STRs are now on Town Board's plate

Monday night, the Planning Board put the finishing touches on its Unified Development Code amendments in regards to Short-term Rentals. The ball is now in the Town Board's court and according to Assistant Planning Director Michael Mathis, it will likely be addressed soon during a special-called Town Board meeting.

As Planning Board Chairman Brad Armstrong has said from the start, the work the Planning Board was doing was for the future. Nothing it is recommending to the Town Board regarding amended uses or amendments to the UDO will have anything to do with properties which are currently

On Saturday, January 22, the Highlands Hurricanes hosted Smoky Mountain Aquatics Club for a 2022 Winter Invitation.

Due to weather concerns the North Georgia Rapids and Jackson County Swim Teams chose not to attend. The Hurricanes set three team records and two pool records on their way to a 396 to Smoky Mountain Aquatics Club's 124 win.

All 21 Hurricanes in the meet scored.

The Hurricanes were led by three Jr. Olympians: Chase Kenter, Finneaus Garner, Aniah McKim, Trinity Fernandez Faust and Bella Batista, all who scored

How ARPA funds are reaching local gov'ts in Western NC

Highlands is receiving a total of $313,000

By Shelby Harris
Carolina Public Press

As with many aspects of the COVID-19 pandemic, the American Rescue Plan Act of 2021, the legislation providing recovery funds to local governments, is complicated.

What is ARPA?

Federal lawmakers crafted ARPA, signed into law March 11, 2021, with the goal of pulling the nation out of economic distress wrought by the pandemic by improving the country's infrastructure and offering direct financial relief to families.

While the $1.9 trillion plan funded a third round of stimulus checks and several other tax relief programs, Congress appropriated the majority of ARPA funds — $401 billion — to state, local and tribal governments, according to the U.S. Department of the Treasury.

"The state and local program was designed for short-term and long-term recovery support, including helping localities as new variants of COVID emerge," U.S. Treasury spokesperson Dayanara Ramirez said.

What did North Carolina get?

North Carolina is slated to receive $8.6 billion in ARPA funding, which is being disbursed two ways.

"There are two pots of money," said Jamilla Hawkins, chief of staff for the N.C. Pandemic Recovery Office. "North Carolina as a state received $5.4 billion for the state fiscal recovery. For local governments, there's a local fiscal recovery."

The $5.4 billion Hawkins

Town Board to begin work to address STRs

On Monday night the Highlands Planning Board completed a review of the draft proposal for amending the UDO as related to short term rentals. Their recommendations have now been sent to the Highlands Town Board for review. I anticipate board holding several special work sessions to process the planning board's work and recommendations.

Highlands Mayor
Patrick Taylor

I want to thank all of the Highlands Planning Board members for the hard work and diligence that they put forward in addressing this critical issue. I, along with the Town Board, appreciate their extraordinary effort. Now, the Town Board will have to get to work in moving the process forward without delay.

The town should always continue to review and strive to improve what is done in the public interest. We are now in a period of review concerning the response to the recent heavy snow event. Izzy was not a normal snowstorm. Some areas of the town got as much as a foot of snow, which made the response from our employees a major challenge.

This week our road crews have been using excavators and dump trucks to remove the mounds of snow in the downtown areas. This time-consuming process is a challenge, but needs to be done. The loads of snow will be transported and downloaded at town sites such as the sewer plant. It will be a while before it all melts, but it is better to have it melt off location rather than in the business district.

At the January Town Board meeting I asked the public works committee and pertinent staff to review our schedule and protocols for plowing roads. Some folks, especially those on private roads, were concerned that town crews were late in plowing their roads. The huge volume of snow aggravated the situation. I look forward to the staff and committee reporting to the full board on how the town can improve snow plowing practices.

Another area of improvement is in how residents can report power outages. In this storm we had no major outages that impacted the entire town. I had asked folks not to call 911 about outages after hours since a heavy call load could affect emergency response times. But, we do need to develop a better system for folks report power outages, not just in snow storms, but throughout the year. I have asked staff and the public works committee to also review options to address this problem. Maybe the public safety committee will also review this issue since it does impact county emergency services and how the town interfaces with that system.

There are systems and services that the town can use to handle after hours service problems. It will cost the town money, but the improvements to the reporting system will outweigh the incurred additional costs. The staff is looking at options and will work with the committee to develop a proposal to the full board. I want the town to move forward to address this issue without delay.

Please join B.E.A.R. in opposition to open bear hunting seasons in Pantertown

Dear Editor,

The B.E.A.R. Task Force stands in opposition to the NC Wildlife Resources Commission proposal to open bear hunting seasons in Pantertown Valley (officially known as the Pantertown-Bonas Defeat Bear Sanctuary).

As North Carolina was settled, the hunting of bears was “intensive and unregulated,” causing populations to plunge. The state’s bear sanctuary system was created in 1971 to provide a safe natural environment where bears could live and multiply without being hunted. It has been “a primary factor in the recovery of bear populations.”

With populations rebounding, the state recently decided to “add or remove sanctuary based on bear population objectives, in combination with hunter desires and human-bear interactions.”

Pantertown Valley is not just a bear sanctuary; it is a Blue Ridge National Heritage Area and a Mountain Treasures Area. It is also a very popular year-round destination for hiking, camping, bicycling, rock climbing, etc.

Human-bear encounters have been reported in the valley, which prompted the Friends of Pantertown to do educational outreach as well as install bear-proof food lockers at two campsites. Their efforts have been so effective that in 2021 there were 0 reports of problems.

It is our feeling that a hunting season is not necessary. Indeed, it would turn the bears’ heretofore peaceful lives into a cycle of harassment, terror and killing. Additionally, it would affect people recreating in the valley and living nearby as they are subjected to dogs running wild and the sounds of gunshots. At the height of the fall color season no less.

Bear biology naturally regulates populations. In response to poor food availability, they have fewer babies. It makes sense that as bears are killed, more food will be available, with a resultant increase in population.

The B.E.A.R. Task Force simply cannot condone the unfair and violent “sport” of hunting with dogs, especially in Pantertown Valley. We are dedicated to education and the promotion of safe, harmonious coexistence between humans and bears. Therefore, we have committed to providing two additional bear-proof storage lockers and educational materials for the Friends of Pantertown to continue their successful efforts to reduce human-bear incidents.

If you oppose the NCWRC proposal, please submit comments by January 31 to: regulations@ncwildlife.org. Include name, phone and mailing address.

The reasons for NCWRC proposed rule change to allow for black bear hunting in Panthertown Valley is unfounded

Dear Editor,

When I first read about the NCWRC's proposed rule change to allow black bear hunting in Panthertown Valley during black bear hunting season (October 18-November 20; December 13-January 1), I laughed because I thought someone was making a joke, as in a "haha" joke. But alas, no, it turns out the NCWRC actually thinks allowing bear hunting with a permit in Panthertown Valley is a good idea.

Panthertown Valley is one of the premier hiking and camping destinations in the state of North Carolina, receiving over 35,000 visitors each year. Peak visitor season (a.k.a – "leaf-peeping-season"), when the trails are so full of hikers finding a parking space is nearly impossible, coincides with black bear hunting season. What's the one thing that would make this experience better? Why everyone knows the answer is the hunting of black bears during this peak season.

I am no tree-hugging, vegan-long-hair, hippie liberal. I love quail hunting with my black English cocker spaniel; I have an 11-point white-tail hanging on my office wall. But even a guy like me recognizes the stupidity of this proposed regulation change. Imagine hunters, with their bear dogs chasing black bear all through Panthertown Valley, hunting black bear while thousands of people simultaneously hike the trails. What could possibly go wrong?! Imagine further, those hunters dragging the dead, bloody carcass of a black bear over one of the many trails, into either the Cold Mountain or Salt Rock parking lots. That grown adults need to be told this is a bad idea boggles my mind.

I have spent literally hundreds of hours hiking and fishing Panthertown Valley. I have only seen a black bear once. But even if human/bear encounters in Panthertown Valley are a "problem", they happen primarily with overnight campers. The solution is a bear-box at each campsite (BEAR Proof Food Storage BOX – What is it? – Outdoor Luxuriez), not hunting of black bears during peak leaf season. The National Park Service uses such boxes all throughout Yellowstone with great effect (I've actually used one on Slough Creek in the northwest part of Yellowstone; they work great.)

If you, like me, think bear hunting in Panthertown Valley is a bad, bad idea, I am writing to ask you to send an email of opposition to the proposed rule change. You can email your opposition to: regulations@ncwildlife.org. Comments are due by 1/31/2022.

Snow Down, Highlands!

Ahhhhh. Winter in Highlands. Have you ever seen a topsy-turvy (or flip) book? It's a book, whose story begins from the front cover and goes about halfway, then you turn the book upside down and start from the back cover to read a similar story, or the same story from a different point of view. Lately, I've been thinking of Highlands in the same light.

Take winter and snow days for instance. Highlands has always embraced snow.

Before my time here, back in the late '50s, children would sled down Satulah Road as well as Monkey Hill. There was ice skating on Mirror Lake and Harris Lake. (I heard a tale of a young man driving a VW on Mirror Lake.)

Up until the mid-'90s, about the only restaurants open in the winter were The Mountaineer and The Highlander. One was mostly breakfast and dinner, the other mostly dinner and supper. If you were lucky enough to be a regular at either of those places, you were lucky enough!

As far as the stores in town, many put brown paper in their windows for the winter break, which back in the '50s through the '70s was right after Labor Day until spring. After I arrived in 1990, the winter break shortened to just after Christmas until spring. I was always amazed at the fruit-basket-turnover to see which store would move to a different location as a few did every year. Only the old stand-bys stayed put, you know, the cornerstone stores who helped Highlands be a place for people to return and find things exactly as they left them. Places like Stone Lantern, the two above mentioned restaurants on Main Street, Highlands Inn, Old Edwards Inn, Reeves Hardware, Hildegard's (now, Wolfgang's), Mirror Lake Antiques, The Gem Shop, Wit's End, The Phelps House (then Main Street Inn, now The Highlander Mountain House) Some places are now gone, and some, like the people who frequent them, have changed.

It was probably in the mid-'70s when residents started thinking about how to increase the season. After all, it was nice to be a quiet, little sleepy town, but a man has got to eat and provide, so Highlands began slowly, like a mole coming out of its hole, slowly shortening the winter off season as it was called, to a few brave shop owners staying open, more restaurants opening and staying open, and when hotels couldn't keep up, homes that weren't shut down for the winter (as most still were) would open their homes to vacation renters (or the new derogatory term, Transient dwellers.)

Jeannie Chambers
Chambers Realty
& Vacation Rentals

It has taken about

50 years, but now Highlands is making a mountain out of that mole hill.

Up until the '80s, in the summer, Lee's Inn, Mitchell's Motel and King's Inn helped house vacationers. Lee's Inn burned down in 1982, and Kelsey & Hutchison Lodge was built in its place and offered a nice, more upscale kind of place to stay. Kings Inn burned in 1994, and already been closed to guests for a while. I remember that fire, we could see it from our home, over four miles away. All three of those places now belong to the OEI group and offer year-round places to stay, with the latest venture earmarked for employee housing, if the rumor mill is correct.

Look at real estate and property values. You can look at the last 25 years of average Macon County building permit costs to understand the trend. This information was gotten from city-data.com and presumably attained from Macon County records. Note the drop in building when the recession hit. That's when a lot of the rehabbing of older homes started. Contractors who were used to full home-builds were happy to get a job redoing a deck, or a kitchen or bath renovation.

of Permits	Year	Avg cost of home
347	1997	$124,600
359	2000	$194,500
363	2005	$236,400
77	2010	$262,900
85	2015	$152,000
5	2019	$1,450,000

What happened over the last 50 years was akin to the story of the frog being put in a pot of cold water, with the heat turned on so low he couldn't possibly know his fate. The same people who cry "Wolf, Wolf," are the same people who claim the sky is falling and are the same people who think the water is getting too hot and Highlands is about at its boiling point. This may be where the topsy-turvy book comes to an end you will need to turn the book upside down to get another story.

I applaud The Planning Board for the work they've done regarding STRs. They got the assignment right. They are in the business of planning, and plan they have. In this issue you will know the plan they have presented to The Town of Highlands

He was also an active member of St. John's Episcopal Church, Rotary Club (Paul Harris Fellow), Jaycees, and the Board of Trustees at Western Carolina University (distinguished service award). He was instrumental in the growth of Southwestern Community College, where he taught real estate.

In 1984, Zeke moved his law practice to Highlands, NC, joining with Coward, Coward, and Dillard, PA until 1992, when he opened his solo practice in Highlands.

In addition to practicing law in Highlands, Zeke continued to be a Rotarian (Business leader award); he served terms on both the Zoning Board of Highlands and the Planning Board of Highlands; he served six years as a member of the Town Board of Highlands; he was a member of the Church of the Incarnation, serving in many capacities, including the vestry, lay reader, usher, and camera operator; he served on the Peggy Crosby Center Board of Directors and the Crosby Center Founding Board.

Throughout his life, Zeke was active in numerous other civic clubs, committees, and charitable endeavors. However, the practice and study of law was his calling and passion; he was a skilled litigator and respected attorney for many years.

In his later years, what Zeke enjoyed most was spending time with his family, his friends, and his pets. He also enjoyed participating in church services and activities, traveling, and helping others through volunteering and work.

His lifelong interests included reading, diligently keeping up with current events and rooting for the Tarheels. He will be truly missed and fondly remembered.

A memorial service will be held Saturday January 29, 2022 at 11 am at the Episcopal Church of Incarnation in Highlands, NC.

For the safety of all, masks will be provided, and social distancing will be observed. In addition, the service will be live streamed.

being used as STRs and as such are grandfathered in.

“We are looking toward the future and the legal ramifications of vested or grandfathered interests are not our concern,” he said.

After hearing numerous comments from those for and against STRs during the public comment period, the board discussed uses in the R2 district – mainly regarding Transient Dwelling Lodging which is defined as the entire unit being rented or occupied by paying guests for a period less than seven consecutive days.

At the close of the last worksession on January 11, members were stymied about whether to require a Special Use Permit (SUP) for Transient Lodging in the R2 district as originally drafted, or to make it a Limited Use or to disallow Transient Lodging in R2 all together.

Though still a mechanism through the Zoning Board of Adjustment for variances, several years ago, the town did away with the need for SUPs for every little thing involving properties because SUPs require legal postings and a hearing before the Zoning Board of Adjustment which is a quasi-judicial board.

Now, if owners meet zoning and property requirements and stipulations, SUPs are no longer required for additions to homes or businesses (when a variance isn't required) – those issues are now being handled by planning department staff.

Therefore, the Planning Board was urged to consider Limited uses in the R2 zone instead of requiring a SUP.

Then the issue came down to figuring out what the criteria would be to allow Limited Transient Lodging in the R2 district.

Helene Siegel said she noticed disparities in the R2 zone in that some R2 properties appeared to be in completely residential areas while other R2 properties were along state and federal roads or near commercial businesses like on Poplar, Hickory, 5th and 4th streets and along US 64 east and other highways.

In the end, the board decided to allow Transient Lodging in the R2 district on a Limited basis if the property wasn't in a solely residential area. However, since the R2 zone was initiated so that occupants could have soft home businesses in the first place, it's not clear how the “solely residential criteria” will work in the end.

Both Whole House Rentals (WHSTR) and Tourist Homes will be allowed in R1 and R2 for a minimum of two weeks at a time with Transient Lodging not allowed in R1 but allowed on a Limited basis in R2.

WHSTRs are defined as a dwelling whereby the entire unit is rented for a period of 7-30 consecutive days.

Tourist Homes are defined as a building or part of a building where not more than four bedrooms are rented and where the owner of the home stays on the property with the guests, like a bed and breakfast.

Tourist Homes will be allowed in R1 and R2 but limited to two bedrooms in R1 and four bedrooms in R2.

Other noted issues are onsite parking of one car per bedroom, a fire safety inspection, owner or operator contact information and the suspension of a WHSTR owners' rights for six months if three violations are accumulated within a 12-month period.

Violations would be cited if town ordinances regarding parking, noise, or garbage were disregarded.

Public comment circulated among those for and against STRs.

Lila Howland said in August the town attorney clearly stated that the current UDO prohibits STRs in the R1 district; that 62% of those who filled out the Community Plan survey said STRs were a problem; that the three candidates who won the election clearly opposed STRs in residential neighborhoods which equals a clear and compelling mandate to prohibit them in residential neighborhoods.

“So far, the Planning Board seems to have ignored this mandate,” she said. “There has been no public support to open up all Highlands' neighborhoods to Tourist Homes as your current proposal does. There has been no public support to open all Highlands' neighborhoods to whole house short-term rentals regardless of the durations which your current proposal does.”

She suggested the Planning Board simply defer the subject to the Town Board rather than passing on its recommendations.

Her husband Slocum said they live in a R1 district where commercial activity isn't allowed and STRs are a commercial activity because money exchanges hands.

However, David Bee said according to state statute STRs aren't a commercial use.

“If it is, why isn't any rental commercial use? Whether it's three nights or 365 nights, if getting money, what's the difference?” he asked.

There was a lot of talk about rental properties being in the R1 and R2 districts being owned by LLCs. Those against STRs suggested that LLCs mean business entities are renting the homes which would make it a commercial enterprise.

But those who have been representing STR and Vacation Rental owners for decades said LLCs are also formed because the homes belong to several people in their families and not because they consider their home use a business.

A member of the Save Highlands group said the STR issue is a legal rights issue as outlined in the NC Vacation Rental Act as well as a vested right issue as outlined in NC statutes. She also said as of July 1, 2019, no city or county can adopt an order requiring owners of STRs to obtain a permit to rent their property.

But as part of the Planning Board's recommendations, owners of STRs would require a zoning certificate and those who have rented would have to prove such with tax records, written leases or other proof that they are vested.

Needed for a zoning certificate is the address of the property, name and contact information of the owner and/or manager, a site plan showing off-street parking spaces, information on the number of bedrooms for rent, a fire safety inspection, a copy of a standard rental agreement, and acknowledgement that the applicant is aware of the occupancy restrictions on the property.

The Town Board isn't obligated to adopt the Planning Board's recommendations.

Friends honor Maestro Fletcher Wolfe in hometown of Norlina, NC

By Lew Hege Correspondent
The Warren Record

Author Thomas Wolfe was the first cousin of another Thomas Wolfe, Norlina's Thomas W. Wolfe. The world-renowned author was famous for his book, "You Can't Go Home Again." With apologies to the author— you can.

And that's what legendary musician and maestro Fletcher Wolfe did to celebrate his 90th birthday. Friends and relatives gathered at Rachel's Whistle Stop restaurant to honor Wolfe, an amazing man, who graduated from Norlina High School in 1949 and enjoyed a career as a great baritone, pianist, and director of the Grammy-winning Atlanta Boy Choir, which he led for 60 years.

From his early boyhood days, Wolfe was a child prodigy who would go on to make his Carnegie Hall debut in 1964 and would be acclaimed for his work with the Boy Choir.

The choir traveled the world, and Fletcher and the choir would meet and perform for presidents, kings and queens, and even the Pope in Rome.

In fact, on January 13th, his birthday he was awakened at 4am with a phone message from Saint Petersburg Russia, the famous Glinka Music Conservatory Men's Choir was singing Happy Birthday in Russian.

But the birthday celebration was for close friends and relatives, and a modest Fletcher said that while traveling the world was wonderful, the place he loved most is Norlina. In his remarks, Fletcher recognized fellow nonagenarians Lou Traylor and Esther Delbridge, who organized the celebration.

The town honored the maestro in 2020 with a historic marker in front of his boyhood home on Liberty Street. So it was fitting that one of Norlina's most famous sons chose to return "home" to celebrate his landmark birthday.

In addition to his friends in Norlina, Fletcher shared the day with his nieces, Cindy Wolfe Beaver and husband David, and Becky Wolfe Harrison and husband Keith, all of Raleigh; along with Fletcher's cousins, Skeeter Price and Frances McKenzie, and friend Trish Gregory, all of Chase City. Also attending was Casey Anglin, who accompanied Fletcher from his home in Sky Valley, GA.

If you'd like to learn more about the life and career of this remarkable man, you can find Luci Weldon's 2020 article about the historic marker dedication in The Warren Record or at warren-record.com, or in Fletcher's two books: "Around the World in 85 Years," by Candace Keach, Volumes 1 and 2. Volume Two was published in 2021.

A very grand celebration was to be held for him in Atlanta at the Cherokee Town & Country Club for some 50 admirers. Sadly, Covid cancelled this with plans hopefully to have this event in May.

Norlina native Fletcher Wolfe is honored with a 90th birthday celebration at Rachel's Whistle Stop on Saturday. His birthday was Jan. 13.

You Can't Always Get What You Want

Rev. W. Bentley Manning
Episcopal Church of the Incarnation

In 1969 the Rolling Stones released their tenth studio album entitled "Let it Bleed" - a chart-topping work which reminded the world that "You can't always get what you want." The problem, however, according to Harvard Psychologist Daniel Gilbert is not that "you can't always get what you want" but that "you can't always know what you want."

Many of us assume we know what we want and believe that happiness is ultimately about aligning the world to our desires. Such a perspective is really another way of saying that we think we know what we want, and that getting what we want will make us happy.

Christians often assume (either implicitly or explicitly) this means a great deal of life will involve suppressing those desires which don't naturally align with the will of God. Such a view is probably why so many sermons, as one friend has helpfully pointed out, boil down to the two simple words: "Try Harder!" However, living in such a way is an exhausting and immensely discouraging way to walk through the world.

It is a difficult way to be in the world because so many of our desires, as brand strategists and marketing experts know, are socially generated. What we think want is as much a product of what pulls on us from the outside, as what pushes us from within. And this is why we need good friends, spouses, and guides - for it isn't clear that we always know what is good for us.

In the Gospel of John, Jesus says (rather provocatively) that He is the the bread of life - a claim which indicates he is the one that will ultimately satisfy the true cravings and desires of a humanity gripped by hunger.

Surely it is not a mere coincidence that God chooses the image of bread for what he offers the world. For bread, in one form or another, is something that almost every human civilization depends on as a staple for survival, something we all desire, something most of us have the experience of craving, and something we value. Bread sustains and nourishes us, bread comforts us, bread tastes good, it is something we share with others, and bread is something that satisfies our appetites.

And so it is, that what God offers us in Christ - what God offers us in his life-giving bread is not a repression of our desires or a denial of our bodily cravings, rather God offers something profoundly satisfying to our truest selves. For it is God who created us and it is God who knows our deepest hungers, our deepest joys, and it is God who knows our deepest desires.

As Saint Augustin wrote: “God is closer to me than I am to myself.”

Far from insisting that we change our desires, God comes to us in inexhaustible beauty and grace - seducing, rather than demanding, our hearts to share in his very own life and love. And surly, this is how most people find their way to Christ and the Christian faith - not through some careful argument or detailed apologetic but because they find Christ beautiful. They find something particularly attractive about following Jesus, something inviting about regular patterns of prayer, forgiveness, and grace - something captivating about fellowship with others - something enchanting and deeply satisfying about worship, such that the world around them becomes transformed with meaning, value, and purpose in unexpected, life-giving ways.

God gives food to those who are hungry - God gives himself in the person of Christ who is the bread of life - the bread of life which nourishes our souls, comforts our appetites, and satisfies our deepest cravings. Thanks be to God.

referenced has yet to be distributed, as it's a part of the fiscal year 2022-'23 budget, which still awaits certification by the N.C. Office of State Budget and Management.

The ongoing OSBM budget certification process includes reviewing the individual budget plans of each program to which lawmakers allocated funds. Those plans were due Dec. 15, and Hawkins said it usually takes a few weeks for OSBM to certify.

When the budget is certified, the state will dole out funds to state departments and organizations in accordance with Gov. Roy Cooper's recommendations for the money, which include expanding broadband access, fixing infrastructure issues and addressing housing and employment deficits.

The U.S. Treasury Department has been distributing the other tranche of North Carolina's ARPA funds — $3.2 billion — directly to North Carolina's 100 counties and 26 most populous cities.

The Treasury disbursed half of this money beginning in May 2021. The other half comes 12 months after the first payment.

The amount of ARPA money that counties received depended on population, according to a formula set by the Treasury Department, but was also adjusted based on other funding each community received.

The formula for cities' allocations included consideration not only of population, but also population growth, number of people in poverty and housing-related variables.

County and city government officials will allocate the funds in their communities. All ARPA funds must be spent by Dec. 31, 2026.

"I do think people are really taking their time," Hawkins said.

What can ARPA funds be used for?

The federal government has rigid guidelines for what ARPA funds can be spent on. Every expense must fall into one of four categories: COVID response and adaptation, premium pay, revenue loss or infrastructure investments.

Examples of acceptable expenses, according to a state Pandemic Resource Office fact sheet, include fixing water and sewer systems, improving pay for essential workers and providing direct economic assistance to small businesses.

At the January 20 Highlands Town Board meeting, Town Manager Josh Ward

Little of the millions of ARPA funding has been spent yet across the region, with more disbursements coming.

Since every North Carolina county — and many cities and towns — has received or will receive ARPA funds, Carolina Public Press is taking a look at how and where many of them are allocating and spending the money. This article is the first in a year-long project that will put ARPA funds in 18 Western North Carolina counties under the microscope.

Much of the information here, however, will also be applicable to the entire state.

ARPA spending by county As of July 31, 2021

Avery County received $3,410,241 and spent $0.
Buncombe County received $50,733,290 and spent $16,433.
Burke County received $17,575,650 and spent $0.
Cherokee County received $5,557,546 and spent $72,764.
Clay County received $2,181,490 and spent $0.
Graham County received $1,639,565 and spent $0.
Haywood County received $12,104,347 and spent $256,742.
Henderson County received $22,806,876 and spent $0.
Jackson County received $8,534,441 and spent $0.
Macon County received $6,964,996 and spent $0.
Madison County received $4,225,654 and spent $0.
McDowell County received $8,887,567 and spent $0.
Mitchell County received $2,906,582 and spent $0.
Polk County received $4,025,394 and spent $91,648.
Rutherford County received $13,019,597 and spent $0.
Swain County received $2,771,974 and spent $341,115.26.
Transylvania County received $6,678,883 and spent $0.
Yancey County received $3,509,691 and spent $952,606.97.

explained the ramifications of Highlands being a recipient of ARPA funds.

"The Town of Highlands has received half of its ARPA allocation — $156,480.45 of the $313,000. The town will receive the second half of the amount later this year," said Ward.

Ward said the Federal Government has finally issued instructions on how to proceed with spending those funds.

"As we looked through the projects budgeted for this year, we feel like after reviewing the guidelines, the project that best meets the requirements is the Morewood Waterline Replacement Project which is in this year's current budget," said Ward. "That project is getting ready to start."

The budgeted amount in the FY 2021-'22 budget was $670,000 for the project.

"We will receive approximately $313,000 so that will leave about $357,000 to be budgeted instead of the original $670,000," Ward said. "We expect to get it by the end of this fiscal year."

Thursday night, the budget for FY 2021-'22 was amended to reflect the ARPA grant funds coming in. Obviously, the town will no longer have to pay the complete amount budgeted for the project, so the budget was amended to reflect that change and was accepted.

Each North Carolina county or municipality that received ARPA funding last summer was required to submit an interim spending report to the U.S. Treasury Department by Aug. 31, 2021.

These reports, however, only cover money spent through July 2021.

"Since then, (the U.S.) Treasury knows that states and localities have only increased their pace of budgeting and spending relief funds," Ramirez said.

What's been spent so far?

According to the U.S. Treasury Department, $174,123,543 has been disbursed to the 18 Western North Carolina counties. Asheville and Morganton, the only two cities in the region to receive funds, alone got slightly over $13 million.

Other cities and towns across the region will receive ARPA funding through the state.

By the end of July, Asheville had used about half a million in ARPA funds for housing services, which stands in stark contrast to much of the region. Just six of Western North Carolina's counties — Buncombe, Cherokee, Haywood, Polk, Swain and Yancey — have spent any ARPA money at all, according to their interim reports.

The documents show the six counties have spent about $1.7 million on COVID vaccination efforts, administrative costs, public health initiatives, broadband expansion and payroll expenses.

That's only about 1% of the total ARPA money received so far in WNC.

But Ramirez said that shouldn't be alarming. "Many states and localities have legislative or other governmental processes that they must complete before deploying funds or signing contracts," she said. "While this can lead to a delay, it importantly allows for the community to engage on the plans around these historic investments."

The next due date for ARPA spending reports is Jan. 31 for counties and cities with at least 250,000 residents that received more than $10 million, and April 30 for those with fewer than 250,000 residents receiving less than $10 million.
