, Highlands Country Club, Halifax Club and Oceanside Country Club. As a young woman, Jane was a member of Atlanta Debutante Club, the Rabun-Gap Nacoochee Guild, Tallulah Falls Circle, Cherokee Garden Club, Capital City Club, and the Georgia Arabian Horse Association.

Jane was a lifetime member of the Henrietta Egleston Hospital Auxiliary, the General Society of Mayflower Descendants, and the National Society of Daughters of American Revolution. Jane was preceded in death by her mother, Irene (Tift) King Woodruff, her father, George W. Woodruff, sisters, Irene and Frances, as well as her former husband Richard Woodward King of Anderson, SC..

As a beloved resident of Atlanta, GA, Highlands, NC, and Ormond Beach, FL, Jane's passing is a great loss to the communities that she has supported throughout her life.

A private burial service will take place in the coming days and a memorial service will be held in her honor in the near future.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be sent in her memory to the Shepherd Center Foundation at 2020 Peachtree Road, Atlanta, GA 30309, webmaster@shepherd.org.

How on earth do you write a book?

That's a question I often get. Two years ago, when a friend suggested I write a cozy mystery, I asked the same question. Actually, it was more along the lines of, "What do I know about coming up with a plot?" Even now with five cozies under my belt, I'm not sure I have a good answer.

So, how do I start? First, I spend a month or so pondering a plot. For whatever reason, the plot for the next book begins to take shape in my mind as I'm writing the current one.

I have an idea notebook where I jot down thoughts as they come to me. I may get a kernel one day and nothing at all for a week, but they all go in the notebook. I do plenty of research, which gives me more ideas and often takes me in a different direction. The story evolves, and by the time I write the first line, it may not look anything like the initial few words I scribbled.

I begin with an idea for the "surround." That's my word for knowing the story will take place at a literary festival or a yoga retreat in Cornwall, as is the case for "Castles, Catnip & Murder" coming out in September. Each book contains a book club meeting, and the book somehow connects to the plot, so I identify the book before I start. For example, "The Once and Future King" is the selection for "Castles," and lots of info about Arthurian legend is woven throughout the story. I also know who will die and how and what form the confrontation scene will take, but sometimes I don't decide who the killer is until I'm halfway through the book.

I never fail to experience what cozy author Nancy J. Cohen calls "the muddle in the middle," meaning I question where I'm going or whether I have enough material to get there. That's when I may choose to develop a new character more fully or rework the flow or flesh out a promising subplot. And as Cohen says, that's when "story magic" happens.

People also ask if I outline my books. Well, sort of. I have a general idea of where I'm going, but not what most people would consider a formal outline. I'm more of a "pantser" – defined as someone who writes by the seat of their pants – than a plotter. As I type, my characters take me places I hadn't planned to go. That's the only way I can describe it.

Once I start, I strive to write 1,000 words a day. That's approximately four pages, and my five novels range from 68,000 to 84,000 words each. Some days, those 1,000 words take two hours. On others, they may take four. Some days, a scene simply flows and all but writes itself. Other days? Not so much.

Every morning, I read and edit what I wrote the day before, and then I start on the next scene. With ongoing research and reworking of the plot, it takes me approximately 90 days to produce a decent first draft—starting from the day I type the first word. Then I give a big sigh of relief and send it off to my Beta readers for feedback, fingers crossed every time that they won't find plot holes or other major issues. So far, knock on wood, they haven't.

Have you figured out I don't have a pat answer to the question? What I do know is that writing my Dickens & Christie mystery series is a joy. My characters seem like old friends, and my readers tell me they feel the same way. I guess that means I better start pondering the next plot!

Mayor Pat Taylor said the town has always stayed in line with and adhered to mandates or suggestions made by NC Governor Roy Cooper and now is no different – though for now, the town's stance isn't as stringent as his.

Last Thursday, Governor Roy Cooper and NC Department of Health and Human Services Secretary Dr. Mandy K. Cohen announced that state government would begin verifying vaccination status of its workers. Employees not vaccinated are required to wear a mask and be tested at least once a week. (See story on page 10.)

"He has urged municipalities to adopt a similar order, so I called this meeting to discuss masks and vaccinations," said Mayor Taylor.

Mirror Lake mirrors us

Lately, I've been thinking about our town and its "nature." Nature, meaning our distinctive natural resources which is why folks like you consider buying real estate up here. And nature, meaning our character and disposition towards others and other things. It led me to ask this big question. What is our nature towards nature? I think the story of Mirror Lake helps to answer the question and may help you understand why you should be here, and/or consider investing in Highlands.

828-782-0472

Mirror Lake is an amazing resource in downtown Highlands. It's a private lake inside the town of Highlands through which the Cullasaja River flows then ultimately into Lake Sequoyah which is two of three of Highlands' water sources.

The man-made lake is formed at a widening of the Cullasaja River whose headwaters are a few miles upstream. There's a dam on one end which creates her placid flow as she continues into Lake Sequoyah, and then forms the main branch of the Cullasaja to its confluence with the Little Tennessee River.

Surrounding Mirror Lake is the most charming collection of cottages and mountain homes, about 200 of them if you consider all 5 of the neighborhoods who call Mirror Lake their "home water." Its residents are a mix of full-timers, second-homers, bears, geese, and dog-walkers. If you get a chance to see a Mirror Lake Cottage, don't pass it up. Mirror Lake's rich history included legendary ice skating, fly fishing for native trout, canoeing for miles, a bird sanctuary, waterfalls, and picnic areas. Who wouldn't want to live in a community like Mirror Lake?

But here's where the "nature towards our nature" comes in. Over the years, Mirror Lake has been negatively "choked" by sediment build-up thanks to unrestricted runoff, unauthorized tree removal, and a gradual flow of impediments from her tributaries. Mirror Lake is a designated trout stream, but I'm afraid the trout are gone, the waters have shallowed, and the temperatures don't lend themselves to ice skating. So we're at a critical gateway with our lake. We're deciding to join in as one big community to "Save the Lake". Our nature is to do the work necessary to dredge and restore this natural watershed to its original glory. Our nature is to help our neighbors, the surrounding communities, the Town of Highlands, Macon County Watershed, and to raise the money necessary to fund the dredging project. I can see a day soon where the trout are back, the sediment is gone, trees are planted on the Mill Creek island, the Mirror Lake Landing and Parkway is finished, and we open the Mirror Lake Yacht Club to all.

This may sound counterintuitive, but I think our nature as real estate professionals is less about selling you a house than it is about offering you a lifestyle; an enhancement that could enrich your life and that of your family. That's what Highlands is all about. Trust me, we'll find you a house in time, but the first step is to experience our nature. I encourage you to discover Mirror Lake, it's one of the reasons you'll want to be here.

Overall, commissioners were against mandating employees get vaccinated as well as requiring weekly testing of the unvaccinated employees because obviously, that would identify those who have opted not to get the vaccination and risks harassing them.

According to Town Manager Josh Ward 75% to 80% of town employees are not vacinated and as far as he can tell they have no intention of getting vaccinated.

Though incentives to entice more employees to get the vaccine were thrown around, commissioners agreed that would not help.

"From my experience, incentivizing will do absolutely nothing," said Commis-

Hot spots in North Carolina as of July 31

This map shows a rolling average of daily cases for the past week. This is the best sign of hot spots. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recommends wearing a mask indoors in public where there is substantial or high transmission of new cases, even if you've been vaccinated. The top three color ranges in this map meet those criteria (average daily cases  $\geq 50$  per 100,000 people). The new maps designate counties as areas of low (blue), moderate (yellow), substantial (orange) or high (red) transmission.

North Carolina to require vaccine verification for State employees, urges other government agencies and private employers to do the same

Last Thursday, Governor Roy Cooper and North Carolina

Department of Health and Human Services Secretary Mandy K. Cohen, M.D. announced that state government would begin verifying vaccination status of its workers. Employees not vaccinated are required to wear a mask and be tested at least once a week. The announcement comes as North Carolina's latest upswing in COVID-19 cases and hospitalizations is driven by unvaccinated North Carolinians.

"Until more people get the vaccine, we will continue living with the very real threat of serious disease, and we will continue to see more dangerous and contagious variants like Delta," said Governor Cooper.

NCDHHS updated guidance encourages private sector businesses to, at a minimum, verify vaccination status for their workers as well. The requirement for state government employees applies to cabinet agencies and is included in Executive Order 224.

"There is only one way out of this pandemic and that is vaccination. Our trends are accelerating at an alarmingly fast rate and the highest rates of viral spread are happening in areas with low vac-ination rates and among those who are not fully vaccinated," said Secretary Cohen. "If you are already vaccinated, I call on you to urge your unvaccinated family and friends to get their shot now. It is not an understatement to say that you will save lives by doing so."

The NCDHHS updated guidance reminds unvaccinated people that they need to continue practicing the three Ws – wear a mask in all indoor public settings, wait six feet apart in all public settings and wash hands often. In addition, unvaccinated people should not gather with other unvaccinated people who do not live with them. If they do, they should stay outside and keep 6 feet of distance.

In addition, unvaccinated people should not travel.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) issued new mask guidance this week based on levels of transmission in communities. The new maps designate counties as areas of low (blue), moderate (yellow), substantial (orange) or high (red) transmission. Moving forward,

“There is a large percentage of people who don’t care about this and aren’t worried about this and take no precautions whatsoever. It’s unfortunate but it’s the reality of it,” he said. “Women are afraid of reproductive harm, people are worried about microchips. I’ve heard them all.”

Tom Neal, CEO/CNO of Highlands Cashiers Hospital and Dr. Bill Hathaway chief medical officer for Mission Health HCA, NC division, discussed the importance of vaccines and at the very least wearing masks indoors and socially distancing.

“We are seeing a rise in cases and the Delta variant is far more virulent and contagious. Vaccinated people can catch it and spread it even if they aren’t affected by it,” said Neal.

As with the aftermath of all holiday festivities, there was a rise in COVID cases after July 4th but now it’s due to the Delta variant which presents a slight alteration from the original virus.

“Due to the Delta variant, we are hovering in the mid-40 range of cases a day in just three weeks. It is three to four times more transmissible than the original COVID viruses,” said Dr. Hathaway.

everyone in a red or orange county in North Carolina, including those who have been vaccinated, should wear a mask in public indoor settings.

Additionally, in accordance with the updated CDC guidance, all K-12 schools should require universal masking, regardless of vaccination status. NCDHHS is updating its guidance for schools to align with this recommendation.

To date, North Carolina has administered nearly 9.8 million doses of the COVID-19 vaccine, with 57 percent of the adult population fully vaccinated. 61 percent of

He said a large explosion of cases in Cape Cod, MA, following July 4th shed light on the implications of the Delta variant.

“We weren’t surprised to see cases after the July 4th holiday. That’s what happens after holidays. What surprised us was the number of people who contracted the virus who were previously vaccinated. The CDC identified 469 cases from the outbreak. Of those cases, 346 were in vaccinated people – that’s 74%. The good news is the vaccinated people weren’t very sick. There were very few hospitalizations and very little illness for them.

“What we learned, however, is the vaccinated people were fully able to transmit the virus to other people. The bottom line is we have an uptick, we have more hospitalizations, we have more cases, but the vaccine still works and prevents people from getting ill. The vaccine prevents severe illness and it’s important to get that message out there.”

This led commissioners to discuss having an information and vaccine day for town employees to explain the reality of the vaccine not the bogus information perpetuated on social media.

“Would it behoove us to have the hospital come and do an immunization program for town employees only? Have

Highlands-Cashiers Hospital to debut its new operating rooms and welcomes new surgeons

As Highlands-Cashiers Hospital continues to evolve, I realize that growth doesn't just happen as a result of expanding a facility's square footage, recruiting new physicians and staff, enhancing services, supporting staff in their efforts to gain education and skills, acquiring the most state-of-the-art medical technology, or engaging our community. We advance as an institution because of all these things and more.

Reimagining and restarting a service that has been dormant for a time constitutes another important type of growth that reflects our commitment to serve the healthcare needs of this community. We have done just this by reopening our Operating Rooms, which have been closed for more than five years.

It's an exciting development for community members and the hospital because the shift will mean that you can access more care closer to home. The first surgical procedures we will be performing will be orthopedic and general surgery. We will limit services to low-risk outpatient surgical procedures, often called same day procedures. This means you will have your procedure and be able to go home the same day. Some examples of orthopedic procedures include joint replacements and repairing repetitive stress injuries, such as carpal tunnel syndrome, as well as remedying sports and traumatic injuries. We will also initially offer routine general surgical procedures, such as hernia repairs, and resuming routine colonoscopies.

We've invested significant time and capital in our ORs, preparing them to serve you, and assuring they comply with or exceed the best practice standards. For example, we will have the capability to perform minimally invasive surgery, which offers significant advantages for the patient, like faster healing, reduced pain, and less scarring and blood loss. This is because the surgeons need to make only a couple very small incisions, rather than larger ones, as in traditional open surgery. In addition, our lighting and other technology allow the surgical team members to more efficiently communicate with each other in real time as procedures are happening.

In addition to making surgical equipment improvements that make the patient and clinician experience better, we have invested in bringing the surgical suite into compliance with the most current regulatory requirements and industry standards. Examples would include investment in automated medication management systems, and continuous monitoring of temperature, humidity, and air quality — all essential to assure a safe environment for our patients. Critical support from HCA Healthcare allowed us to execute this project. This support included capital, access to experts in the field, and recruitment of our new surgeons.

The doors of our new ORs are scheduled to open this summer, and I'm pleased to introduce our new General Surgeon into the HCH family, Dr. John Bishop. He comes to the Plateau from serving patients and families at Gunnison Valley Hospital, in Gunnison, Colorado. A graduate of the Loma Linda School of Medicine, Dr. Bishop is highly skilled in many general surgery procedures, and has extensive experience with performing minimally invasive surgery. We're very happy to have Dr. Bishop with us and I'm certain the community will benefit from his skills, knowledge, and compassion. He is now accepting new patients, and his first official day with us is July 28th. Community members can call 828-369-4402 to schedule an appointment with him.

Accomplished orthopedic surgeon Dr. Gregory Crawley joined us this past January. He practiced for years in the northern Atlanta suburbs, and is proud to be delivering advanced care that's customized to each patient's unique needs. Dr. Crawley has much expertise in performing minimally invasive knee arthroscopy, as well as carpal tunnel syndrome and trigger finger release surgery.

We are also fortunate to welcome a dedicated and enthusiastic primary care Physician Assistant, Allison Litchfield, MPAS, PA-C. Allison will practice primary care at the Cashiers branch of Mission Community Primary Care. An Atlanta area native, Allison graduated from Gardner-Webb University with her Master of Physician Assistant Studies in the midst of the pandemic — May, 2020 — and worked in Asheville for eight months before coming to the Plateau. Her love of both medicine and people combine to make her a valuable caregiver to our community, who prioritizes building lasting relationships with her patients.

In Memory of Mary Katheryn Spitzer Crane

Mary Katheryn Spitzer Crane was born on July 22, 1945 and died June 3, 2021.

She was married to Oscar N. Crane who preceded her in death on August 6, 2015.

Kathy and Oscar spent their last days on earth at Fidelia Eckerd Living Center, Highlands, NC.

Kathy was the daughter of the late Bud and Mary Hunt Spitzer.

She was employed for many years at Mitchel Motel, and became family with Al and Renee Bolt and their children.

"This world, however beautiful, was never meant to be the place that we would call our home for all eternity. And though we would not choose to leave, a loving God knows best, and in His time He lifts us to a place of peace and rest. For He has built a mansion where His children will abide, free from pain and sorrow, forever by His side. He said He'd never leave us to face our trials alone, and though we sometimes fail Him, He never fails His own. Someday we'll be together in our Father's home above, where we'll thank Him for His mercy & praise him for His love."

Mary Adair Trumbly said working with project management JLL and Choate Construction out of Atlanta has been a team concept since planning began over a year ago. She said the groundbreaking for a new theater is both exciting and gratifying.

"This 'dream' came about after Mayor Pat Taylor wrote about having all the performing arts under one roof," said Trumbly. "This was right before the PAC had a Board retreat, August 2015. It was at that retreat that the Board decided we needed a bigger theater because all of our concerts were sold out with waiting lists."

Initial plans called for two new theaters, a 400-seat theater and an 85-seat movie and black-box theater. However, plans had to be scaled back as a result of the pandemic and new plans include one 300-seat theater. Also eliminated from the initial plans are a spiral staircase and balcony.

"We raised the needed funds, had a design we could afford to build, and then the pandemic hit," said Trumbly. "Now with the world-wide price increases, we will have to raise more funds. We will accomplish this."

The PAC Executive Board released a statement on Tuesday that reads "Our construction contract has a maximum guaranteed cost of $9.4 million, though we are anticipating some further cost savings, and our total project cost, which includes design, engineering, furnishings, technical equipment, expanded and enhanced parking, and related expenses, is $11 million. Given the significant inflation that has taken place in the construction industry during the last year, we are extremely pleased to be able to build a first-class facility for the community at this cost. We are, however, continuing to seek important financial support from the community which is needed to bridge the gap between our original budget and the total project cost."

Choate Superintendent Russell Hartness said the goal is to finish construction on the new theater by the summer of 2022 and he's excited to get started.

"The project team looks forward to forging new relationships and completing a successful project that is positive for the community," said Hartness.

Over the next month or so, construction crews will be focused on underground utilities, earthwork, and stone piers.

Hartness said potential snags in the timeline include variables such as weather, procurement, or an unpredictable supply chain.

Adair said all the planning involved in the renovations was a team effort.

"The whole team approach of JLL has been wonderful," said Trumbly. "We met every other week for over a year. Everyone was in the meeting(s), JLL (project management) Choate (construction) LAS (architects) the design and theatrical teams, along roduced earlier, and our excellent OR staff are who will make the OR come alive. Without their expertise and dedication to our patients, the OR would be just an impressively appointed room. It's the combination of their clinical gifts and the tools present in our OR that make for an even better patient experience and recovery.

through the Highway Safety Improvement Program which is designed to provide a continuous and systematic process that addresses specific traffic safety concerns such as those along this stretch of highway.

“This project is a wonderful example of how our engineers are utilizing data to help improve safety for drivers,” Division 14 Engineer Wanda Austin said. “Our Highway Safety Improvement Program plays a critical role in identifying areas of concern and recommending improvements on our local roadways.”

A five-year study of this corridor revealed a total of 144 crashes including 12 severe injury crashes and five fatalities. New construction addresses multiple areas in a six-mile stretch on Highlands Road (U.S. 64/N.C. 28) between Rogers Road and Walnut Creek Road. Crews for Harrison Construction are installing four-foot paved shoulders in areas prone to crashes from vehicles leaving the road to the right, and crews are also installing rumble strips on the centerline for the entire length of the project. The rumble strips are a relatively new design — first installed in 2016 — and are effective in alerting drivers to their location while creating less ambient noise than traditional rumble strips.

The extra shoulder width will provide errant vehicles additional space to get back on path before running off the road, and rumble strips alert drivers that they are about to cross into oncoming traffic. These rumble strips also feature reflective paint which increases visibility of the centerline at night and in wet conditions.

For crews to safely complete the project, the contractor is required to use a single-lane closure for the duration of the project. NCDOT officials anticipate this $1.4 million projects to conclude in October.

with the PAC Building Committee. Everyone heard all concerns and worked to find solutions. Choate has been on site for nine days now and the amount of work already done is amazing. Russell Hartness, project superintendent and Omid Yavari, project manager could not be any nicer or more accommodating. It's pleasure to work with them.”

She added that she would also like to thank the PAC's Building Committee, which includes Wade Coleman, Chairman, Jim Ward, Brad Armstrong, Rick Treva- than, Leonard Wood, Nancy Harrison, and Frank Oliver.

Lastly, she thanked the PAC Board of Directors (past and present) for their tire- less work on making this dream become a reality.

them sign up so they don't have to stand in line. Set a time, set a date. It's free it's done and they are still on the clock and still getting paid," asked Commissioner John Dotson.

Neal said the hospital would be willing to do it.

Commissioners Donnie Caloway and Stiehler said it was a great gesture, but they didn't think that's the issue.

"If we were having this conversation pre-social media, this wouldn't be the issue it is now. But it's just amazing the ignorance out there. There are so many people who have their minds made up and they wouldn't even be open to it. To a lot of people, it's a political thing," said Stiehler.

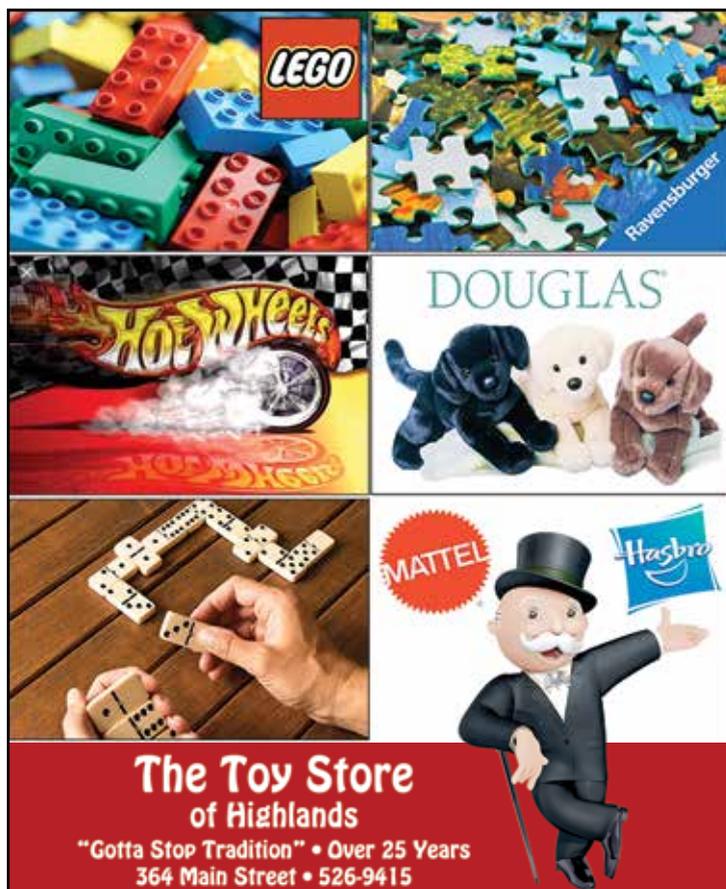

But Commissioner Amy Patterson said the circumstances have changed with the Delta variant and said if people understood the facts they might be willing to get vaccinated.

"We thought, 'we were over the hill, out of the woods – the vaccine came out, we are going to get herd immunity, everything is going to be fine. We don't need to do anything more.' Now we are seeing that's not the case in a specific way. Not just predictions but facts. So maybe we need to let people know 'You know what? I am not magnetized; Bill Gates is not tracking me.' Whatever it is, let them vent and come to some consensus about what their problem is about the vaccine; you may change minds and you may not. You need to counter it with something real

Celebrating 68 Years of Service

Please hold my hand

Archbishop John Erbeling

No one in our small Vermont town seemed to remember when it started. Did it start when they were high school sweethearts on their way home from school? Was it when he returned from serving his country in the war? Or was it when the children arrived a few years into their marriage and it gave them both a chance to talk and plan and dream of their future together? But no matter how or when it started, this dear sweet loving couple has taken their afternoon walk through town, hand in hand.

Their hair is now silver and their step is now slower and more guarded against a fall, but hand in hand they walk. Their animated conversation in the early years is now fewer words but no less important to the future they still have ahead of them, and the passion in their two hands grasping each other speaks volumes of the past and present of their lives.

Nothing seems to reach our souls like seeing a couple in love, celebrating their first or sixtieth anniversary. Those who work at keeping love alive, who have taken the words they said on their wedding day as a pledge, "for richer for poorer, in sickness or in health, and love for all eternity," they have endured all. They have heard with not only ears but their hearts, St. Paul's Letter to the Corinthians, a reading that is most important at any wedding service. St. Paul writes about love and tells us, "Love is patient, love is kind. It does not envy, it does not boast, it is not proud, it is not rude or self-serving. It is not easily angered and keeps no record of wrongs," and St. Paul tells us what this couple holding hands has learned: "Love always protects, always hopes, always perseveres. Love never fails." Husbands and wives in a good marriage understand that love is a series of actions, not a fleeting feeling that someday will escape them.

A happy marriage takes two people both giving all of themselves. They will tell you it is not easy. They have chosen to forgive. They have decided to be patient time and time again, keeping no record of wrongs.

They have never lost sight of the vision of who they have become over the years together. This wonderful couple we see walk hand in hand has chosen to love, like a marathon runner choosing to stay in the race. They have long ago discovered that a true marriage was never intended to be a short dash, but traveled holding hands, hearts beating in unison along this path we call life, because love never fails.

if all they are getting is from social media saying all these conspiracy theories," she said.

Citizen Jerry Moore suggested including town employees who got vaccinated at the information/vaccine session to explain why they were willing to take the risk to get vaccinated.

"Friends and families are a much better influence than social media, billboards, and newspaper messaging. The more people they know who say 'this is safe' the more apt they are to get vaccinated. A billion-plus people have been vaccinated worldwide. They need to get information from reliable sources that they trust."

Police Chief Andrea Holland said only she and one other person in her department have gotten vaccinated.

"Their excuse is 'I don't know what the vaccine is going to do to me in the future.' Well guess what, if you get COVID you don't know what that's going to do to you in the future. I have a best friend who is a paramedic with the county who has severe nerve damage after recovering from COVID. I have another friend who is on a vent and another three years younger than me who is also on a vent.

"Yes, we don't know about the future, but I guarantee you the box of food you ate last night with that big long word on it – you don't know what that's going to do to you either," she said.

She said the trouble is people in the area haven't known or seen anyone get really, really sick from COVID.

• At 12:47 p.m., the dept. was first-responders to a residence on Whiteside Mountain Road.

• At 6:44 p.m., the dept. responded to a fire alarm at a residence on Bowery Road.

"They hear about sniffles and chest congestion. They've not seen the people on a vent. I've seen it. The sad thing is, if you don't see something bad happen, you don't believe it," she said.

Moore said but "This is real. Why play Russian Roulette with your life?"

"There is a 25-year-old man here in Highlands who was on a vent for a month, and he was healthy and living his life. Tracy Hedden at Highlands School almost died," he said.

Another person suggested Neal let people know about possible interactions with current medications or pre-existing conditions with the vaccine. "Make it clear to the employees what, if any, are the risks," he said.

Neal, said interactions with the vaccine from other medicines is very rare.

"There are very few things that would prohibit you from taking the vaccine," he said.

Dr. Hathaway said vaccine hesitancy is a real thing but if people aren't vaccinated, they are at risk of being part of the chain of transmission to people who can get very ill.

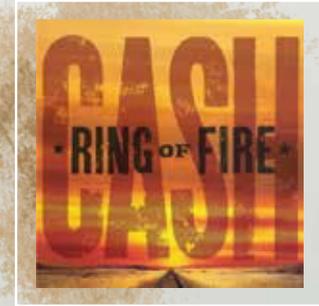

"They end up in the hospital and die. This is a very serious disease with 1% to 2% mortality, which is far higher than the flu. Anything we can do to vaccinate our communities – social distance, wear masks – that is the agenda I would push," he said. "We have a highly safe and highly effective vaccine with very few serious side effects. It prevents serious illness, hospitalization and it dramatically decreases transmission."
